MUNICIPAL BUILDING VOTE TO BE TUESDAY

Victory Is in Prospect Is Claim of Supporters Of $50,000 Bond Issue

Supporters of the proposed $50,000 bond issue to raise funds to construct a municipal building for the Town of Zebulon threw their campaign into high gear this week, predicting that the ordinance will pass easily in the voting Tuesday, January 16. The campaign to win approval was carried out by letters, through the newspaper, and by personal contact.

The new building, if approved, will provide facilities for town offices, jail, public toilets, fire station, courtroom, and additional offices for use by the county health department and driver's license examiner.

Jail Is Condemned

At the present time the Zebulon jail has been condemned, the fire house is in a disreputable state of disrepair, public toilets are non-existent, and the court room and town offices are inadequate.

Members of the Board of Commissioners have pointed out that if the bond issue does not pass Tuesday, a new jail and fire station must be constructed here anyway at an estimated cost of $25,000. This sum will have to be paid with an extra tax levy in one year.

No Raise in Tax Rate

In answer to questions on a possible increase in the tax rate, the commissioners, joined by Mayor R. H. Bridgers, prepared a letter to the citizens of Zebulon pledging that no increase will be made in the town tax rate to pay off the bonds.

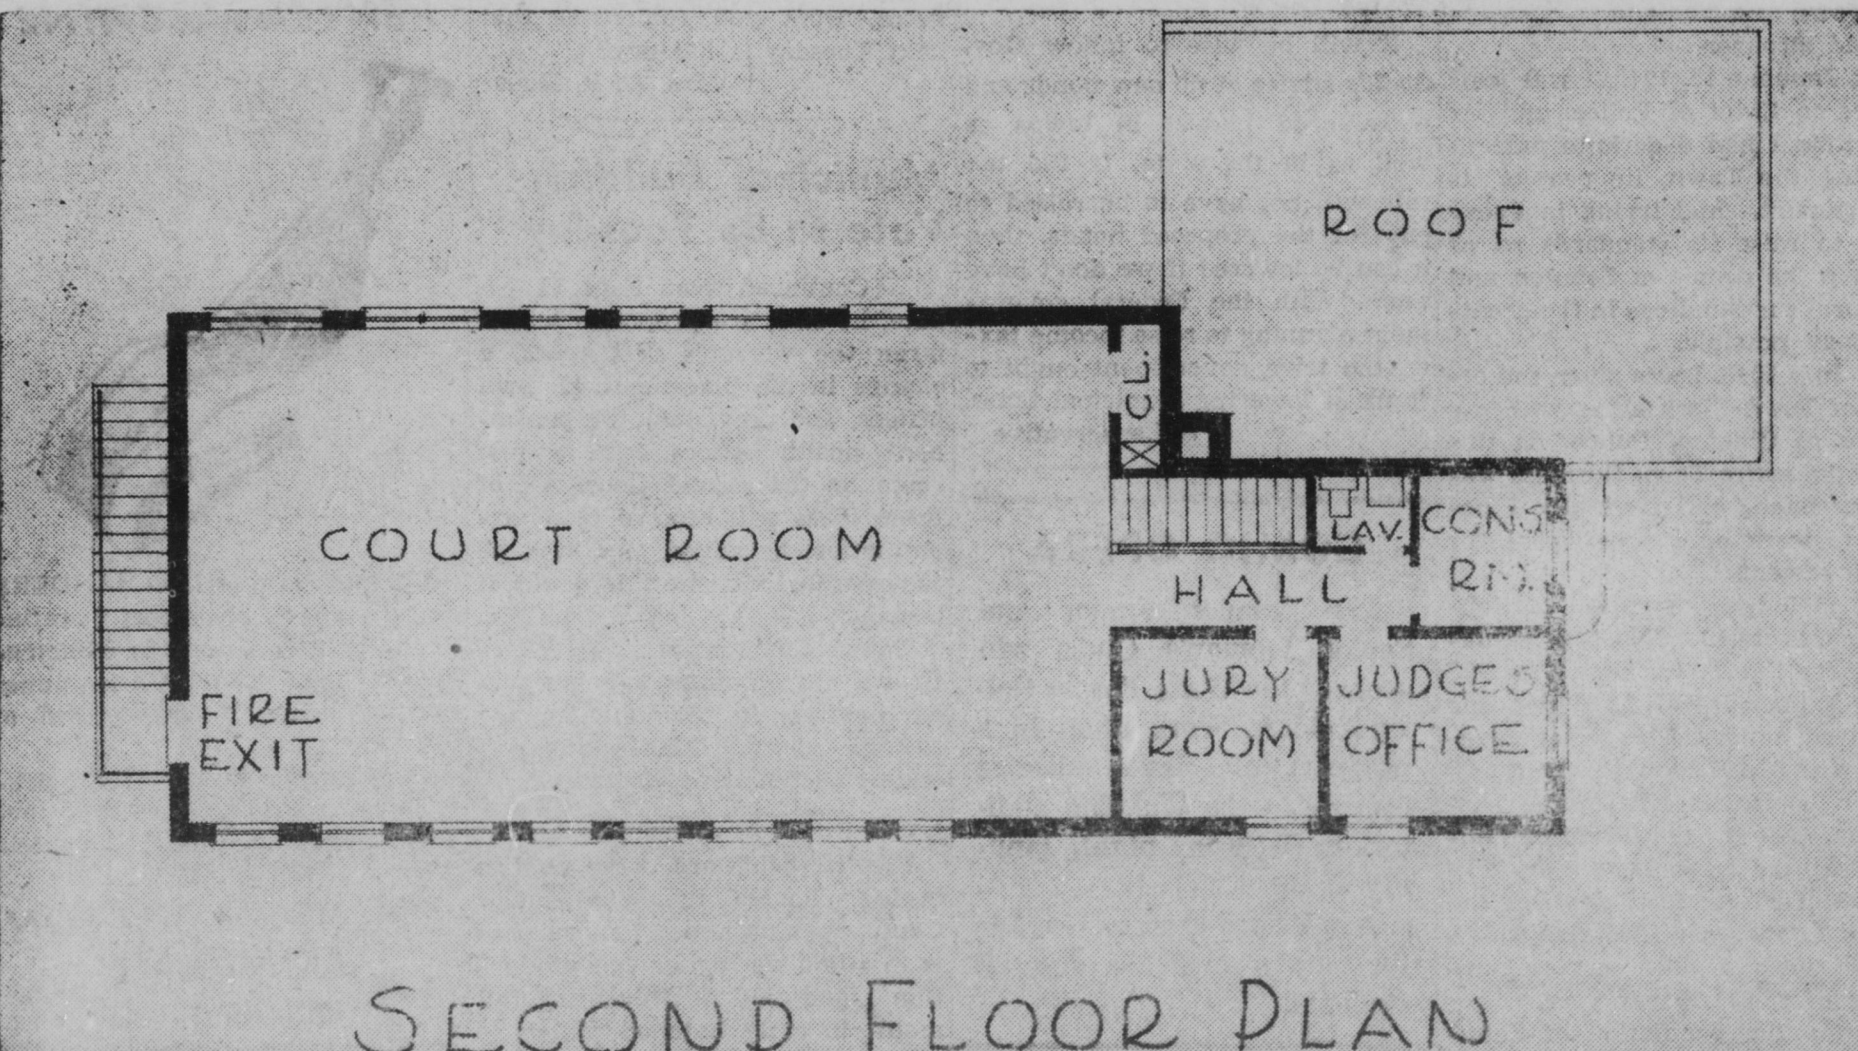

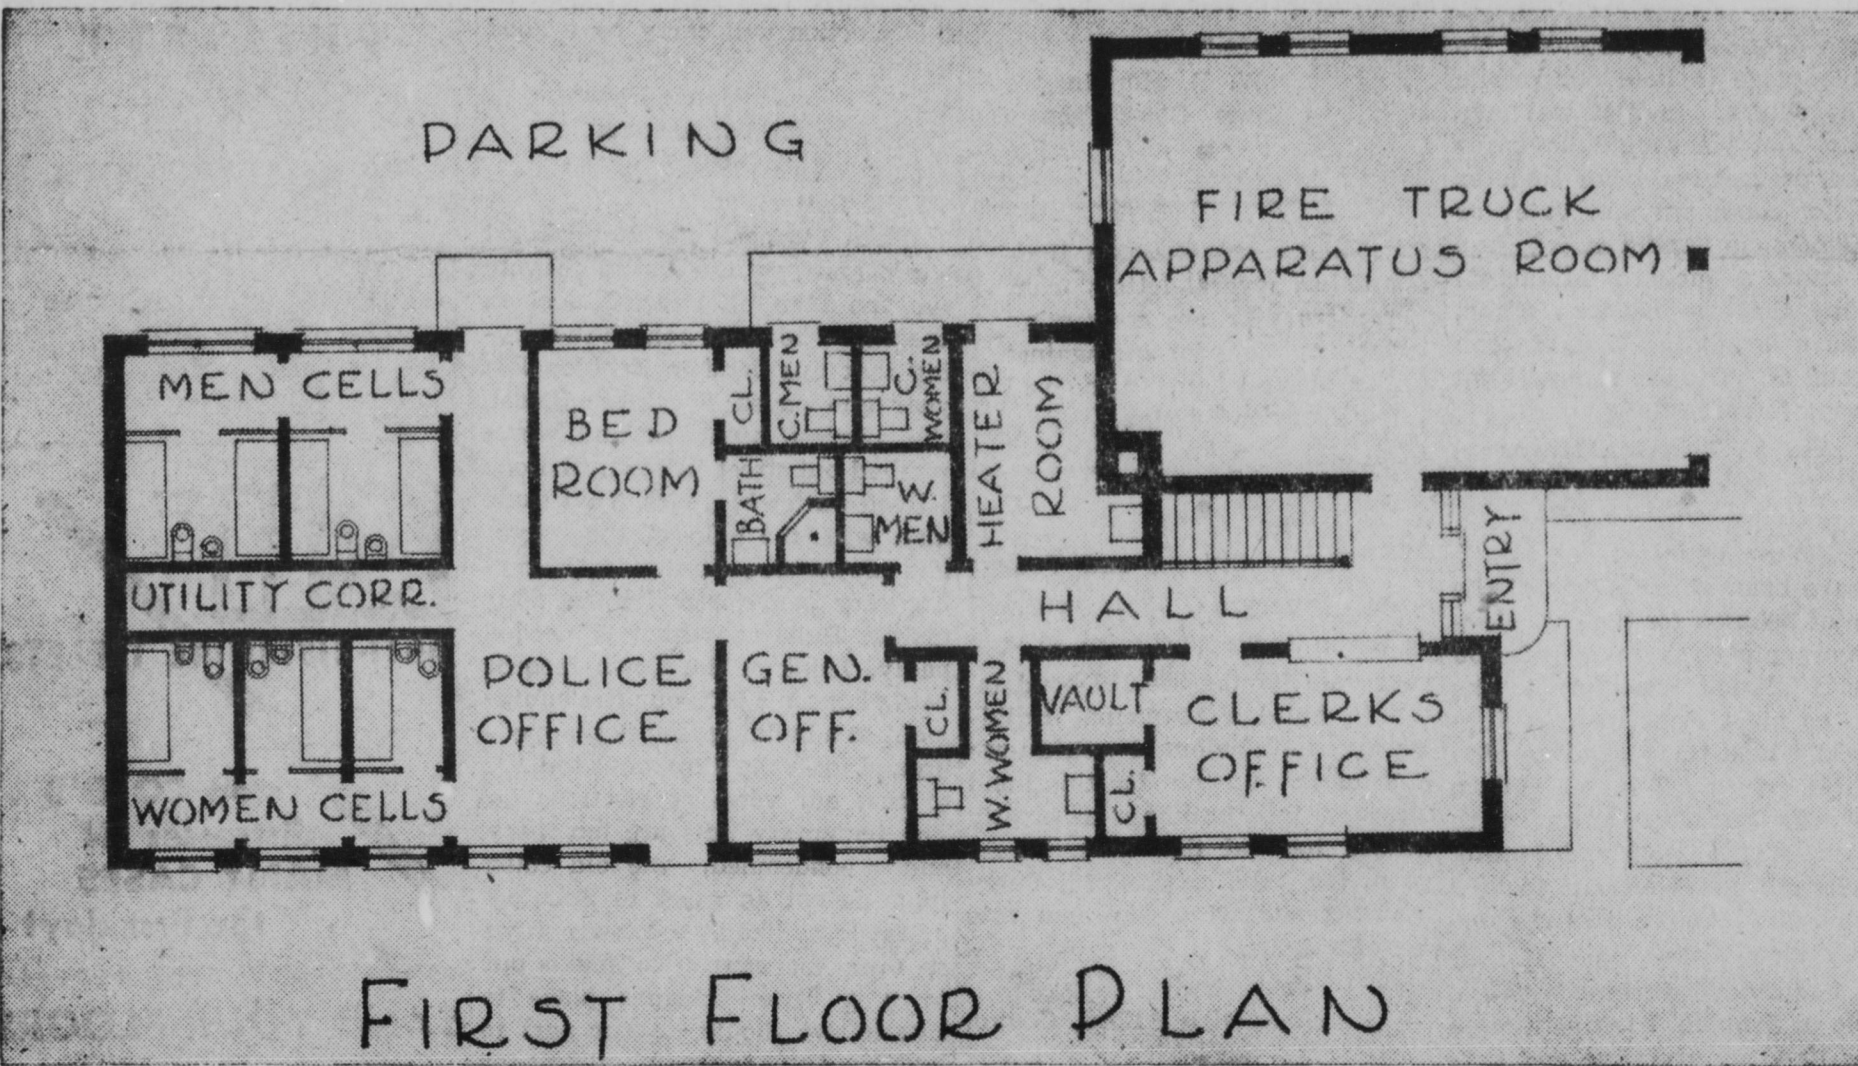

Town manager, Willie B. Hopkins, answering requests for changes to be made in the proposed plans, said that the floor plans being shown to voters are not final, and changes may be incorporated before the final prints are drawn to be submitted for construction bids. Among the changes that have been made to him to
