Seen and Heard

The powers of our classified advertising continue to amaze us. Two weeks ago Saturday, Harry Lee Bissette brought in an advertisement of a car he had for sale. "Run it two times," he told us. Two hours later he was back in to tell us that the car had been sold.

Yesterday morning John Terry came in to advertise for two lost mules. Mrs. Ollie Pearce took the advertisement. Just as we were getting ready to set it up for today's paper, Mr. Terry came back in to tell us he had found the mules.

It pays to advertise.

Vance Brown, our good friend and chief money-lender at Peoples Bank, was telling of a conversation he had with two Carolina students who rode with him from Raleigh. Neither of the students had been in service, but both expected to be called, having passed the I. Q. exam for deferment by the skin of their collective teeth.

One of the students, obviously the ambitious type, emphatically stated that he did not mind going into service, but he didn't want to enter as a recruit, or private, "because they don't get enough pay to do anything on."

"When I go in," he declared, "I think I'll go in as a lieutenant, or captain, or major. Then I'll have enough money to go out on Saturday night and have a good time and slay the women!"

A budget is when the money runs out before the month does.

This happened at Wakelon, we are told.

"What," asked Coach Jim Fish of one of his history students, "are the three words used most by students?"

"I don't know," replied the sweet young thing.

"That's absolutely correct," Coach Jim exclaimed.

"It's for a special occasion," a gentleman told Haywood Jones when he was selecting a gift at the drug store yesterday. "My wife's celebrating the third anniversary of her twenty-ninth birthday."

People who know it all never get wise to themselves.

Armstrong Cannady, chairman of the Jr. Board of Deacons at the Baptist Church, was happy over the prospect of the Board having a hamburger fry at Lake Mirl. "There's something exciting about being out at night, in the woods, with the trees overhead."

"That doesn't sound like a married man," murmured one of the male members of the Board.

Industrial Meeting

In an effort to promote the industrial development in Wake County a special meeting will be held in the new offices of the Raleigh Chamber of Commerce where representatives of the Raleigh, Fuquay Springs, Wendell and Zebulon Chambers of Commerce will discuss the ways and means of bringing industries to the county.

Representing Zebulon at the meeting will be Mayor Worth Hinton, President Frank Wall of the Zebulon Chamber of Commerce, and Pat Farmer, member of the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce.

Rotary Club Hears Talk, Sees New Film on Guard

The important part played by the National Guard in the defense of the nation and the welfare of the local communities over the country was described for the members of the Rotary Club Friday night. Jack Potter, executive officer of the Zebulon unit of the National Guard, conducted the program, which included a moving picture, "Your National Guard," and a talk by Battery Commander Barrie Davis.

The exceptional record of the National Guard in World War II was related in the film. National Guard Divisions comprised 40 percent of the armed forces overseas, and these divisions spent more time in combat than all the rest of the armed forces combined.

In time of national emergency the National Guard forms a ready force immediately available for service. The citizen-soldiers, who have a history older than any other branch of the armed services, spend one night a week and 15 days in the summer in intensive training.

The local unit payroll for the year ending September 30 amounted to nearly $25,000, according to the battery commander. He stated that all of this except the salaries of the two full-time employees is the result of spare-time training by the Guardsmen.

During the business session, Dr. L. M. Massey urged the Rotarians to take advantage of the cancer clinic in Raleigh in order that possible cancer may be detected in the early curable stages.

Ferd Davis, who underwent a successful operation for cancer on his face a year ago, stressed the importance of early detection of cancer.

Included in the cast are Mary Lea Perry, Donald Boone, Nancy Hailey, Sally Blackwell, Olga Lea Wall, Charles Rogers, Jean Perry, Wesley Carroll, Vanciel Belvins, and Rupert Hagwood.

Committees working for the production are: advertisement, DeLores Scarborough, Nellie Tant, Cleo Wall, Mildred Alford, and Emogene Keith; make-up, Jimmy Johnson, Roy Frazier, Frances McDade, and Lillian Ann Eddins; back stage assistant, Roy Frazier.

A small admission will be charged.

Local Scouts Meet On Thursday Night

Troop officers and patrol leaders will be elected at the Scout meeting Thursday night in the Boy Scout Hut, when the Scouts will continue their reorganization in preparation for applying for a renewal of their charter.

Included in the Troop officers to be named are the Senior Patrol Leader and the Troop Scribe.

Patrols will have up to seven members, and patrol officers will include a leader and assistant leader.

At the meeting held last week Wake County Executive Brookshire entertained the Scouts with a knot-tying stunt and gave instruction in trying the basic Scout knots. Rotarians Howard Beck and Barrie Davis were visitors.

Maybe You Have Diabetes—Wake Doctors Will Help You to Find Out

There are 1,400 persons suffering from diabetes in Wake County who do not know they have the disease, according to Dr. Ben Thomas, and the physicians of Wake County this week are conducting a campaign to discover these cases early in order to prevent a severe form of the disease.

From November 12 to November 17 free tests for diabetes will be given in Wake County by the physicians.

All that is necessary for the examination is a urine specimen taken one or two hours after eating. The specimen should be placed in a one or two-ounce bottle that has been thoroughly washed and scalded in boiling water for a few minutes.

Label the bottle with name, age, address, and family doctor's name, and take it to the doctor's office or leave it at the Wakelon Drug Company or Zebulon Drug Company.

Results of the examination will be given by mail as soon as possible, Dr. Thomas said.

The test is free and the diabetes detection drive is sponsored by the American Diabetes Association, with the Wake County physicians cooperating.
