NATURE ON THE LOOSE

Devastation caused by the hurricane in Bay St. Louis, photographed from the second-floor telephone office across the street. In this telephone office, operators stuck to their posts while windows in the building crashed in, water flooded the streets and giant waves demolished two buildings before their eyes.

The Recent Hurricane Demonstrates Again Southern Bell's Ever-Readiness to Serve You ... Come Storm or Fire, Hail or High Water

With the first warning of the approaching hurricane along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts, all Southern Bell personnel in the Southeastern states were alerted for action. Orders for equipment were rushed to the Western Electric Company. Emergency crews from adjoining states poured into the threatened area by truck, plane and train. Every effort was concentrated on getting skilled men and materials there ahead of the hurricane.

When the full fury of the storm struck, operators stuck to their posts hour after hour... maintaining communications throughout most of the storm-lashed section... helping to save lives and avert injuries, to ease anxious hearts and minds and to bring a feeling of calm and comfort to those waiting out the wind. Typical of this devotion to duty were the two lone operators in a telephone office in Bay St.

Louis, who stayed at their switchboard until the last lines went out—then prayed.

As soon as the storm abated, emergency crews went to work repairing a damage to telephone facilities that ran into hundreds of thousands of dollars and totalled more than 106,000 breaks in service. Skilled repairmen worked around the clock—wading through miles of swamps and marshes—battling wind, water—even snakes. It was a tremendous job. Yet within a few days after the wind blew itself out, more than 90% of the telephone service in areas affected by the hurricane was back to normal.

Fortunately, hurricanes don't happen every day. But it's good to know that whenever and whatever the emergency, you can count on telephone folks to deliver that extra measure of power in a pinch. It's this tradition of service that gives a value to your telephone that cannot be measured by the price you pay.
