Drunken Negro Shoots Three Here Wednesday

Two men were seriously injured and one required a doctor's care as the result of a wild shooting spree staged by John Earl Whitley, colored, of Rosenberg, on Wednesday night about 12:30. In a fit of drunken anger caused, he said, when two Riley Hill boys drew pistols on him after an argument on Barbee Street.

According to Whitley's story he went home following the episode with the unidentified Riley Hill boys and got a shotgun, returning to Katie May Baker's place on Barbee Street.

Robert Lee Spivey, colored, was hit in the face when Whitley fired in the window of the "piccolo joint," and was treated for his wounds in Zebulon. Another burst through the door struck Wilbur Dunn of Riley Hill in the leg. He was taken to St. Agnes Hospital in Raleigh.

Whitley fired into a panel body truck on the street seriously wounding Ebenezer Holding in the side. Holding was also taken to St. Agnes Hospital.

Made His Escape

He made his escape before night policeman M. G. Crowder and Police Chief Willie B. Hopkins could catch him. He made his way up Wakefield Street, where it is believed he used the butt of his shotgun to break a window in Norman Screws' car in an attempt to steal it. The approach of the officers caused him to continue on foot.

Policeman Ray Gainey arrested Whitley at Dave Whitley's place early Thursday morning. He made no effort to resist arrest and was taken to the Wake County jail in Raleigh.

Whitley had been away from Zebulon for about a year and had just returned a short time ago. He claimed he was so drunk he had no knowledge of what he was doing during the shooting.

MRS. THEO. B. DAVIS:

This, That, & the Other

By Mrs. Theo. B. Davis

Mrs. Cora Kemp, who runs the landerette down town, called me to say she was glau this column had carried the item about rubbing turpentine on stains caused by machine grease; that her patrons had tried it and found it works well. She wants to give the best service possible, and likes to learn everything that may help. Our thanks again to Mrs. Joe Tippett, who contributed this information.

Several women have told me how much they like knowing that tennis shoes may be washed in machines, as Mrs. Robert Phillips suggested. One mother said her children's shoes had smelled so bad she had them left outdoors, at night, but that a trip through warm soapsuds in the washer made them all right. I shall be glad of every hint that makes it easier to look after housework and families.

It cheered me considerably to learn that some other women find it impossible to iron long, straight curtains so that they hang just right. Especially since these women are very competent housekeepers. It seems stretchers are the only answer to the problem.

Zebulon National Guard Battery Plan Field Trip

Double preparations are going on in the National Guard armory as Battery A of the 113 Field Artillery Battalion makes ready for two big events: the unit's first Federal inspection of September 25, and the weekend firing at Ft. Bragg in early October.

During the Federal inspection, everything in the battery, from the records and equipment to the state of training for the men, will be closely checked by members of the Regular Army.

An additional supply of canned rations was received Wednesday afternoon, which will be used on the trip to Ft. Bragg. The battery is having to provide its own food for this trip, and SFC Percy Parrish and his mess section are at work figuring out nutritious but inexpensive meals.

New Executive

NCNG orders this week assigned Lt. James M. Potter as assistant executive officer of Battery A. Lt. Potter is an honor ROTC graduate of State College and served with the infantry in the army during World War II.

A special drill was held last night, making two this week. Hereafter all drills will be held on Monday night.

WO Clifford Gilliam stated that he has vacancies for two more men in Battery A. He will be at the armory five days a week to talk with applicants.

Candidates for degrees included 69 for master of arts; 25 for bachelor of arts; and 60 for bachelor of science, which at East Carolina is the professional degree for those taking courses preparing them to teach.

Dr. Robert Lee Humber, permanent international attorney and promoter of world federalism, of Greenville, was the principal speaker of the afternoon ceremony. The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Leonard W. Topping of the First Presbyterian Church in Greenville.

North Carolinians who were graduated included Effie Mae Hagwood, Zebulon, Bachelor of Science degree.

WONDERFUL

"Peace, it's wonderful," sighs this pretty miss, who thinks the Mexicans have a point in their siesta time. She is completely relaxed to enjoy the sun's tanning rays in her play outfit of cotton tickin' by White Stag.

Urges Seeding Pastures

Nitrogen equal to 10000 pounds of nitrate of soda is added to the soil by one arce ladino clover, according to W. W. Woodhouse, Jr., soil fertility scientist with the North Carolina Experiment Station.

Woodhouse says the beneficial effects that legumes have on succeeding crops is just one more good reason for seeding pasture.

One experiment with corn conducted at the Station showed that where alfalfa had been turned under, the yield was 115 bushels per acre. When lespedeza was turned under, the resulting yield was 48 bushels per acre. On an adjacent field with no legume turned

Broiler Industry Makes Progress In North State

Broiler production has increased about 1,000 per cent in North Carolina in the last 10 years is now a 10 million dollar industry, says R. S. Derestyne, head of the poultry department at State College.

"We raised only 1,700,000 broilers in 1940," says Dearstyne. This year's crop is estimated at 17,811,000.

"Not only are we growing more birds," he adds, "but we're growing them more efficiently. The average size of our flocks has increased from about 450 in 1940 to about 1,200 at present. Where we were producing only about three broods per year in 1940, we're now producing between four and five."

In addition, he points out, it took four pounds of feed to produce a pound of broiler flesh in 1940; now it takes only about three pounds.

The broiler industry has given rise to a brand-new enterprise on North Carolina farms — that of producing hatching eggs. The hatching egg business has grown most rapidly in the counties west of Asheville, Dearstyne says. That area will sell approximately three million dollars worth of hatching eggs this year. The market extends as far south as Florida and as far west as Texas.

The State College professor foresees a continued good outlook for the State's broiler industry. However, he advises new growers to go into the business gradually.

Wakefield WMS Hears Talk by Dr. Ellis Sunday

Circle No. 1 of the Woman's Missionary Society of Wakefield Church held its regular August meeting on Sunday night, August 13, in the home of Mrs. Vera Rhodes. Sixteen members and three visitors were present.

The meeting was opened with the singing of "Break Thou the Bread of Life," followed by a prayer by Mrs. Combs. The devotional was given by Mrs. W. J. Perry and Mrs. Florence Pippin. The guest speaker, Dr. Ellis, gave a very interesting program. The dismissal prayer was led by Mrs. Perry.

After a few business matters were discussed by committees, the hostess served punch and cookies.

Mrs. Mozelle Massey and Mrs. Emily Mitchell will be hostesses to the circle in September.
