

Conservation Program Described by Agents

Mr. E. D. Finch of Zebulon has provided a way to carry terrace and surplus road water out of his field. Before 1947 the road water was being carried by a terrace. This system did not prove satisfactory. Mr. Finch seeded a natural draw to orchard grass and ladino clover. The following year water was turned on this area. The terraces and rows were changed to empty in this meadow. In addition to having an outlet for water, hay is being cut from this seeded waterway.

Mr. Joe Tippett of Zebulon has used a bulldozer to clear and slope the banks of a small stream which passes through his farm. Land on each side of this stream was flooded due to the water being held by briars and bushes. These banks will be seeded to a mixture of grasses and clovers. By mowing once or twice a year, these banks will be kept in a desirable condition.

The District Supervisor of the Neuse River Soil Conservation District, states that an election will be held the week of December 6-11, 1948, to elect one member of the Wake County Soil Conservation Committee.

Joe Tippett of Zebulon and M. G. Brooks of Fuquay Springs are the nominees, one of which will be elected to a term of three years.

Balloting has been arranged at the following places: County Agent's office in the Old Rex Hospital Building, and the Vocational Agricultural Departments of the following High Schools: Millbrook, Wake Forest, Rolesville, Zebulon, Wendell, Garner, Fuquay, Apex, Cary, Green Hope, and Knightdale.

Mr. Olive states that the person elected will serve with him and L. O. Page, Farm Manager of the State Hospital Farm, in carrying on the work of the Wake County Soil Conservation Committee of the Neuse River Soil Conservation District.

It will be the responsibility of this committee, as required in the North Carolina Districts Law, to set up conservation goals for the county. They may request assistance from any agency or individual in carrying out these goals. This committee will nominate and conduct all elections in securing new committeemen.

Zebulon Store Windows Brighten Up with New Christmas Decorations

Christmas decorations began to brighten up Zebulon stores this week as merchants started to work on attractive Christmas displays calculated to catch the eye of customers and bring them in to buy. Among the first to prepare windows are Carolina Power & Light Company, Zebulon Drug Company, McPhail-Farmer Co., and Wakelon Drug Company.

Haywood Jones, at the Zebulon Drug Company, has an original painting of C. V. Whitley's house during last winter's heavy snow decorating the mirror behind the soda fountain. The painting, done from a kodachrome Hayward took, is unique among the Christmas displays.

In addition to the painting, Hayward has arranged his Christmas candies in a new Pangburn candy refrigerator box which, he says, keeps the candies absolutely fresh at all times.

The office girls at Carolina Power & Light fixed up both of the front windows, one with a Christmas tree and the other with a fireplace complete with stocking hung on the mantel.

At McPhail-Farmer, the windows display suitable merchandise for presents for every member of the family. Large candles and crepe brighten up the windows.

Wakelon Drug Company has both windows prepared for the Yuletide Season, and inside is a floor arrangement of Whitmans candies, featuring the full Whitman line.

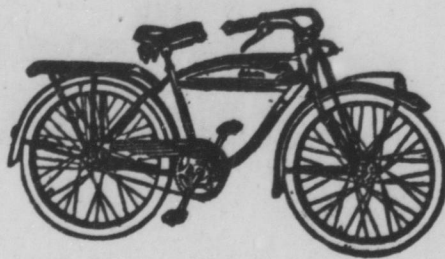

Other stores were planning their decorations this week, and next week promises to see nearly all the merchants boasting Christmas features in the show windows.

Mrs. Victoria Gill was carried to Rex Hospital on Monday of this week. At this time her condition shows little, if any improvement.
