THE WAGES OF CARELESSNESS

The driver of this truck lost control of it because its brakes were defective. It ran up on the sidewalk and plowed through the side of a house, killing two persons. In addition to the terrible toll of motor vehicle deaths and injuries last year—33,500 killed, 1,150,000 injured—the total economic waste amounted to almost two billion dollars. Brakes, tires, lights, windshield wipers and other safety features should be periodically checked as a safeguard against accidents. A recent nationwide testing program disclosed mechanical defects in one out of every three cars examined.

"North Carolina can easily be called 'Nature's Medicine Chest' because it is the most important source of native crude botanical drugs on the continent," stated Haywood Jones, Zebulon Drug Co. pharmacist, at the meeting of the Rotary Club Friday night. "More than 1,200 different varieties are found growing in this state," he continued.

S. B. Penich and Co., the world's largest dealer in botanical drugs, had its start in North Carolina at Marion, he said, and Penich has the world's largest drug collection depot in Asheville.

Haywood illustrated the latter part of his talk with color slides showing 19 of the various plants grown in North Carolina from which drugs are derived. Among the plants pictured were the common dandelion plant, which has

Community Chest Group Meets In County Executives' Session

Recreation Is Chief Topic of Discussion At Chest Conference

A discussion of the need for additional recreational facilities in Wake County communities was held at a meeting of the education and recreation division of the Community Council, an agency of the Wake County Community Chest, last week at the Chest office in Raleigh.

W. P. McPherson, chairman of the division, extended invitations to all county communities to send representatives to the meeting to discuss their present recreation programs in regard to facilities, needs and finances. Representatives from Fuquay-Varina, Wake Forest, Garner and Holly Springs spoke on what was being done and what should be done toward recreation in their communities.

Ralph Andrews, Raleigh commissioner of recreation, described the programs in Cary, Wendell, Apex, Rolesville and Caraleigh. He stated that a proposed budget of $43,000 had once been worked out for a total county program and also that a possible plan might be worked out whereby the Wake County government would pay for the entire program with local communities contributing funds where they saw fit. He further stated that under present state laws, tax money could not be used for recreation and that funds usually came from water, licenses and franchises.

Members present at the meeting decided that a survey of needs, interests and facilities should be made. It was voted that a tentative survey plan should be drawn up and presented at the July meeting of this division of the Council.
