Serious Questions To Be Discussed

Many serious attacks are being made on the capitalistic form of economy in these days, not only by representatives of leftist or rightist political philosophies, but, by sincere and earnest men.

The World Council of Churches, meeting in Amsterdam, Netherlands, last year, raised very serious questions about what it called laissez faire capitalism.

These are questions which will be considered in the sermon to be delivered next Sunday at the 11:00 o'clock Worship Service at the Methodist Church. Visitors will receive a cordial welcome.

State College Hints

You can make soap jelly yourself, by merely saving the chips and ends of all bar soaps that are no longer large enough to handle. Melt all the remains of the soap bars together and store in a jar. If you have no available chips and ends, simply make a Jelly by adding a little water to a cupful of soap flakes.

A wise homemaker in these days will get slip-cover material that is washable, for the fresh clean look of a slip-cover enhances its appeal. She will also follow suit in color-fast bindings, thread and linings. She will read labels to know what is pre-shrunk and color-fast. When she does launder her slip-covers, she will be happier if she knows a few basic rules.

Vacuum thoroughly first, especially around seams and bindings, baste pleats in place, close zippers, wash only one large piece at a time. If arms or back are heavily soiled, rub first with a soap jelly. Wash in medium warm water using mild soap or detergent, rinse well.

Even with good manners and careful service a dining room rug is due for various stains. Try clear, lukewarm water first on the stain, sponge it into the rug. If this does not do the trick, add a little soap or detergent to the lukewarm water—work it lightly to avoid a too clean spot. Or, try a regular cleaning fluid with a light touch.

Talk about Helpless Guys — Read This One

We will not divulge the name of the family involved in this little episode, but we can say that the conversation took place at a local bridge table.

"Girls," cried the declarer, "you think your husbands are helpless, but you should see mine. He is so helpless that even when he sews a button on his coat or darns his socks, I have to thread the needle for him."

Boll Weevil Surveys Show Serious Danger

The boll weevil survey for the first week of July revealed that four out of five North Carolina cotton fields were infested heavily enough to warrant dusting, Walter M. Kulash, entomologist for the Agricultural Experiment Station, reports. The survey covered 20 southern and eastern counties.

The heaviest infestations were still being reported from Scotland, Hoke and Robeson Counties. Hoke had a 64 per cent infestation last week; Robeson, 55 per cent and Scotland 61 per cent. The survey showed infestations of 35 per cent or more in Harnett, Northampton and Sampson Counties.

Kulash says the average square infestation for the 20 counties checked was 26.83 per cent. Last year at the same time, only 2.27 per cent of the squares had been punctured in the same counties. "In view of the present high infestations, dusting to control weevils is highly desirable," the entomologist concluded. "Many farmers are already carrying out this dusting program."

In a further report of general crop conditions, Kulash says that blooms have been reported in nearly all cotton-growing counties. However, only in scattered fields of the State's southern counties is cotton blooming extensively. Throughout the area around Kinston cotton is large, well-developed and generally in better condition than cotton in any other area.
