This, That and the Other

By MRS. THEO. B. DAVIS

In a daily paper last week a contributor bemoaned the fact that our young men who are leaving for Army camps do not seem to get any thrills out of going. In my opinion they deserve more credit for departing that way than if they were elated over the idea. Doubtless, they are beginning something which will be hard for many to do; they are leaving work or positions which may not be theirs when they return; they are going because their government needs their services and not on a picnic. Why should they shout and yell? To give up one's own plans and preferences is no laughing matter.

On the other hand, those who go from a sense of duty will, all their lives, have a possession that nothing can take from them, and in the days to come there will be many without such satisfaction.

Right now everything is so muddled and confused it is hard to see and think clearly; but we must believe in the eternal principles and, to some extent at least, base our lives upon them. Surely life can not be purposeless!

You may not see much of anything in the quotation that follows; my husband does not care for it; but to me, it expresses a thought or a prayer that is comforting. It is from a poem published in Harper's Magazine.

"For if you go to war and come back whole,
There must be meaning in some gate you open.
And if you go to war and come not home,
There must be meaning in some gate you open."

The Bible says of this season, "The time of the singing of birds has come." It might be added that the time of their fighting is here also. Last Thursday when we went to dinner three brown thrashers in our yard were so busy they paid scant attention to us, though we went within a few feet of them.

Two birds were fighting, tooth—or beak—and toenail. The third fluttered about and occasionally flew between the fighters or darted just above them. Whether she wanted to stop the battle or meant to incite them to greater fury I could not state positively. Selma said they had been carrying on like that a great part of the morning.

When, after an hour or more, we started back to work those two birds were right down in the driveway, clinched like wrestlers, the female still watching and twittering. They scuffled into the holy hedge and we left them.

When we went to supper only two birds were to be seen and they had begun to build a nest. "The course of true love—"

Last week I read proof on a quotation from a state law. It said: "No person shall allow his dog over six months old to run at large in the night time unaccompanied by the owner or by some member of the owner's family, or by some other person by the owner's permission." The law asserts that the owner is liable for damages done in such case.

Woman's Club Hears Ed Chow

Chinese Student at Wake Forest Tells of War

Members of the woman's club and a number of visitors heard with deep interest a discussion of China's position and part in the present war as presented by Edward Chow of China and Wake Forest College on Tuesday afternoon.

The speaker described the years of struggle through which his country has already passed, declaring that China has fought with determination; with the heart, striving not to hate the Japanese, but only their militaristic ambitions; with all they have in strength and property.

He believes that after the war China will strive for greater development in democracy, to be self-sustaining, and to be more nearly a Christian nation.

Seldom has the club had an opportunity of hearing a native of another country speak with such understanding of vital problems of the day and Mr. Chow's talk was sincerely appreciated.

Early Moser Is Rotary Speaker

The Rotary elected the following officers for next term:

President, John Sumner; vice-president, Durward Chamblee, directors, Vaden Whitley and Hoss Thompson; sergeant-at-arms, Wilson Braswell.

Luther Massey spoke five minutes on buying defense bonds. Luther said possibly each one will be contacted once a month to buy the bonds. He did not think we would be compelled to buy at the time being.

Prof. Moser had the program, his subject being "Value of an Education." He gave many reasons why one should strive for an education. It does not always help to make money unless to take a professional course.

Irby Gill and Ferd Davis were absent, but have made up attendance at Wendell.

Baptist Church

Services for Sunday, April 26:
9:45, Sunday School.
11:00, Morning worship. Sermon topic: "Take a Stand."

Methodist Church

We are endeavoring to raise money to build us a new church. Contributors to this fund will hasten the time for us to have a new church. When we have enough money in hand and the opportunity to build, we will begin.

The amount so far contributed is $680. A gift of $25 will be added to this Sunday. We hope there will be others who will bring in or send in contributions this coming Sunday. Any sacrificed amount a person can give will be greatly appreciated. All members of the church and church school are urged to do their very best to make it possible for us to have a new church.

Services for Sunday:
Church school—10:00.
Worship service—11:00.
Young people's service—7:00.

All young people from 12 to 23 years old are invited to be present for young people's services.
