This, That and the Other

By MRS. THEO. B. DAVIS

"In the days when . . . those that look out of the windows be darkened, and the doors shall be shut in the streets . . . when they shall be afraid of that which is high, and fears shall be in the way: because man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets."

"The air is full of farewells to the dying,
And mourning for the dead;
The heart of Rachel for her children crying
Will not be comforted."

Solomon wrote the first quotation above; Longfellow wrote the second; and both might have had this year in mind. The lines all came into my mind when we learned last Friday morning of the death of Louis Poythress, staff sergeant in the air corps at Meridian, Miss. He went from the Record shop to the Army and we who worked with and loved him with other friends here had followed his course with interest. Others were killed with Louis and there is grief for them, as there must be somewhere for all who meet death in any way because of this war.

I stopped a few minutes Friday morning to go to the piano and play an old song dear to my heart—"In the Hour of Trial." Neither Selma, my son's wife, nor I spoke, but when I went out of the room she softly played "Lead, Kindly Light," and "In the Sweet By and By." I shall try not to forget the connection.

The other day as I hurried from our shop to the post office a tiny girl was standing beneath the flag that hung at the corner of the building. Looking at me reproachfully, she said, "You're supposed to salute when that is hanging up there." Having failed to salute, I was much abashed, knowing I had lowered myself in her estimation.

Listening to the radio has never been among my favorite occupa-

Health Officer Tells Cause of Less Sickness

Six Reasons Are Listed by Dr. Bulla in Report

Year by year in the last two decades the general health of the people, of whatever age, has been favorable and at a high level. Preventable diseases such as tuberculosis, pneumonia, typhoid fever, diphtheria and others have never been less frequent nor less fatal in all our history.

We have never before enjoyed such security of life, such expectancy of years and so high a survival rate of babies as we do today.

Today when every effort is being made for total war and total attack on our enemies, there is cause for serious thought and action on the part of all of us to protect ourselves against preventable communicable diseases, that may come from within our own boundaries, as well as from without, by means of vaccines and sera of known proved value.

Is this merely an accident or good fortune? No! It can be traced to many factors which have characterized our progress toward health in the last few years, namely: (1) A better knowledge and understanding of the causes of all communicable diseases, their way and vehicle of transportation and the application of known scientific proved measures, vaccines and sera. (2) Safe public water supplies. (3) Safe milk supplies and better safer handling of other foods. (4) Better housing and sanitary living conditions. (5) Safe and adequate public and private sewage disposal systems, and (6) a better understanding of the rules of right living among or people, and we are not perfect in this respect yet.

Sometimes a condition may exist in a community, which may be of little concern to some people living near it and to others very disagreeable.

D. D. Chamblee Rotary Speaker

Ferd Davis was the five minute speaker for Durward Chamblee at the Rotary Club last week, and told of some of the things he knew about Sgt. Louis Poythress, former Rotarian who was killed in a Flying Fortress crash in Alabama last week. The Rotary voted to send his mother a telegram of sympathy.

Durward spoke on making visitors welcome. He said that it costs nothing to be friendly, and it pays big dividends, both in making friends and making money.

Luther Massey and John Sumner were absent.

Large Amount Of Wake Grain

According to all reports, our Wake County farmers now have the largest crop of small grain ever produced in Wake County. Growers throughout the county are now making plans for harvesting this crop. According to a recent survey, we have more than 80 combines in Wake County and most of the grain will be harvested by combine operators. $4.00 per acre seems to be the prevailing price for harvesting grain this season. The small increase over last year is due to increased costs of gasoline, repair parts, labor, etc.

Farmers having grain to be harvested by combine should keep in close touch with their nearest combine operator and not go outside their local community, unless absolutely necessary, in order to make arrangements for harvesting their crop. This will help to save rubber, wear and tear on machines and a lot of extra traveling during this emergency period.

Unless the grain is full ripe at the time of harvest, it should be handled carefully after harvesting and not allowed to damage from bulk storage or over heating while in storage. Turn the sacks daily

Six Local Boys Now Are Army, Navy Air Cadets

Richard Hoyle, local boy who is a star third baseman of the Wilson Baseball Club of the Bi-State League, last Friday enlisted for flight training at the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board in Atlanta.

Hoyle, who was leading the Bi-State League in hitting with a .452 average last week, returned to Wilson to continue his baseball play until July or August when he will be called to duty to begin his training, either at the University of North Carolina pre-flight unit or one at the University of Georgia.

Hoyle is the son of Mrs. Pearl Hoyle of Wakefield. He is 22 years old, a graduate of Wakelon High School, and of Wake Forest College. Last year he taught in the Wilson High School.

Aviation Cadet D. C. Pearce returns to Maxwell Field, Ala., on Friday of this week after fifteen days furlough. He has just completed the initial 10 weeks of his training as a bomber pilot.

Cadets Matthew Liles Jr. and Allen Harper Green have recently been called up for training, the former being at Kelly Field and Green being at Maxwell Field.

Privates Ferd Davis and Rom Moser are now at home on furlough, awaiting appointment as aviation cadets.

Correction

By regretted error the name of Miss Cornelia Herring was printed "Miss Cornelia Glover" in last week's Record. Miss Herring graduated with honor at Meredith College last week.

Sugar Rationing Rules Changed For All Canners

One Pound of Sugar Given for Every 4 Quarts

Sugar rationing regulations have been amended to make more sugar available for home canning, reports Mrs. Cornelia Morris, Extension food conservationist of N. C. State College. Each family will be allowed one pound of sugar for each four quarts of finished fruit they have to can.

An additional pound of sugar for each person in the family will be allowed to make a small supply of jams, jellies and fruit butters. A family will be permitted to can all the finished fruit it needs.

Families should apply to their rationing boards for extra sugar with which to can. The person making application for a Sugar Canning Certificate will be required to answer these questions: (1) How many quarts of fruits did you can last year? (2) How many quarts of fruit do you plan to can this year? and (3) How many quarts of last year's fruits do you still have on your pantry shelf?

Every jar of home-canned fruit leaves a can of commercially-packed fruit for our armed forces and our Allies. Every jar of fruit put up leaves a little more freight space to carry war materials.

Our sugar supplies must be used carefully. Submarine warfare and the need for ships to carry war materials mean that imports of sugar will be far below normal. Every boatload of sugar that is shipped endangers the lives of American seamen. Ask only for as much as you really need.

It requires 2 1-2 pounds of sugar to can a bushel of apples, from 2 to 2 1-2 pounds of sugar for a bushel of peaches, 2 to 2 1-2 pounds for a bushel of pears, 1 1-2 to 2 pounds for a peck of plums, 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 pounds for a quart of berries, and 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 pounds of sugar for a quart of cherries.
