Scott Summers

Some of Governor Scott's most ardent critics last week again were reminded of their predictions that his administration would bankrupt the State, run North Carolina so far in debt that she would never get out.

For last week the Governor and the Advisory Budget, Commission made it official that North Carolina's 25,000 school teachers will get their contingency pay raise. That means that it now seems fairly certain that the State will have a surplus of more than $7,000,000 above the $142,000,000 budget for the current fiscal year.

These same critics of the Governor now are yelling that Scott is letting down his farm friends by suggesting that exemptions — many of them favorable to the farmer — might be removed from the sales tax.

Limitations were put on farm machinery and various farm supplies, needs and products to help the farmer, they claim. Now, the critics aver, here is the farmer's professed best friend proposing elimination of these same exemptions.

They are the same critics who have charged the Governor with being more friendly to farm folks than city folks. They have been critical of everything he has done. They have been unhappy whenever his actions proved right. They have been happy only when they thought the Governor was slapped in the face, first with defeat of his senatorial candidate Frank Graham and second when the Democratic executive committee refused to name his appointee Murray

PTA Minstrel to Be Repeated Next Week By Public Demand

Because of the huge demand for a repeat performance, the PTA-sponsored minstrel show, given last week before a full house, will again be presented in the Wakelon auditorium on Tuesday night, November 7, at 8:00. Mrs. Jack Mitchell announced yesterday.

Proceeds from the minstrel are to be used to provide a public school teacher for the lower grades at Wakelon School. This is the PTA project for this school year.

Jones a Democratic candidate for the supreme court.

With election time just around the corner, some of the so-called political experts in Raleigh are predicting that Willis Smith — senatorial nominee — will be low man on the Democratic ticket.

They don't think he'll be defeated by Republican E. L. Gavin of Sanford, but they do think he'll receive less votes than any of the other Democrats on the State ticket.

Meantime, nothing much has been said about the five proposed constitutional amendments. All of the more favored by Governor Scott and other State officials, as well as members of the North Carolina congressional delegation. They have been mentioned — some of them — briefly at district rallies. Briefly, they are:

1. To raise pay of members and officers of the general assembly. Practically every member now serves at a loss getting $600 for the session regardless of how long the session lasts. That won't even pay their hotel bill for a three-month session. Presiding officers of the house and senate get $700 each. The new amendment would pay legislators $15 a day for up to a 90-day regular session and the same amount for up to 25-day special session. It calls for $20 a day for presiding officers. Both Democratic and Republican party leaders favor the increased pay, because it would allow able men who now cannot afford to take the financial loss to serve in the legislature. As Governor Scott says, the pay raise will keep the legislature from becoming a "rich man's club."

2. To allow a person facing a criminal charge to waive indictment if he is represented by a lawyer. Now a man must wait for indictment by a grand jury in a felony case. This would keep him from an extensive stay in jail while waiting for grand jury action. It would not allow waiving of indictment in capital cases, but only in felony cases where the defendant is represented by a lawyer.

3. To safeguard the funds of the Teachers' and State Employees' Retirement System. This one

Local National Guard Unit Achieves High Attendance Record

Attendance was excellent for the local National Guard drill last night, when Battery A returned to sectional training after three weeks of study on the problems of atomic warfare defense. During the past year Battery A has achieved the best attendance record of any battery in the 113th Field Artillery Battalion.

The proposed weekend trip to Ft. Bragg is still tentative because of difficulties in obtaining ammunition for the firing. The trip was originally requested for this coming weekend but has now been indefinitely postponed.

WO Clifford Gilliam, administrative assistant for the battery, said that openings are still available for men who want to enlist in the National Guard. As soon as another six men are recruited, he added, another firing section will be formed opening up many new promotions for the men.

The fence which encloses the motor park will be moved as soon as the work can be contracted, Sgt. J. P. Arnold said. The seven vehicles belonging to the battery overcrowd the space presently available. The Town of Zebulon has given permission to extend the fence to the front of the Recorder's Court room.

Capt. Barrie Davis, commanding officer of the unit, said that he is asking the Zebulon Chamber of Commerce to aid in locating a site for a motor vehicles building. Although financed with Federal funds, the lot for the storage building must be provided by the community and should be large enough to permit the construction of an armory when funds for this purpose are available.

Zebulon Lions Club To Meet Earlier

The hour of meeting for the Zebulon Lions Club has been changed to 7:00 p. m., effective the meeting to be held Thursday night of this week, President Worth Hinton stated yesterday.

The Lions meet in the recreation room of the Zebulon Methodist Church. The President said that an interesting program will be presented following the dinner.

LIONS AWARDED FOR SERVICE

For outstanding work in the Zebulon Lions Club, membership keys were presented to two members of the local organization by the Governor of District 31-E. Governor Wilber Pike of Pikeville is shown congratulating Lion Donald Stallings as he presents him a key. President Worth Hinton of the local group is standing at the left after receiving his key.

Local Men on Active Duty with All Branches of U. S. Armed Forces

Harry H. Partridge, seaman, USN, of Zebulon, N. C., is scheduled to be graduated November 3 from the U. S. Naval Journalist School, Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

Qualified as a Naval correspondent capable of duty in the public relations field, he is a member of the 10th class to be graduated from the school. The school's curriculum includes such subjects as newspaper journalism, photography, news layout and makeup, radio and wire recording, and Naval history.

Pfc. Lonnie Poole, Jr., is now stationed with the Marines in Arlington, Va., after spending a 10-day furlough with his parents in Wakefield. Before his visit home, he was stationed at the Paris Island Marine Base in South Carolina.

His address is: Pfc. Lonnie Poole, Jr., Co. HNS, Headquarters Platoon, HQN Henderson Hall, Arlington, Virginia.

Elmo Finch and Sprite Parrish were members of the group of men who left Raleigh last Tuesday for Ft. Jackson, S. C., where they will undergo basic training with the army.

Wakelon Bulldogs Lose To Garner Friday, 12-0; Meet Apex This Week

The Wakelon Bulldogs suffered their second defeat of the season Friday night when a hard-running and hard-charging Garner eleven took a 12-0 victory under the lights of the Wakelon athletic field. Coach Herb Appenzeller's team was unable to get its passing attack in working order, and, except for a prolonged second-quarter drive, the Garner line stopped the Wakelon running.

A pair of fierce-running backs sparked Garner to victory. Hunt broke through tackle in the second period, ran through the line backers, and outran the secondary the remaining 40 yards to the goal giving Garner a 6-0 lead.

In the third period Poole climaxed a long Garner drive with a 4-yard run around end for the touchdown. Reuben McSwain blocked the kick for extra point, and Garner led 12-0.

The play of tackle Pete Combs for Wakelon was excellent. Forced to leave the field twice because of injuries, Pete promptly returned each time to help stem the Garner attack. George Massey proved a demon on offense and defense. His blocking was good and his defensive work in backing the sagging Wakelon line was superior.

Both the Wakelon line and backfield were outweighed by the visitors. The Bulldog attack suffered from lack of a line-bucking runner, and the ends were unable to break into the open.

On Friday night, November 3, Apex will play on the Wakelon gridiron in the last home game for the Bulldogs. Kickoff will be at 8:00.

Frank Coiner Speaks To Zebulon Rotary On International Law

Frank Coiner, who graduates from the Wake Forest College school of law at the end of this school year, gave an interesting discussion on international law at the regular meeting of the Zebulon Rotary Club held in the Woman's Club building last Friday night.

The speaker demonstrated a comprehensive knowledge and strong beliefs on the problems that face the peoples of the world in their search for collective security.

Frank said that the countries of the world are building into "super-states" lined up under two opposite philosophies. He said that the present struggle between communism and the free world will never end in compromise but only in defeat for one or the other.

In his talk, he gave the background for international law, comparing it with the law and the courts which govern the people of this country.

Phil Whitley of the Wendell Rotary Club was a guest for the program.

Halloween Carnival Slated for Tonight

The annual Wakelon School Halloween Carnival will be held tonight beginning at 7:30 when a show will be given in the school auditorium.

Following the auditorium show, the remainder of the program will be held in the school gymnasium. The feature of the carnival will be the crowning of the Wakelon beauty queen.
