Fermate, Karbam (Black), and Dithane Z-78. Any of these will give excellent control when properly used. They may be used either as a dust or a spray. For spray treatments, use the full-strength material. For dust treatments use 15 per cent Fermate or Karbam (Black) dust or 10 per cent Dithane Z-78 dust. Ready-mixed dusts are available for dust treatments.

For spraying, use two pounds of either Fermate or Karbam (Black), or 1½ pounds of Dithane Z-78 for each 100 square yards of plant bed. For dusting, use 20 to 25 pounds of either recommended dust per 100 square yards.

when I substituted there Tuesday for my son's wife, who is sick, I felt completely inexperienced. But plenty of help was on hand to give directions and carry them out; and I wouldn't have missed being there for anything in reason.

Pre-school clinic at Wakelon is an Occasion, a Function; and is prepared for accordingly. The Parent-Teacher Association swings into action with committees galore; the committees in turn round up others as needed.

Artistic favors are made, refreshments are served to the little ones, posters and booklets emphasize the value of health and good health habits.

On Tuesday morning Dr. Bulla with his assistant nurses and "Miss Ida" Hall said this was the best clinic they had ever conducted. Of the fifty-three children examined nineteen were awarded the coveted blue star, which signifies that no defects were found and the pupil-to-be is a hundred percent-er. First of these this time was Betsy Rountree, and I'd wager that her mother did not feel nearly so proud as a bride as when she saw that star pinned on her daughter's red sweater. Other mothers were equally proud, and all rejoiced with them.

For the consolation of those whose children had defects, I repeat that it takes mighty little to lower a score from one hundred. And it may be something that couldn't have been prevented or that may easily be corrected. At any rate it's worth while to find out all we can.

It was encouraging to see that in several cases the father had come with the child. I suppose this was because it was more convenient than for the mother to leave home in the morning; there was even one little fellow with a brother about eleven or twelve as guide. The older child was alert and attentive to all that was going on, entirely composed, and equal to all demands. I fell in love with them both.

If proof of time's passing were needed, I found it in the fact that classmates of my youngest son were present with their first born who will help add to Wakelon's next enrollment of pupils.

Here and now I make request for a place at all future pre-school clinics here. I could sit in a wheel chair and pin on favors and feel that I belonged with the very, very much younger generation.
