

Wake County Farm Agent Praises Wide Use of Home Repair Shops

A well-arranged, well-equipped farm repair shop which centralizes repair operations can save time and trouble and prevent accidents, John L. Reitzel, Wake County agent for the State College Extension Service, said here this week.

Now that the rush of the growing season is past, this is a good time to plan on reorganizing the farm shop, he added.

The National Safety Council suggests a farm shop to bring tools and work together, thus not only saving time but also promoting safety through out the year. If the shop is properly designed for orderliness, good light, comfort and convenience, the work is certain to be easier and safer.

Almost any kind of farm building can be converted to serve as a shop, Mr Reitzel said. The Extension Office will be glad to give assistance of farmers desiring it.

A checklist of construction hints offered by the county agent and approved by the National Safety Council includes the following:

1. Weatherproof the shop and equip it with a heating stove. (Winter is the time for construction and repair jobs.)

2. Install large, garage-type doors if possible. Such doors will admit larger equipment and extend the range of work jobs.

3. Use large windows.

4. A concrete floor is easiest to keep clean.

5. Paint the interior white or whitewash it to improve visibility.

6. If electric lights are used, there should be more than one to prevent dark shadows.

7. Have a definite storage space for tools and supplies, and keep everything in its place. Some farmers find it helpful to paint the outline of each tool at its proper place in the tool cabinet.
