

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITS AT THE FIVE COUNTY FAIR
By J. E. McINTIRE

While not so great in quantity, the quality was very good of the agricultural exhibits at the recent fair. I hope next year that the farmers will show a better spirit of cooperation with the fair officials and have a greater variety, and larger quantity of farm produce on exhibit. The lack of display this year was not caused from scarcity, but for lack of interest. The following is a list of exhibitors and premiums won on the agricultural exhibits:

Flowers and Babies
Mrs. Leroy Harris explains thus why she has no chrysanthemums: "I set out the plants nicely last spring; but Buck (the Harris baby) liked to see me plant them, and would follow me around and pull up every one, wanting me to set it out again. Finally they got so they wouldn't revive at all when I put them in the ground." No wonder both gardener and mums were disheartened.

Tactful Lady
An entertaining story has been told us recently. It concerns a lady of our town who was buying groceries in a certain store here; and when she went to settle for them a man who had drunk too deeply of the cup that sometimes cheers and always inebriates insisted that he be allowed to pay for her pur-prizes that are not listed, but have been given out, others winning who have not received their prizes include the following: Ivey Narron, Mrs. D. H. Underhill; B. K. Wakken; Mrs. Ollie McGinnis. The premiums are at the Record office, and if the owners will call there they may receive them.

chases. She told him pleasantly that she could pay, but he insisted. Then she told him if he really wanted to give away money, she would take it to church for him the next Sunday, would put it in an envelope marked with his name, and would drop it in the collection for charity. And he gave it to her.
