BUICK DEVELOPES NEW BUMPER

Dabney Gill says that if you don't recognize this picture, you haven't been stopping by Gill Motor Company often enough. This shot of the front end of the new Buick Special shows the combination grill guard and bumper. With the introduction of this new line, General Motors hopes to bring Buick up to the third largest selling position among American automobiles.

November Time for Pond Stocking and Fertilizing

Forty thousand fingerling bluegills were received in Raleigh on Thursday, November 10, for fish ponds in Wake County. These bluegills were sufficient to stock forty acres and were placed in sixteen ponds. Among those receiving fish were: T. B. Straughan, Garner; Elmo Fish, Fuquay Springs; W. B. Franks, Swift Creek; E. D. Fleming, Fuquay Springs; and Marsh Knott, Wendell. This makes a total of sixty ponds stocked with bluegill's this fall in Wake County. Bass will be added to these ponds next May at the rate of 100 fingerlings per surface acre of water. The Neuse River Soil Conservation District secures these fish from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service and they are distributed by the personnel of the Soil Conservation Service.

In the spring the bluegills will have spawned so when the bass arrive in May there are thousands of small bluegills for bass food. We have had several reports this fall of bass that have grown to a length of nine inches or more. One farmer reports a catch measuring eleven inches. This bass, when put into the pond the second week in May, was approximately one inch long. From one inch to eleven inches in length in five months is some growing. This was made possible by proper fertilizing and the fact that plenty of small bluegills were present during the growing season.

It is recommended that ponds be fertilized with an 8-8-4 fertilizer. For each application use about 100 pounds of the 8-8-4 or its equivalent per surface acre of water. Sometimes it will take from 800-1200 pounds of fertilizer

W. B. Saves the Day When Henhouse Burns

Efficient action by the Zebulon volunteer fire department saved the A. D. Antone chicken and pack house on Wakefield Street from being destroyed by a fire which consumed two planks on the northwest corner before being brought under control. The small 5x9 foot wooden building caught fire from grass which was being burned nearby.

In spite of the crowds which flocked to the scene, Fire Chief Willie B. Hopkins directed activities with great skill and the fire was completely extinguished without loss of life, either human or chicken.

for each acre. A pond with considerable water running through it will take more.

There are ponds which seldom need fertilizer. These are ponds with run-off from barn lots or well fertilized pastures. Such ponds are those of W. B. Franks of Swift Creek Section, H. M. Olive, and J. G. Olive of the Olive Chapel Community. The ideal surrounding cover for a fish pond is a pasture. Surface water flowing over a dense sod will cause the silt to be dropped, thus preventing the pond from filling up. Water flowing from a well-fertilized pasture will carry some fertilizing elements into the pond which will serve the same purpose as an application of fertilizer.

Several hundred acres of tall fescue have been sown this fall in the county. It has been used in meadow and pasture mixtures and also in field plantings with small grain for the prevention of erosion. Lespedeza will be added next spring.

Recruiting Halted By Artillery Unit; Quota Surpassed

Applications were still being received by Battery A, 113 FA Battalion, this week, even though recruiting had been ordered stopped by Capt. Barrie Davis when the fifty-men maximum strength was exceeded last week. The only thing which keeps the local unit from attaining its full strength of 88 men is a lack of armory storage space.

Monday night Lt. Philip Pearce, First Sergeant Sidney Holmes, and Sgt. 1c Clifford Gilliam instructed the classes.

Officers for the battery are Capt. Barrie Davis and Lt. Philip Pearce.

First Sergeant Sidney Holmes, a veteran of over 16 years with the National Guard and Army, heads the enlisted men. Sgt. 1c Clifford Gilliam is administrative assistant, and Sgt. J. P. Arnold is caretaker.

Other enlisted men include Sgt. 1c Carl Kemp, Percy Parrish; Sgts. J. P. Arnold, Vonnie W. Gay, Ben Frank Massey, Bob Sawyer, George H. Temple, Gordon Temple;

Sale of Christmas Seals Starts Here

The Wake County Tuberculosis Association will begin the 1949 Christmas Seal drive on Saturday, November 19, when thousands of Christmas Seals will be mailed throughout the county. The goal for this year has been set for $20,000.

Last year nearly 1600 persons were examined at the Wake County clinic and 33 active cases of tuberculosis were found. The new equipment will make possible the examination of many hundreds more.

The Association will seek to continue the services of a rehabilitation worker at the Wake County Sanatorium. During the past year, this worker has carried on a recreational and vocational program and has been responsible for classes in sewing, handicraft, Church services, movies and other forms of entertainment.

Miss Ruby Dawson, program chairman, introduced Miss Frances Thackston, member of the Wakelon school faculty, who made a very interesting and informative talk concerning Internationalism in this Atomic Age.

During the lengthy business session, it was voted by the club that it not have the sidewalk paved in front of the clubhouse at this time. It was felt that money should be spent on preserving the clubhouse itself.

During the social hour enjoyable refreshments were served by Mrs. Ruby Massey, hostess for the evening.

Everybody Had a Good Time at Donkey Basketball Games Except Coach Appenzeller and the Fiasco Kid

By Fearless Ferd the Fiasco Kid
Those few of you who failed to see the donkey basketball games at the Wakelon Gymnasium last night and the night before missed a painful experience—you might have had to ride one of the critters. I don't blame old Balaam for cussing his donkey!

The Scribes, 10-point underdogs before the game, defeated a shorter, heavier faculty team Wednesday night, 6-4. Yours truly was unanimously elected captain of the Scribes; I was framed.

I spent a humiliating ten minutes early in the game trying to mount my donkey. I tried him from the right side, and I tried him from the left side. I tried him from the rear between kicks, and managed to get aboard, but was promptly thrown over his head.

When we caught him again, he was winded and so was I. We thereafter spent a successful evening. Of course I didn't get the ball any, but frankly I was more interested in staying on that donkey than I was in winning any mere ball game.

Herbie Appenzeller, who comes from New Jersey, was expected to star off the faculty. He starred all right; he looked like Wake Forest against State College. It was a dead heat as to who was more scared, Herbie or the writer. I had never ridden a donkey before, and he had never even seen one.

COACH APPENZELLER
Alias Roy Rogers

Appenzeller had nightmares all night with donkeys in the starring role. When he woke up Thursday and turned on the radio, they were playing "Mule Train." He raised his shade and his mount of the night before, tethered behind the teacherage with the other donkeys, stared him in the face. He pulled down the shade, turned off the radio, and went back to bed.

Loomis Parrish scored the winning two points with the aid of a powerful stiff-arm and a timely kick by his mount. He attempted to pass the ball to Hilliard Greene, and the ball went through the basket.

Barrie Davis set a new record for the swan dive when his donkey threw him. Earlier in the evening he did a jack-knife and a half-gainer at one and the same time.

Oren Massey's donkey added insult to injury when he threw him, then sat on him.

Fred Smith mounted his donkey like Bernice Bunn getting in his Buick, and he took off a darn sight faster. You could see light between him and his donkey 99.7 per cent of the time.

It was an enjoyable evening all right for the spectators, but three of us players ended up with abrasions. Herbie bruised his knee. Barrie bruised his elbow, and I bruised—well, I had to stand up to type this.
