

ISAACS WILL MAY BENEFIT WAKELON SCHOOL

Hearing to Be Held July 13 to Determine Validity of Papers

Validity of a will which may have been made by the late R. L. Isaacs, former resident of Zebulon, may be determined at a hearing in the office of W. G. Mordecai, the clerk of the Superior Court of this county, at 10:00 a.m. on Tuesday, July 13.

R. L. Isaacs died July 12, 1947, and G. E. Isaacs of Durham, also a former resident of Zebulon and a brother of the deceased, was duly qualified as administrator of the estate.

On May 18, 1948, there was received in the office of the Superior Court clerk a special delivery letter postmarked Raleigh, but without any return address or letter of explanation. In the envelope were two documents purporting to be a will and codicil executed by the late Mr. Isaacs.

The will, dated July 23, 1942, gives his daughter, Mrs. Beverly Isaacs Moore, certain tracts of land in Bunn, and the balance of his property in equal shares to Wakelton School, Methodist Orphanage, Edenton Street Methodist Church, and Rex Hospital.

The document provided that if Mrs. Moore should contest the will she would be deprived of the lots in Bunn and be given $100.

The codicil, bearing a 1945 date, provides that the court clerk shall administer the estate for 50 years intact.

Isaacs was an insurance executive, and had fairly large real estate holdings. His brother, G. E. Isaacs of Durham, and his daughter are both well known here.

We all enjoyed the sermons of Hopkins Chapel and plan to have a bigger and better one next year. We hope he will visit in our community again.

Rev. and Mrs. Morgan were very surprised Sunday morning when they got the pounding of their lives. That is, everybody pitched in and gave something to them which would be useful to show our appreciation of the work they did in our Community. —Velva Pearce

New Yam Growth

Many Negro farm operators in Richmond County are growing certified Porto Rican sweet potato plants this year as an additional source of farm income, reports W. F. Wright, Negro county agent for the State College Extension Service.

During March, 1947, more than 50 farmers placed a cooperative order and obtained 125 bushels of the Louisiana strain of Porto Rican certified potatoes for bedding. Shortly afterwards H. M. Covington, Extension horticulture specialist, visited the county and advised a large group of prospective sweet potato producers on the recommended practices necessary to produce the high-quality, disease-free potato which the market demands.

To date the high-quality roots have been handled in strict accordance with Extension recommendations regarding seed treatment, bedding, land selection and preparation and fertilization. Most growers have applied at least 1,000 pounds of 3-9-12 fertilizer per acre with the recommended amount of borax to help prevent excessive cracking.

Growers recently have been busy in the fields getting the plants transplanted and cultivating the early crops. If weather conditions are favorable throughout the growing season, growers expect to harvest an estimated 8,000 to 10,000 bushels on more than 50 acres. Of this amount a substantial percentage will probably be of a marketable size and quality.

ning a couple of times away back in 1934. One day we were leaning against a drain pipe back of Corbett's Barber Shop—watching a game of horseshoes—and we learned a lot better than to hold to outside metal when it's cloudy and hot.

The other time we were milking a cow in a shed covered with galvanized iron. Lightning hit our holly tree, and got us just a little. The cow didn't like it, blamed us, and kicked both the bucket and milker a country mile.
