PROMOTED

Major Phillip R. Bunn, 42, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Bunn, received his promotion from Captain on June 12, attaining the rank after almost eight years' service in the Air Force and AFR. He enlisted in the Air Force November 25, 1942 as a private. At present Major Bunn is assigned to the 9942 VART Squadron located in Raleigh.

At the present time Major Bunn is Area Supervisor for the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina, and his territory includes the area from Burlington to Tarboro.

He is a member of the Raleigh Lions Club, the Zebulon American Legion Post, and the Raleigh Vulture of the 40&8.

While serving as a Captain in the Air Technical Service Command at Indianapolis, Indiana, Major Bunn was authorized to wear the Army Commendation Ribbon for his work as Regional Manpower Officer.

Tobacco Banned

The first reports of tobacco being banned in this section were brought in by Rodney McNabb this week. Wilber Liggins and Charlie Curtis banned tobacco Wednesday, June 28.

Peoples Funeral

Funeral services for Burt Peoples, young Zebulon man killed in an automobile wreck near Bailey Wednesday night, will be held at 11:00 a.m. Friday at O'Neal Funeral Home in Louisburg.

Guard Will Leave Sunday for Duty At Fort Jackson

Final training before leaving for summer maneuvers at Fort Jackson, S. C., were held Monday by Battery A, 113 Field Artillery Battalion, when the unit participated in combined sections training outside the armory. The training was carried out in the same way that field training is performed at camp.

Col. Lee C. Bizzell, senior army instructor for the North Carolina National Guard, was a visitor at the local armory while the drill was going on last night to meet the battery officers, see the facilities, and observe the training.

Forty men will attend the 15-day training from Zebulon, Capt. Barrie Davis, commanding officer of the battery, stated. He expressed his satisfaction that the local group will have this number present after less than one year of Federal recognition.

The men will travel to Ft. Jackson on unit vehicles, including three trucks and a jeep. The two lead trucks will tow the howitzers, and the trail truck will pull the trailer.

Drivers Are Ready

Sgt. J. P. Arnold, who has been training the drivers and mechanics, stated that his men are fully prepared for the motor march. In his section are Cpl. Elton Price, Pfc. James W. Greene, Pfc. Clyde Morris, and Pvts. B. B. Barham and Cooper Moss. Sgt. Arnold, Pfc. Greene, Moss and Barham will be driving the vehicles when they leave Zebulon early Sunday morning.

An advance detail, including Sgt. Gordon Temple and Pfc. Clyde Morris, will leave for Ft. Jackson Friday morning to prepare the camp for the rest of the battalion.

The men who compose the various sections are as follows: Headquarters: Capt. Barrie Davis, WO Clifford Gilliam, First Sergeant Sidney Holmes, Cpl. Jimmy Spivey, clerk, and Pfc. Robert Lee Privette.

Pair of Revival Dates Announced by Combs

Revival Services are being held at Bethany Church this week, Pastor Kermit Combs announced. Dr. John W. Kincheloe, Jr., pastor of Hayes Barton Baptist Church in Raleigh, is doing the preaching.

Services begin each evening at 8:00 p. m., and the public is invited to attend the services.

The revival at the Wakefield Baptist Church will begin next Sunday night, July 2, at 8:00 and will close with the morning service on the following Sunday.

Dr. Hugh A. Ellis, formerly pastor of the First Baptist Church of Henderson, and the First Baptist Church of Wilson, will come from Miami, Florida, to preach.

MRS. THEO. B. DAVIS:

This, That, & the Other

There is now on the market an instant tea. Always I had felt that making tea was one of the very easiest tasks in meal preparation; but it is to be much simplified. If this keeps up, how are women to justify the old-age complaint of being rushed to death?

Not long ago I went to see Walt Disney's Cinderella and thought it delightful. The cruel stepmother was all stepmothers ought not to be; the stepsisters were ugly enough to meet the most critical standard of their features; Cinderella's beauty was sufficient to bewitch any prince. My childhood fancies were upheld.

A little later I found myself without desire to see Samson and Delilah, and was at first at a loss

Coal from Carolina Now Being Mined By Light Company

North Carolina coal, once more being produced at the old Deep River mine, is proving its value in a practical way.

The Carolina Power & Light Company currently is using around 100 tons of this coal each day in its Cape Fear steam electric plant near Moncure, and, according to Production Superintendent A. J. Skaale, is finding it "very satisfactory." This is understood to be approximately the total production at the mine at present.

For some years it had been debated whether the coal was satisfactory for industrial use. Skaale at first tried mixing it with other coal, but found that the fuel performed just as well "straight" as it does diluted. The North Carolina coal is pulverized and blown into high pressure boilers where it burns in suspension. The power official did not think it would be suitable for burning in the plant's low-pressure boilers, but said this was not unusual. "Very little, if any, coal, no matter how high-grade, is suitable for all purposes," he said.

The utility company can use more Deep River coal as output is stepped up, he said, pointing out that the 100 tons now being used per day at Cape Fear is a drop in the bucket. The power plant, running at full capacity, consumes 1,400 tons daily. In addition to this, it might also prove feasible to consume the coal at the new Lumber-ton plant which used coal at the rate of 18 carloads per day, or at the Goldsboro plant, now being built, which will require around 16 carloads per day.

The Deep River deposits, which were worked as long as 75 years ago, have lain idle for many years until recently. It is estimated that may contain as much as 100,700,000 tons.

A. D. Lassiter Grows First Cotton Bloom

The first cotton bloom of the season was brought into the Zebulon Record office yesterday, having been grown by A. D. Lassiter on the J. S. Pulley farm on Route 1, Zebulon.

The bloom was pink and was picked from the field Wednesday, June 28. The usual award of a year subscription to the Record is being given to the grower.

AROUND ZEBULON:

Seen and Heard

Wesley Pearce was a somewhat hawked young man last Monday night, when he went to the National Guard Armory and observed Colonels Bizzell and Elliott talking with another man in uniform. He knew the colonels, but could not quite place the third officer.

"That fellow with the red moustache sure does look familiar," Wes declared. "If I didn't know better, I'd swear he was Ferd Davis."

Everybody laughed and laughed, except Wes. (The fellow with the red moustache was Ferd Davis.)

Co-eds, declarer Rod Horton, are nothing but girls who didn't get their men in high school.

Frank Massey reports an interesting day last Monday. Many people did not know their combinations at the new post office, and others who did know their combinations still were unable to get their boxes open. So Frank kept busier than a one-armed paper-hanger running from one side of the post office to the other. He reports the situation is normal again as of this writing.

Gordon Temple says he knows this is the auto age, because he has one old enough to vote.

Vance Brown says you should always forgive a woman who swears she has never been kissed—she has good reason for swearing.

Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Massey have just returned from a ten days' trip through New England. They visited every N. E. State and most of the historical and other places of interest. They went up into the White Mountains and saw and enjoyed plenty of snow—something their neighbors would have fully appreciated, and could on such days as Zebulon is having just now.
