NEW AMERICAN SPORTS CAR

Just in case we have any readers who have so much money they are having trouble spending same, we are running this photograph of what is described to us as "America's finest sports car." It is called the Muntz Jet, and is manufactured by TV Engineer Earl Muntz. It accelerates from 0 to 80 miles per hour in 8 seconds, and cruises easily at 125 miles per hour with a 156-hp Lincoln V-8 engine. Oh, yes—we almost forgot: the price is $5500 plus taxes and extras. (We guess the extras come pretty high, since they include such items as built-in electric refrigerators!)

Over Wake Forest way the Royal Cotton Mill is having a little labor trouble. State Democratic Party Chairman Everette Jordan is the mill's president, and U. S. Senator Willis Smith is a major stockholder.

This strike doesn't seem to be tied in with the general textile upheaval throughout North Carolina and the South, other than the fact that the union is the same national outfit — T. W. U. A. This trouble started some months before the Southwide outbreak. The Royal Cotton Mill workers had an election and voted for the union to represent them. Later the National Labor Relations Board ordered the management to negotiate with the union. Up to now there has been little negotiating and no meeting of minds.

Hit National Headlines

This strike hit the headlines over the weekend with an outbreak of shooting. Strikers blame it on non-strikers. Non-strikers blame it on strikers.

You would think that Senator Smith — who made much of his love for the working man in his successful campaign last Spring—would be anxious to see the affair settled. It is obvious that a good mediator might help.

So, why wouldn't it be a good idea for Party Chairman-Mill President Jordan — who piously proclaimed his neutrality in the senatorial election — to ask that that well-known labor-management mediator, Dr. Frank Graham, be sent to Wake Forest to see if he can't help them work out a solution?

Is It a Coincidence?

Could it be a coincidence that the string of strikers and labor unrest throughout the State — amply backed by T. W. U. A.'s million dollar organizing war kit — comes at a time when North Carolina textile manufacturers have received government orders totaling more than $6,600,000?

A Limit of $1500

For some time now there has been a limit of $1,500 that the State may pay for an automobile without authorization from the Governor and the Council of State. But last week's neatest trick was the way Col. Landon C. Rosser talked the Council of State into upping the limit to $1,650 each for up to 200 cars.

It seems that the colonel felt

Waddell Made It!

Waddell Gay's name was left off the Honor Roll for Mrs. Page's grade. Waddell has made the Honor Roll every time, and we regret that his name was not included.

SOFTBALL

A special meeting will be held Monday night, May 21, after the P. T. A. assembly, of all softball and volleyball managers in the Wakelton School auditorium. Recreation Director Herb Appenzeller stated that May 21 is the deadline for entries in each league.

Wendell Women Hurt in Accident Following Program at Schoolhouse

Three local women were injured on Tuesday night on the Wendell School grounds when an automobile was accidentally started in reverse after the musical recital of school students.

Little Miss Maloy Richardson started the automobile motor from a parked position and the car ran backward dragging her mother, Mrs. Joe W. Richardson, and knocking Mrs. H. W. Underhill and Mrs. George Vaughan to the ground.

The vehicle was stopped only by hitting a car waiting at the drive way to enter Highway No. 64 in front of the school.

Mrs. Richardson received a shoulder laceration requiring several stitches to close, shock and contusions. Mrs. Underhill and Mrs. Vaughan suffered from shock and bruises.

The three women were ready to enter the car when the vehicle moved in reverse with the doors open that felled them.

Extension Service Announces New Farm Plans Now Ready for Public

Farmers who want practical help with building problems can obtain free blueprints and other assistance from county farm and home agents of the State College Extension Service.

This is pointed out by H. M. Ellis, extension agricultural engineer, who says many Tar Heel citizens may not know about this service.

Some 500 sets of plans for practically all types of farm buildings, including dwellings, are available. Upon request, the agents will show actual construction drawings and assist the farmer in choosing the type of building best suited to his needs.

Types of structure included in the list are buildings for poultry, swine, sheep, beef cattle, dairy cattle, tobacco, grain, and sweet potatoes. In the preparation of each type, specialists in that field were called upon for help in the functional design. Agricultural engineers then prepared the drawings with the aim of making each building as convenient, economical, and attractive as possible.

The plans include blueprints for some 30 or more types of farm homes. All were prepared with the help of home management specialists.

Ellis says about 12,000 plans of all types were distributed last year. Persons desiring copies of any of the drawings may obtain them from the local farm agent or home agent.
