NIXON FUND SURPRISES KEFAUVER

Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, one of the leading candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination this year and the leading exponent of honesty in government, is pictured with his wife as they returned from a trip to Europe. Senator Kefauver, who is now campaigning for his fellow Democrat, Governor Stevenson, expressed himself as being "surprised" at Senator Richard Nixon's so-called expense account. Senator Nixon's critics have attacked his secret account as a "slush fund." Kefauver, who is urging support of the straight Democratic ticket this fall, is the author of a series of articles on corruption in government and how to fight it, which appeared in the Record.

Uncle Ferd's Almanac

Today is not court day in Zebulon, but October 14th is the anniversary of some famous trials. The trial of Mary Queen of Scots, whose beauty, according to the court records, was exceeded only by her perfidy, went on trial at Fotheringay Castle 366 years ago today, charged with treason.

Mary's crime was to aid and abet in a plot to murder Queen Elizabeth, the alleged virgin for whom the state to our north is named.

She was probably guiltier than the colored boy in the Will Wiggs watermelon patch, but she was so pretty that they just couldn't find her guilty in open court.

"She looks like an angel," one of the judges remarked.

Community Chest Plans Being Made

Inspection Tonight For Guard Battery

Last night was filled with work for the members of Battery A, the crack artillery unit stationed in Zebulon, and the National Guardsmen made final preparation for the visit of the Third Army Inspector General today. The once-a-year visit is one of the most important inspections given the unit.

During the day the inspector will check all records and equipment belonging to Battery A. Tonight he will observe classroom instruction.

Inspection in Ranks

The first hour of tonight's drill will be occupied by an inspection of the men in ranks. The men will be questioned to determine their knowledge of basic army subjects and their ability to do their assigned jobs in the battery.

Following the drill, the officers and top non-coms of the battery will hear the Inspector General give a critique of the unit. Following his critique, the grade given the unit will be explained.
