NUMBER 18

Harvest Day At Friendship

Friendship Church, Johnston County, near Emit, will hold a Harvest Day sale Friday, Nov. 17, service lasting all day. The members of the church are asked to bring produce from the farm and home to be sold at auction, with the proceeds going to the church treasury.

The members are asked to assemble in the morning and bring their produce for the sale. At eleven a sermon will be delivered by Rev. M. E. Tyson, Superintendent of the Freewill Baptist Orphanage, Middlesex, N. C.

A picnic spread will be held on the grounds at noon and every family is asked to bring a basket lunch. The auction will start about eleven o'clock.

Let's every one go and have a good time.

Eclipse Seen Here

The eclipse of the moon on last Friday night was plainly visible here, though farther north fog obscured it. Viewed from the stratosphere, as it was by a number of scientists, the eclipse was said to have been brilliant.

In at least one instance observers went up more than 18,000 feet into the air to secure views and data. While it was not a total eclipse, 99.2 per cent of the moon was affected, the time of greatest interest being about 1:36 A. M.

Wakelon Plays Here Today

The Wakelon Bulldogs tackle Smithfield today on the Wake-lon field. This game is substituting for the Benson-Wakelon game that was cancelled by Benson.

The Smithfield team were victorious over the Bulldogs last year, 18-6, and the Wakelon boys will be seeking revenge.

Wakelon sports a stronger eleven than they had last year, and will not be so handicapped with injuries as they were last week when they played the Methodist Orphans to a 0-0 tie.

Wakelon has played four games this season and has lost only one. Bethel Hill topped the locals with a power attack. The Bethel Hillians held a 20 pound advantage per man.

Today the Bulldogs plan to present a defense as nearly invulnerable to power as a line averaging 145 pounds can possibly manage.

If you wish to see action on the gridiron, be sure to go up to Wakelon today and you will see a game that will equal college football in thrills and excitement, but will cost only a fraction as much to see.

TENDERIZER

Botanists and biochemists at the University of California have discovered in milkweed juice an active substance that can be used for tenderizing meats.

Harold Schaly At Baptist Church

The Rev. Harold Schaly, native of Brazil, spoke on Sunday night at the Baptist church here, holding the close attention of his hearers. He was introduced by Pastor Griffin as a friend and college mate, one who plans to return to his own country with the Gospel message. He spoke of conditions educational and religious in Brazil, contrasting with opportunities here, concluding with the story of his own conversion. Delegates from Archer Lodge, Wakefield, and other nearby churches were present.

Ford Agency Is Reopened Here

The Henderson Motor Company has reopened their agency here with the Rev. R. H. Herring in charge. Mr. Herring will be glad to see his friends and all interested in Ford cars of all types. He will make every effort to assist buyers in securing just what is best for their purpose. Mr. Herring has lived here too long to need any references or recommendation as to his personal worth, and the Henderson Motor Co. is to be congratulated that such a man is associated with them in Zebulon.

Montague Dies; Coroner to Probe

James Montague, 22-year-old Negro of Wendell, Route 2, died at St. Agnes Hospital at 5:12 Monday afternoon from a bullet wound inflicted by Wake County Deputy Sheriff G. C. Massey during a liquor raid Saturday night. Coroner Roy M. Banks said that an investigation will be made before an inquest date is set.

The shooting occurred at the home of Genie Brooks, Negro living about a mile north of Granite Lake in Wake Forest Township, when Massey, Deputy C. R. Weathers, ABC Officer H. V. Andrews and Zebulon Police Chief C. M. Shannan conducted a raid on the tip that a load of bootleg whiskey was being delivered for consumption at a barbecue party.

Massey said Montague refused to give up a partly emptied half-gallon jug of whiskey and threatened him with a knife. The officer stated that he backed up 10 or 12 feet with the Negro following with bared blade and then shot. The bullet entered Montague's left breast and an operation Sunday which removed the slug failed to save the Negro's life.

WAGES

Farm wages, averaging $1.57 a day without board, were about the same on October 1 as they were three months earlier, reports the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

More Prizes Are Awarded

With fifteen hundred persons eagerly listening the weekly awards offered by Zebulon's Junior Chamber of Commerce were announced last Saturday afternoon. To Miss Fannie Chamblee of near Zebulon went $25.00. Mrs. R. H. Hales and W. E. Upchurch of Route 1; Roland Gordon and Obie Cone of Route 2; and Lona Graham, colored, of Route 3, received one dollar each.

The special prize of ten dollars was given to C. E. Stone of Wakefield. Many have been heard to express the opinion that J. C. C. Saturdays in Zebulon are doing much to help the progress of the town. Merchants offer special values, friends meet to talk over matters of greater or lesser import, and it is hoped that the entire community may come to feel more nearly one in aim and purpose because of these gatherings.

Mail Schedule Is Changed

Beginning on Monday, Oct. 30, the hour for the arrival of mail from Raleigh in the afternoon will be 2:15 instead of one o'clock as heretofore. The morning mail to Raleigh will still leave at eleven.

THIS, THAT, AND THE OTHER

By MRS. THEO. B. DAVIS

Mr. Johnnie Kemp told me I should not state that no hat-pins were to be found in Zebulon; that in the J. A. Kemp & Son store there were plenty of them, and had been for more than twenty-five years, having been bought while their store was at Wakefield. In proof he showed me a box of the pins, varying somewhat as to length and heads. He gave me four. The noblest of them all is twelve inches long with a head about the size of a silver dollar, enameled in bronze, green, and black. It made me shudder to remember that in the dear dead days beyond recall I have gone forth wearing two of those things. Any one would be regarded as a sidewalk menace, appearing with such spikes now.

Mr. Kemp might ship those hat-pins to whichever warring nation he most sympathizes with; for they'd make effective weapons. But they might be declared contraband.

To the Rev. Oscar Creech I remarked last week that one of my ambitions is once more to wash the dinner dishes, sweep the kitchen floor, wash my face, comb my hair, put on a clean white apron with a hamburger ruffle, take my crocheting, and go spend a whole afternoon with a neighbor; adding that it is not probable time can ever be found for such procedure.

Mr. Creech replied consolingly,

"Well, if you did go, your neighbor might not be at home to greet you. She'd most likely be gone off somewhere." After thinking it over, I am not quite sure whether he was consoling or deploring.

Mr. Roy Parker of the Hertford County Herald was also a comforter last week. He was looking over our place and discussing printing, with newspaper problems and worries. His company publishes four big newspapers weekly and owns a splendid building in Ahoskie.

The comfort was in his telling me that big shops also have their periods of stress and strain over buying equipment—and paying for it. I had sort of imagined those anxieties belonged wholly to little plants and owners of them. One touch of nature is said to make the whole world kin; and a fellowship of installment paying does much for comradeship among printers.

An article read last week told of a new plan to kill boll weevils. The idea is to make such loud noises that the weevils crawl into the ground, and presumably stop their ears. Seems it might be hard on humans who should chance to be near by.

THE POET AND THE PEASANT

By DOCK

"And now," said the Peasant, "another week has come around and I find myself with nothing to say."

"You mean to tell me," said the Poet that you don't have a single thing to grumble about."

"Nope," said the Peasant, "not a single thing. You are just like a lot of other people I know. You think that the only thing that I can do is grumble. Well I like to praise folks once in a while, but there is so many confounded things going on that is not like they should be that I just can't help grumbling. You see I hear these things and don't believe them but after investigating and finding so very many of them true, I just can't seem to keep my mouth shut. Why can't folks who are running public affairs keep their cards on the table and be above criticism? I am like all the rest of the fools, if I see someone in public life that is not keeping everything up to the letter of the law, I just have to criticize and that is all there is to it."

"What you mean to say," said the Poet, "is that if there is any praise due a public official that you are ready and willing to give it to him, but that if he is not following out the letter and the intent of the law that you are all ready to rake him over the coals."

"Right," said the Peasant, "and I will promise you one thing, if ever you hear me say anything, either complimentary or otherwise you can bet your bottom dollar that I am sure that I am right and have ample information to back up any statement I might make. Furthermore, I am not intentionally trying to make anyone mad, but if they do get mad, and are a citizen of Zebulon or the surrounding community, I only ask that they remember that all is done in an effort to try and make Zebulon and community a better place in which to live and rear our children in. It is just as easy for a public official to conduct the public business as it is supposed to be conducted as it is to ignore the laws as they are laid down by both them and those before them. Our town board has a legal advisor and yet one of the members of this board told me that at one time when a certain question came up this advisor told this councilman that it was against law and could not be, yet not very many years after that, that same legal advisor told that same councilman that he did not think that that same thing was against the law and yet it printed in the laws of our state. Why did this lawyer change his mind? Was it to try and please someone or had he forgotten? What do you think?"

"I think," said the Poet, "that there was an ax to be ground somewhere."

"Boy," said the Peasant, "that Junior Chamber of Commerce is (Continued on back page)
