Cotton Farmers Warned Danger of Boll Weevils Now Greater than Ever

Boll weevil infestation is heavier this year than ever before, according to George D. Jones, extension entomologist at North Carolina State College. This year for the week ending June 9, out of 65 fields examined, all but three were infested and the average number of weevils per 100 plants was 12, almost 12 times as many as one year ago.

EVANGELIST

The Rev. Mr. R. J. Barber, pastor of the East Thomas Street Baptist Tabernacle, Danville, Va., is to hold Revival Services in Glen Royal Baptist Church, Wake Forest, June 18 through 25, at 7:30 p. m. A cordial welcome is extended to everyone.

35 Attend Organizational Meeting For Zebulon Ladies Softball League

Approximately thirty-five ladies turned out for the organization meeting of the Women's Softball League. At least four teams will enter the league with the prospects of a team from Hopkins Chapel making the fifth.

Two ladies teams from Zebulon, a teen-agers team from Zebulon and a teen-agers team from Wakefield compose the original entry group.

An organization meeting of managers, team captains and the members of the Softball Committee of the Recreation Commission will be held at the Agriculture Building at the Wakelon School

In most areas cotton is unusually small for this time of the season; only in the southernmost counties were any squares found. But even in this small cotton more weevils were found than in any previous year on record.

Because of the large number of weevils now in the fields poisoning is strongly advised, even though squares are not yet formed. Weevil damage to young plants, before squares are formed, has resulted in killing of terminal growth. Young squares have been damaged in many fields, causing "bushy" plants. Heavy weevil infestation will cause severe damage to forming squares.

Should Plan Now

It will also be important to keep applications on regularly through out the June-July squaring period. It appears that all growers who plan to have a successful cotton season must plan now to carry out a well-planned insect control program, the entomologist stated. Dusting and spraying has already begun in many areas.

Although Wake County was one of the two counties where some fields were found free of boll weevils, Johnston, Franklin, and Wilson all had weevils in every field where an examination was made.
