MRS. THEO. B. DAVIS, Editor

THE LAST DAY OF THE YEAR

Come bairn, come all to the frolic lay,
Tomorrow, you know, is New Year's Day;

The cold winds blow,
And down falls the snow,
But merrily, merrily dance away.

We'll not sleep a wink till the year come in,

Till the clock strikes twelve and the fun begin;

And then with a cheer
To the new-born year,

How the streets will ring with the roaring din!

A blithe new year we wish you all,
Aid many return to bless you all,
Aid may each one you see Aye merrier be,
While round the fire we greet you all.

—Alexander Smart.
