Scott Summers

Much talk has been made about the "independence" of this legislature, how it could not be bulldozed by Governor Kerr Scott and how it had a mind of its own.

Most of this conversation has come from the extreme conservative, or anti-Scott forces.

These folks — sitting in the saddle at the beginning of the 1951 General Assembly some four weeks ago — suddenly have discovered that "independence" is a two-edged sword that is likely to cut their own throats.

These folks also have discovered that the Legislature is divided into three parts: (1) the ultra-conservative, hold-the-line, no new taxes—no new spending group that includes the anti-Scott boys — although all of this group is by no means anti-administration despite the fact that the leaders generally are "agin-Scotters"; (2) the "down-the-line" supporters of Scott who, if anything, think he was too conservative in his recommendations to the Legislature; and (3) the lawmakers who are not on either side but are considering each individual measure with an open mind, trying to do what is best for North Carolina.

Fortunately, the latter group is the largest. Incidentally, most of the freshmen senators and representatives fall into this category. They have not lined up on either side, although they are resentful of the ramrodding attempts of the ultra-conservative group — particularly as evidenced in the stacking of committees — and at

Awards for Driving Given at Wakelon

Safety awards for excellent driving last year were presented to four Wakelon school bus drivers yesterday afternoon by Principal W. R. Whittenton.

Receiving the awards were Rebecca Honeycutt, Carlton Blackley, Ronald Fowler, and Wayne Bobbitt.

One graduate, Roscoe Perry, will receive the award through the mails.

Japanese Educators Visit Wakelon Wednesday; Take Part in Program

Three prominent Japanese educators, visiting schools in the United States to gain ideas to take back to Japan, spent all day Wednesday at Wakelon, and took part in the assembly program. The visitors were accompanied by Mrs. Gladys Barnes, high school supervisor for Wake County.

The visitors were Masumi Yuki, English teacher in Otsu High School, Otsu, Shigaken, Japan; Taira Takeda, City Librarian in Yokosuka; and Masai Watanabe, City Librarian in Niigata Prefectural Library in Niigata-Shi, Japan.

Wakelon was recommended by the State Department for inspection by the Japanese teachers.

While in the United States, the three Japanese visitors have inspected schools in Chicago, Washington, D. C., Richmond, Williamsburg, Va., and Raleigh. They will see the schools in Durham and Chapel Hill before returning home.

Plans Are Explained For Saturday Drill

Nearly fifteen promotions will be announced at the drill Monday night for men of Battery A, 113 Field Artillery Battalion, WO Clifford Gilliam, unit administrator, stated yesterday. The promotions were effective February 1, and include rating increases to Private First Class, Corporal, Sergeant, and Sergeant First Class.

The men will be briefed Monday night on the special drill to be conducted Saturday afternoon, February 10.

Mr. J. G. Bunn has given permission for the battery to use the Zebulon air port for the field training. The unit will depart from the armory at 1:30 Saturday afternoon and will return about 5 o'clock.

Following the drill, the battery mess section will serve a chicken barbecue dinner to the Guardsmen.

First Sergeant Sidney Holmes urged men interested in the National Guard to enlist now, rather than wait.

"The National Guard provides valuable experience, good pay, and credit toward retirement," the veteran top kick said, "and promotions are awarded as fast as a man can qualify!"

As an example of the advancement possible to men in the Guard, Sergeant Holmes cited the case of Lt. Dave Finch, assistant executive.

At the regular evening worship service held at 7:30 o'clock, the Lord's Supper will be observed. The Girls Choir, under the leadership of Miss Elizabeth Salmon, Minister of Music, will sing the anthem "Communion Hymn" by Pickens.

The Board of Deacons will meet immediately following the evening worship service.

Zebulon Short of Goal of $1,000 In 1951 March of Dimes Campaign

Final reports of January 31 failed to bring the total collected in this community for the March of Dimes up to the goal of $1,000, chairman Ed Hales said yesterday. He urged solicitors to renew their efforts to gather contributions so that Zebulon can give its share of the Wake County total.

The total yesterday was over $600, the chairman said, but some gifts to the drive had not been received. However these were not expected to be enough to equal last year's total of over $800.

In an effort to achieve the $1,000 goal, the local chairman is extending the final date of the campaign so that those who have not been contacted by solicitors can mail their contributions. On the front page of this issue of the Record is a coupon which may be used so that credit for contributions may be given.

Saturday night a double-header basketball game will be played in the Wakelon gymnasium with all receipts being contributed to the fight against infantile paralysis. The Bullpups will meet a teen-age team from Knightdale and the Battery A Cannoneers will play the Knightdale All-Stars.

Receptacles placed in stores in Zebulon and Pilot have not been collected, and the money from these small banks will help reach

The preliminary will be staged with women 30 to 40 years old participating, and the second game will feature veteran players from each community 40 years and older.

The Club House remains open from 6 to 9 p.m. each Wednesday night for student activities. Formal class periods begin at 7 p.m. and continue until 9 p.m.

Professor Reynolds stated Wednesday night that "anyone with a desire to draw can learn through instructions given at these classes."

FARM BUREAU

A special meeting of the Directors of the Zebulon Farm Bureau will be held tonight in Ed Ellington's office at Wakelon School, President Robert Ed Horton said yesterday. Plans for the general meeting February 12 will be made.

Sunday Night Fire Causes Heavy Loss of Stock, Buildings, Feeds

G. Haywood Scarborough suffered unestimated financial loss on Sunday night around 9 o'clock when fire destroyed six buildings, farm equipment, feeds, and six cows at Edgemont Farm, between Wendell and Raleigh.

Of undetermined origin, the fire was first discovered by James Sledge, who lives near and is credited with the rescue of 12 or more cattle that were confined also for the night in the two-story cattle and feed barn.

Five cows and a registered White-Faced Hereford bull weighing 1,200 pounds were unable to get out of the raging fire that was speeded by unusually strong winds on Sunday night.

Five outbuildings containing feeds, 10,000 tobacco sticks, plant bed covering, hand and mechanical farm equipment were consumed by the blaze.

The Zebulon Fire Department responded to the emergency but was unable to curb the wind-fanned fire.
