NOTED ORGANIST TO APPEAR HERE

Pictured is Eisaburo Kioka, world famed Japanese organist, who will present an organ recital at the Zebulon Baptist Church at 8 o'clock next Sunday night, June 4. He will appear at the chapel of Wake Forest College in an earlier concert Sunday afternoon.

Famous Organist To Appear Here Sunday, June 4

Eisaburo Kioka, top church musician of Japan, will present an organ recital at the Zebulon Baptist Church Sunday evening at 8:00. During his present trip in America, Dr. Kioka has been in great demand as a concert organist who has devoted his life to the work of church music in his homeland. As a part of the graduation exercises at Wake Forest College, Dr. Kioka will present an organ concert in the Wake Forest Chapel Sunday afternoon at 3:00 on the college's newly installed organ. On his Zebulon recital he is performing a group of organ-piano numbers, assisted by Charles Horton of Westminster Choir College at the piano.

Dr. Kioka was born in Hiroshima, the atomic bombed city, the son of a prominent Japanese family. Through the influence of Presbyterian missionaries he became a Christian and dedicated his musical talents to the work of church music, which has been his complete life's work.

Trained in Tokyo

His earlier training in Tokyo was at Meiji-Gakuin, a large historical Presbyterian and Reformed Church College and at the Tokyo Academy of Music. It was here that he made the acquaintance of Prince Tokugawa, who had installed the first grand-organ in Japan. Dr. Kioka held the post as organist in the church with Japan's very first pipe organ.

From there he went on to study organ with some of the greatest teachers and masters of this century, among them Charles Widor and Louis Vierne. In America he earned degrees from Yale and Columbia Universities and studied with their great organ masters. During his present stay in America he is working with Clarence Dickenson of Union Theological Seminary and Alexander McCurdy of Westminster Choir College.

Outstanding in his accomplishments in his amazing work in translating some of our great church music into the Japanese language. He is the only man ever to translate "The Messiah," "The Creation" and Bach's Cantatas into an Oriental language. He is also credited with compiling

Bell Officials Announce Expansion of Telephone Facilities, Rise in Rates

Continued expansion of the Zebulon exchange of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company may be expected in 1951, Paul Woodson, manager of the Raleigh office of the telephone company, stated yesterday. Zebulon's telephone facilities have been already expanded more than any other exchange in the North Carolina system (on a percentage basis) during 1949 and 1950, he added.

Most of the expansion will take place in the form of an extension to the new Pilot line, which is already scheduled to accommodate 110 new customers, into the Rocky Cross and Murraytown areas. This territory, originally included in Carolina Telephone Company's area by the North Carolina Utilities Commission, has been released to Southern Bell, following long negotiation initiated by Charles G. Weathersby, Zebulon tobaccoist.

Because of necessary additions to Zebulon communications equipment to take care of this new added load, it will probably take another 12 months to complete the Rocky Cross and Murraytown lines, Mr. Woodson added.

The telephone company's investment per telephone will be increased locally from around $234 to $354 because of higher material costs and higher cost of providing rural telephones, H. G. Booth, state manager of Southern Bell, declared. Earnings on this additional investment are going down and are already too low to attract new capital, he added. He stated that if the company is to continue to expand, some increase will be necessary in current rates.

With each additional telephone increasing the value of service to existing subscribers, Southern Bell has added more than 140,000 telephones in the cities, towns and rural areas of North Carolina since 1945. Adding these telephones, and improving the service in other ways, has cost $51,000,000, Mr. Booth revealed.

In addition to increased investments, other costs of rendering service — wages, taxes, materials, supplies and so on — also are much

Typhoid Dates Are Listed By Wake Health Officer

By A. C. Bulla, M. D.
Wake County Health Officer

The health of the citizens of Raleigh and Wake County depends upon the health of each individual; but the health of each individual also depends in some measure — often in a large measure — upon that of other individuals in the same community. The health of an individual who is a part of any community generally speaking can be maintained only by combination of individuals who make up the citizenship of that community, which perhaps can better be explained by that saying, "Am I my brother's keeper?"

Today we believe in individual and community good health. This means that neither an individual nor his home nor other homes which make up the community should be a focus of infection endangering the welfare of individuals or groups of individuals which make up the community. To make a community safe for individuals to live in, the community itself must be free from disease. This freedom from communicable diseases can be maintained only by a knowledge and application of the known proven preventive measures available to the individual and to the community in which he lives. Some of these preventive measures are as follows:

- (1) The application at regular intervals of vaccines and sera which establish immunity against certain communicable diseases.
- (2) Some approved type of sewage disposal.
- (3) A safe water supply.
- (4) Screens to keep out flies and other insects.
- (5) The judicious use of insecticides, of which DDT is an example.

(6) Modern approved food-handling establishments, including public eating places.

(7) Maintaining environmental sanitation where homes are located in a manner and on such a high level so that conditions as garbage, trash, rubbish, hog pens, cow lots and other places that may be responsible for breeding flies and other insects, cannot be objectionable to any person in a community.

The observance of all of these things stack up to make for safe sanitary living of the individual

ARMED FORCES DAY OBSERVED HERE

Armed Forces Day in Zebulon May 20 provided an interesting display of equipment used by Battery A of the 113 Field Artillery Battalion, when members of the local battery explained the equipment to spectators. Shown above is the 105-mm howitzer. First Sergeant Sidney Holmes and WOJg Clifford Gilliam are watching at the left of the picture, as Pfc. Hilliard Greene explains the elbow telescope on the gun. Pfc. Jimmy Spivey is at the right of the gun. Hidden by bystanders at the right is SFC Carl Kemp, who is exhibiting the carbines and .45 automatic pistols. Right in the mood for Armed Forces Day are the two boys standing at stiff attention in front of the howitzer. They are the sons of Malcolm Martin and Whitley Chamblee, and were carried away with the display..

Community to Have Recreational Program

The Zebulon Community Council and the Zebulon Recreation Commission are uniting their efforts to make a recreation program possible for children of every age group this summer.

The Zebulon Community Council, composed of the heads of the various civic, service, fraternal and religious groups in Zebulon, and Wakefield, requested that the Recreation Commission secure competent leadership to direct the program for the summer months.

The Recreation Commission met on Monday evening and appointed a committee on Summer Activities, composed of Carlton Mitchell, chairman, Ben Thomas, Ed Ellington, Wesley Liles and Mrs. Eva Page. This committee is now making arrangements for a full-scale program to begin the latter part of June.

The Community Council is seeking to raise four hundred dollars to underwrite the program this summer. Willie B. Hopkins and Ralph Bunn have been appointed to make solicitations in Zebulon and the Rev. Kermit Combs is recovering contributions in Wakefield. Contributions will be turned over to Mrs. Eva Page, treasurer of the Recreation Commission.
