THIS, THAT, AND THE OTHER

would look queer in a written record.

Mrs. Farmer is right. We should "write it down" while facts are new and easily proven.

For the first time we have cauliflower from our own garden. Credit for this goes to the Rodney McNabbs, who gave us the plants. We didn't know just how to treat cauliflower, which looks a good bit like broccoli, or a thin, tall, ladylike collard; but the fact that it bloomed is reassuring, though it's nothing like the great big heads one buys in stores. The taste, however, is the same and a small head is plenty for two—especially when one of the two doesn't care for cauliflower. But next year I want to try growing it again.

Another first with me this year is a poinsettia plant. It is one which was used in the Wendell Catholic Church last Christmas. Father Koch gave several of them to my neighbor, Mrs. Antone, after they wilted, and in the spring she gave me one. I repotted it and sank the pot in the garden dirt and it grew nicely all summer, being now nearly shoulder-high. It has four branches and three of them have flower buds. I don't know anything about how it should be helped along or held back to have it bloom about Christmas; and it is probably too late to interfere. But I'd like suggestions from anyone who knows about poinsettias.

We were speaking of conventions and I said attending them is real work. The other half of the conversation disagreed, saying that, if one gets a good seat and relaxes, he can just sit and listen and enjoy it. But listening carefully prevents relaxation for me. I preside with the president of the assembly, record with the secretary, stay right with the speakers insofar as possible, walk the aisles with ushers, and grow tired as all of them ought to be by the time of adjournment. It's fine to go as a delegate when one is equal to the task; but I still contend that it is work.

Mrs. W. O. Edwards Entertained Saturday

Mrs. W. Odell Edwards of Wendell, who before her marriage on October 24th was Miss Penina Bunn, was entertained at a luncheon on Saturday, November 4th, at the Reinlyn House in Raleigh by Mesdames W. G. Tyson, Warren Dean and Alvin Dew of Wendell.

The table was centered with an attractive arrangement of white carnations, snapdragons, mums and fern.

Mrs. Edwards was presented a corsage of white carnations and gifts of silver in her chosen pattern by the hostesses. Mrs. Carsey Tippet, recent bride, was presented a gift of crystal.

Those attending were: Mrs. W. Odell Edwards, honoree, Miss Stella Bunn of Zebulon, sister of the honoree, Mrs. Hal Brown and Miss Mary Lou Edwards of Wendell, sisters-in-law of the honoree, Misses Lois Howell and Blanche Parsons of Raleigh, Mesdames Wayne Cook, Jr. and Thomas Jordan of Wendell, and Mrs. Carsey Tippet of Zebulon.
