GENERAL NEWS

RELIGIOUS FASTER

Near Oak City, Tenn., on March 9, a mountaineer named Jackson Whitlow thought that God had bidden him to fast until further orders were given. From that time he refused to eat, declaring that the Lord gave him some special work to do and that he must prepare for it by fasting. He now weighs less than 100 pounds, but steadfastly refuses food, except water. For days he has been too weak to speak above a whisper, tho at the first of his fast he performed many of his regular tasks.

He says God called him to fast, and it may be till death.

MANY MISDIRECTED LETTERS

When letters are not addressed so that they may be delivered they are sent to the dead letter office at Washington, and when possible are returned to the writers. But often this can not be done. During 1936 more than twelve billion pieces of misdirected mail went to the dead letter office. Many contained money and this was appropriated by the government in cases where the proper owner could not be located. The United States treasury was made richer to the amount of $230,000 in this manner.

A CHINESE IN AMERICA

Lin Yutang, highly educated Chinese, says in the Forum concerning his experience in this country: "I do not justify my likes and dislikes, they are just personal." Then he lists some.

He likes the squirrels in the parks; likes everything about the radio but its programs; likes hot dogs, but dislikes the company in which he usually finds himself when eating them; loves the gorgeous flowers grown here, but detests the way they are arranged; likes good dinners, but abhors cocktail parties. He is delighted at our labor-saving devices, but hates folding beds; loves to see negro workers laughing and sporting, but feels deeply sorry for those who are serious. He thinks the trailer a logical development of a home from the apartment flat, and an effort to arrange things so that all members of the family may use the car at the same time.

There is food for thought in his observations.

Jefferson's Birthday and Its Message

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

"The whole art of government consists in the art of being honest."

This is one of the most famous utterances of Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, third President of the United States, and, in the words of a noted biographer, "the foremost expounder of the rights of man."

As, at this time, an entire nation observes the anniversary of his birthday, many other of his admonitions may well be recalled. Here are a few, whose value is as great today as when, in the early days of our Republic, they were first uttered by one of the greatest of our Presidents:

Liberty:

"Liberty is the great parent of science and of virtue; and a nation will be great in both in proportion as it is free."

"Our liberty depends on the freedom of the press, and that cannot be limited without being lost."

The Constitution:

"I wish support from no quarter longer than my object candidly scanned shall merit it; and especially, not longer than I shall vigorously adhere to the Constitution."

Respect for Law:

"Laws made by common consent must not be trampled on by individuals."

"The voluntary support of laws, formed by persons of their own choice, distinguishes peculiarly the minds capable of self government."

Individual Enterprise:

"Agriculture, manufactures, commerce and navigation, the four pillars of our prosperity, are the most thriving when left most free to individual enterprise."

Personal Rights:

"It would be a dangerous delusion were a confidence in the men of our choice to silence our fears for the safety of our rights."

Economy in Government:

"A rigid economy of the public contributions, and absolute interdiction of all useless expenses, will go far towards keeping the government honest and unoppressive."

"I think we have more machinery of government than is necessary, too many parasites living on the labor of the industrious!"

The People:

"The will of the people is the only legitimate foundation of any government."

MOORE LIQUOR CHAIRMAN

Cutler Moore, of Lumberton, has been appointed by Governor Hoey to the chairmanship of the State Liquor Commission. The position pays $6,000 a year. Moore says that he drinks beer only and voted dry in 1933. He was one of Gov. Hoey's campaign managers last year.

"The Pioneer", Nashville high school annual lives up to its name in that it is a mimeographed book that makes a very presentable appearance which looks very much like printing.

All the work on the annual was done by students except the photographs which were taken by a photographer in Durham.

PINE FAT

In addition to discovering a way to make newsprint from the pulp of slash pines, Dr. Herty has discovered that this pine has a fat all through the wood. When this fat is removed the pulp is excellent for making even the finest grades of paper and for manufacturing rayon for clothing. It is said that the South has enough pine to clothe the whole world.

The fat extracted from the wood can be used in making soap, paint, oleic acid for use in medical experiments. In addition to these uses it contains a wax from which Vitamin D can be made.

A crop of slash pine may be raised in ten years time and its growing is predicted to be one of the most important future industries of the South.

AUTOMATIC BREATHING MACHINE

Among the latest appliances for hospital use is an automatic breather that not only inhales and exhales air from the patient's lungs, but also adjusts itself to his normal breathing. A machine of this kind was shown at the meeting of the Tri-State Hospital Association in Raleigh last week.
