We, Too, Shall Live Again

These words were written for the melody, "Londonderry Air," by Bessie Farmer Davis and were sung first ten years ago during the memorial service for her eldest son, Lt. Eric Farmer Davis, who was killed in battle in the Philippine Islands. The verses express perfectly the confidence with which she faced life and death.

When comes the time that days on earth are ended
And swift the soul to realms afar must go,
No fear should with the last farewells be blended;
No hearts need break; no bitter tears need flow.
For One there is who trod the way before us;
Laid down His life in more than mortal pain;
Who conquered death and reigns in heaven victorious.
Because He died and rose we, too, shall live again.

Beyond the darkness shines the Light Eternal;
Beyond the night a day that shall not cease;
No pain is there, but bliss that is supernal;
No strife is there, but everlasting peace.
Eye hath not seen, nor hath it entered ever
Into man's heart the glories there in store;
But this we know: that naught His love can sever;
And that His own shall be with Him forevermore.

Guard Members Gather in Chill

The chill winter winds picked up last Monday night, reminding members of Zebulon's National Guard unit that Battery A is in for a rough time during the cold months of November through March because of the lack of classroom space and heating facilities. The limited armory space, which was rated unsatisfactory by the Inspector General last week, severely handicaps the training of the Guardsmen.

Two classes, usually held outdoors during good weather, will be moved indoors during cold weather, according to Capt. Barrie Davis, even though they will interfere with other scheduled classes.

Many Classes

Each week during the second hour of training, seven to eight classes are in progress making it necessary to conduct three classes in the storage room, two in the old Recorder's Court room, one in the toilet, and one in the Scout hut.

"With proper facilities," the battery commander told the Guardsmen last Monday night, "we will have little trouble achieving a superior rating on our annual inspection."

Enlistments are still being accepted by Battery A, according to Unit Administrator Kenneth Hopkins, with a special invitation extended to young men between the ages of 17 and 18½ years.

Joins Fraternity

The field day is being sponsored by The Henderson Chamber of Commerce, and all materials, equipment, and labor will be furnished free of charge by local firms.

Farm Plans

The farmer agrees to carry out the plan as near as he can.
