Pastures Planted Vic Vet says By Wake Farmers Reach High Point

G. L. Winchester Walter Lewis sowed twenty acres of pasture near Morrisville the first week in September. He obtained a perfect stand and it is now three to five inches tall. He can possibly start grazing it late next spring. It usually pays to sow early following good fertilization and liming. He used a cultipacker seeder attachment.

M. C. Todd of Wendell has recently constructed a pond and cleared land of honeysuckle, etc., above the pond. This will be sown in lespedeza in the spring, disked in the fall, and sown in pasture. This land, while fertile, was somewhat wet and not well suited to growing of row crops.

James P. Weaver of Fuquay Springs has recently cleared some additional land so as to have enough land to rotate his tobacco acreage. The old terraces have been thrown down and two meadows constructed. Mr. Weaver, along with many other farmers, is convinced that rotations offer the best solutions to our disease and insect damage in tobacco.

E. H. Clark of Fuquay Springs is planning a bicolor lespedeza color lespedeza is one of our best sources of food for birds.
