Mrs. Rhodes Is Lucky; Kills Big Rat with Trap

Mrs. C. M. Rhodes had luck in getting the big rat that's been keeping batch in her corn crib for quite awhile. He tipped the scales at 16 ounces and was nearly as big as a rabbit. He destroyed corn and feed as fast as she could buy it. He has been too sharp for me, I set traps and poison several times, but he wouldn't eat it, so I went to Wendell last Thursday and got two trays of the red quill they were giving away. I set a nice table for him. In a chair, I set a pan of water and a whole tray of the poison and he ate about one half of it and drank so much water he just turned around and stuck his head in the corn and was most dead when she found him. I wouldn't take a $10.00 bill for him. I took his picture and will have it back soon. I want every one to see it and help me rejoice. I wish every one would put out poison.
