ed, "has necessitated new quarters and is in keeping with our company's plans to care for the needs of growing Zebulon."

"There are 155 applicants waiting for telephone service," he added, "and this new office will make possible service for many of them who are waiting. We are making every effort to reduce this waiting list as rapidly as possible and to further improve and enlarge the service. Our objective is to give the people of Zebulon the best of telephone service and these enlarged facilities will mark a major step in that direction."

"NOW OPEN FOR BUSINESS"

Pictured are Kerr Scott, Haw River farmer seeking the governorship of North Carolina, and Charles Parker, veteran Raleigh newspaperman serving as Scott's publicity manager. The two men are seen nailing up a sign in the State Scott-for-Governor Headquarters in the Carolina Hotel at Raleigh.

Mrs. Frank Kemp Sings At Methodist Church

Mrs. Frank Kemp was guest soloist at the Methodist Church in Middlesex last Sunday. She will sing the soprano solos in the Cantata, "King All Glorious" which will be presented by the Methodist-Baptist choirs combined for the Easter Sunrise Service given at the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Kemp will be guest soloist for Middlesex P. T. A. next Monday night. Mrs. Harriet Presley will speak.

Township Straw Vote Is Taken by Record

my in government, as well as rendering necessary services.

Two merchants cited the stand taken by Johnson that a sales tax would always be necessary, saying that they were personally opposed to the levy. Others, including one Johnson adherent, declared themselves opposed to a road bond issue as long as a surplus is carried on the books of the highway commission.

Pat Farmer, local clothing merchant, stated that he felt what helped the farmer helped his own business.

"Scott has helped the farmers make money," he said, "and therefore has helped me make a living. In an agricultural section like ours I think Scott will be the choice of a majority of all the people."

Local farmers generally cited Scott's record in the North Carolina Department of Agriculture as ample reason for their support of his candidacy.

W. R. Bobbitt, for example, on being asked whom he planned to vote for, said, "I reckon Scott is the man for the job. He took the sand out of the fertilizer and the sawdust out of the dairy feed, and I think he'll take objectionable politics out of the government."

Many other Zebulon farmers, including Robert Ed Horton and John H. Ihrie, chairman and vice chairman of the local AAA committee, favored the former commissioner of agriculture because, they said, "of his proven ability."

In addition to the two hundred voters interviewed, several others were asked their preference for governor and declared themselves undecided as yet.

The prize answer to the question, however, came from one very well-informed local man who has always taken an active part in county and state politics.

When asked for whom he planned to vote, he simply replied: "Who's running?"

If the brooder house is given a heavy spraying with creosote or coal tar disinfectant the chicks should not be placed in the house for several days. The strong fumes are injurious to chicks.

Wake Health Officer Announces Clinic Plans is a long time.

"Many of these children who were examined during the early years of our pre-school clinics are now parents of children already in school or who will enter school for the first time this fall. I know this to be a fact because frequently I hear mothers who have young children tell them, 'He will not hurt you. He vaccinated and examined me when I started to school.' No, they will not be hurt.

"In our examination of pre-school children during these twenty years, we can see much progress and improvement, not only in the physical and mental development of the children attending the clinics, but in the interest of the parents and their sincere desire to see that these young children start to school physically and mentally fit to face the future with confidence and determination to do their best.

"Parents, teachers, school officials, public health and welfare workers have a combined responsibility to see to it, so far as possible, that every child who enters school for the first time is free from any damaging, remediable physical defect and that he has been protected against these communicable diseases to which he may be susceptible and for which we have proved vaccines and sera.

"The pre-school clinic for your school will be held within the next few weeks. Please make a special effort to be present with your child when he is examined. This engagement with you and your child at your school is for the purpose of examining him, talking with you about any subject which you would like to discuss and giving you the benefit of the findings of the examination."

LET'S TALK

Spring sure brings work . . .

Lovely spring weather! It's nice in a lot of ways. From now on it won't take so much wood and coal and oil to warm our houses and stores. We'll be able to save on fuel. But spring brings planting time, and there is fertilizer to be bought, and fertilizer always costs lots of money. Sure would be nice to be able to farm without worrying about it.

Need help with planning . . .

Which reminds us. Were you one of the far-sighted people who looked ahead and saved so that you would have money with which to pay for that fertilizer? It takes plenty of planning to save for next year's crop. We're always glad to help you make sound plans for your farm or business. Our long financial experience is at your service at all times.
