"JIM, DID YOU SEE OUR AD?"

No, Jim isn't an employee of CP&L Co., nor is his wife, but they own a few shares of CP&L Co. stock. That's why a CP&L Co. advertisement becomes their advertisement. They have a direct interest in the company over whose signature it appears.

Carolina Power & Light Company is owned by more than 32,000 people like Mr. and Mrs. "Jim"—average people who have put their savings in a company which is doing an above-average job in building a Finer Carolina. The biggest stockholder in the lot owns less than 2 per cent of the total shares. About one-third of the CP&L Co. stockholders live in the Carolinas.
