$1.50 Per Year, Payable In Advance

It is nearly time to dig and store gladiolus, unless you are willing to leave the corms to the untender mercies of the weather and the moles. Authorities say the harvesting should be done as soon as the tops turn yellow. Dry them in the sun for a week or two before removing the tops. Wait a month before removing the dried roots, old corms and bulbs. Most of the little ones will bloom next year, if planted early. Store the corms where they will not freeze. They may be put in paper bags, if the bags are filled only to a depth of not more than three inches and are left open at the top.

Now here is the most important part. For every 100 corms use one ounce of naphthalene flakes, scattering it among them. The flakes can be bought at the drug store and their use will kill any thrips that may be hidden among the glads. Thrips are those tiny insects that cause yellow foliage and blighted blooms in summer. It is best to cover the bulbs during this treatment to confine the fumes—and the odor. After a month shake out any flakes that have not evaporated.

I hope you try this. I left it off last year and paid the penalty during this year's blooming season.

Pressure cookers are again on the market, though not plentiful yet. Prices are very little, if any, higher than before the war. You don't need one very often in summer; but if you do any canning of meat in winter, a pressure cooker will be a great help. If not too large for daily use, "pressuring" meat in the cooker will reduce cooking time two-thirds. Many of the new ones have cooking utensils included. If not, you can put the meat in a smaller container and set the whole thing in the larger one.

At our church we have a perfectly beautiful new pulpit stand. It is made of solid walnut and the work was done by Mr. Ellington of the Wendell High School faculty assisted by Pastor Griffin Zebulon's claim on Mr. Ellington is that he married our Dorothy Horton. The old stand was saved from the fire that destroyed the Baptist church here years ago and will still be used, though not in the main auditorium. Mr. Griffin offered it to me for my class room, and the idea of talking to my girls from behind a pulpit stand got me so flustered I couldn't bear the idea. Far better for me is the table we have.

Have you learned to like the butter substitutes we so often have to use now? Do you like it better after mixing in the little package of yellow coloring that comes with it? And do you know why you have to do that mixing yourself? It is because dairymen have had enough influence on Congressmen to get a law passed making it illegal for oleomargarine to be sold colored. They claim that only butter is entitled to be yellow and that for substitutes to be the same color is unfair to dairymen. As if butter itself does not sometimes have coloring added! And if anyone can't tell the difference between margarine and good butter, there isn't any, so far as he is concerned. For me there is a big difference; but I prefer a good substitute to sorry butter.

Would you have thought that a person in Zebulon had helped raise silkworms for sale? Mrs. A. D. Antone says that when she was a child in Syria her father raised them for his money crop. They also grew the mulberry bushes on which the silkworms feed. After they finished spinning their cocoons of silken thread the worms themselves were killed to prevent their breaking the threads when hatching into moths, and twice a year Mrs. Antone's father or brother went to Beirut to sell the cocoons. Mrs. Antone says they also grew many of the grapes that are dried for raisins, sometimes having to prop up the heavy clusters. She still grows the Syrian eggplant and cucumbers, which differ from the varieties usually seen here.

Union Hope

Next Sunday, Oct. 1st, is our regular preaching Sunday, also the day for electing our pastor for the coming year. Everybody is invited and all the church members are urged to attend.

Most farmers of this section are busy with their cotton this week. It doesn't pick so good after all the rain that has fallen.

Mr. C. B. Whitley returned to his home last Saturday night from his trip to Canada. He reported having been shaken by an earthquake that took place some time during his six weeks stay.

Farm Bureau

The next Farm Bureau meeting will be Oct. 9th, at 8:00 p. m., in the Wakelon High School building. All members are urged to be present and to bring new members. We have a membership of one hundred and fourteen but there are twelve hundred farmers in Little River Township. We should have a majority of farmers to impress our representatives in Congress. The yearly dues are $3.00 and are applied as follows: $1.00 to the national headquarters, $1.00 to the state organization, $1.00 to the local order. With this each member receives the Farm Bureau paper.

We have already received benefits from the Bureau in our tobacco prices, from $3.00 to $5.00 per hundred pounds more than was received last year. This was demanded above the Georgia markets to take care of grading. There is a movement now by the big tobacco companies to do away with price control, also acreage. If this is done away with, then tobacco farmers can expect low prices. The farmers' only salvation is to organize as labor has done. So join the Farm Bureau at your earliest convenience. You can join through any member. We are expecting at least one hundred colored members. All the stores and businesses in Zebulon are urged to join to show the farmers that they are working for them. The names of those who join will be published in the Zebulon Record.

Robert E. Horton, Treas.

Rotary Club

The Rotary Club held its regular weekly meeting at the Woman's Club building Friday night. President D. D. Chamblee and Secretary Mark Bunn were right on their jobs. After a good, substantial supper served by members of the Woman's Club, C. E. Vale who was on for the program, gave a very fine talk on "What the War Should Teach Us". This was greatly enjoyed by all. His outline was as follows: 1. Any theory of racial superiority is wrong. 2. Isolation is impossible. 3. Military power alone does not win wars. 4. Economic injustice must go. 5. Power in the hands of a few is wrong. 6. Religion is indispensable.

Ralph W. Talton, new district superintendent for the Carolina Power and Light Co. was elected to membership. The Rotarians are still a 100 per cent organization in attendance.

Future Allies

A bit of news in a letter from a Zebulonian overseas says that many of those in the smaller countries now hurrying to align themselves with the Allies since they are sure Germany has lost the war feel sure also that Germany will in turn ally herself with us to fight Japan.
