Five County Fair Open This Week

Mrs. Ruric Gill of Zebulon is pictured at the left with some of the canned goods which she is entering, along with other residents of the five counties comprising the Five County Fair area, in the local competition this year.

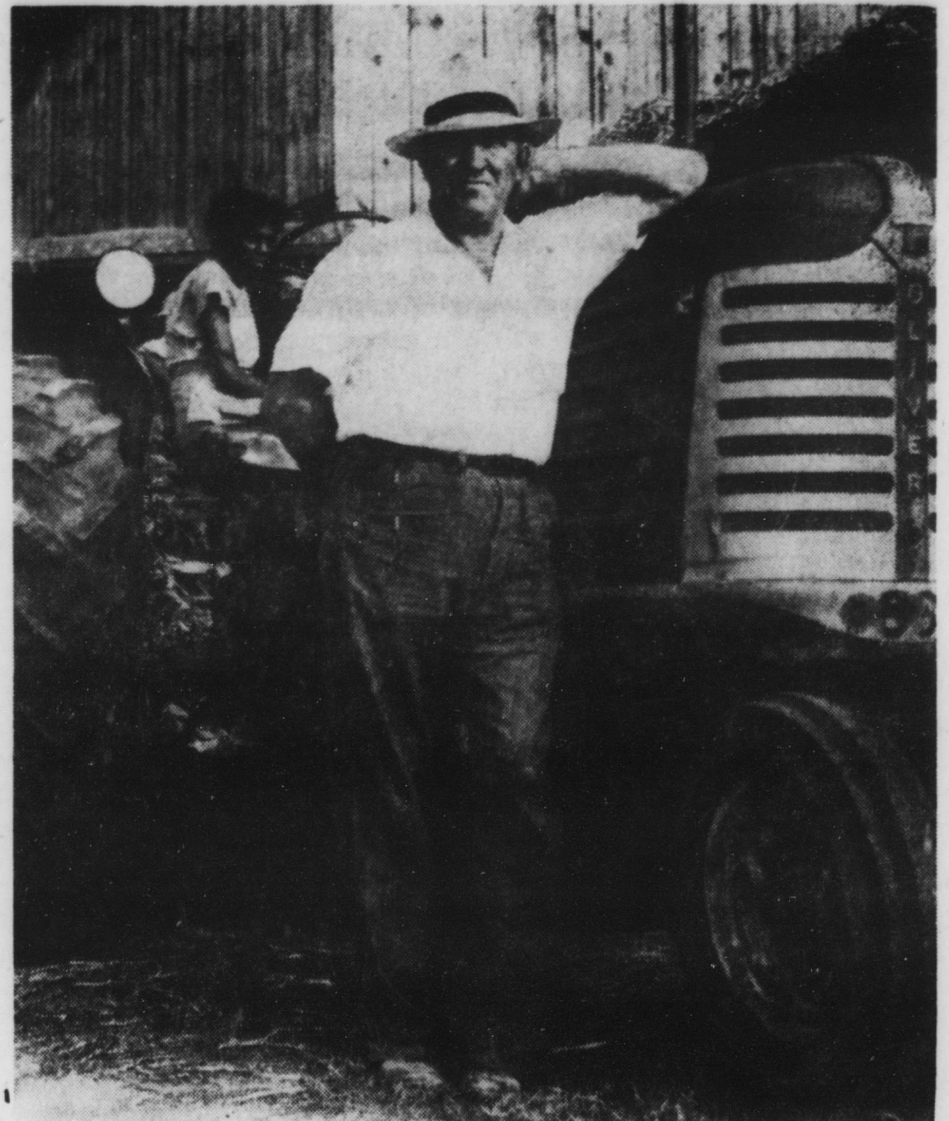

Yesterday was entry day at the Five County Fair, and Manager Wade Privette reports good entries despite the extremely dry growing season this year.

Today is Visiting Day at the fair, and tomorrow is Colored People's Day. School children will be admitted free at the gate tomorrow afternoon.

Thursday is Farmers' Day, and Saturday has been designated Everybody's Day. Friday will be the big day for white school children, when they will be admitted free (at the gate) during the afternoon.

The weather has been extremely favorable for the event thus far. Yesterday dawned fair and clear after some 3 inches of rain fell during the weekend, and the management is anticipating record crowds during the balance of this week. Dumont Shows are on the midway.

TWO BACKERS OF RURAL FIRE TRUCK

Two of the many workers who helped make the idea of a rural fire truck for Zebulon become a reality are pictured here. Dewey Massey, president of the Zebulon Farm Bureau, a sponsoring organization for the truck, is shown on a farm job above. Ed Hales, proprietor of Hales Farm Supply Co., right, has served as chairman of the Zebulon Fire Truck Committee in 1953. The purchase of the rural fire truck has been one of the Fire Truck projects this year.

The fire truck is scheduled to arrive this week, after several delays on the part of the manufacturer. Arrival of the unit here will be noted in a brief ceremony at the fairgrounds on Saturday afternoon, October 3.

FIRE TRUCK WORKERS, COUNTY AGENT PLAN FOR TRUCK DELIVERY

There was a false alarm before, but it's official this time! The fire truck recently purchased by the Zebulon Rural Fire Department will be delivered this week, and will be accepted by President M. L. Hagwood on behalf of the fire department's members in ceremonies planned for Saturday, October 3, at 4:00 p.m., at the Five County Fair grounds. The truck will be on display for several hours at the fair following the brief ceremony of acceptance. Shown above, planning for an earlier delivery of the fire truck, are, left to right, M. L. Hagwood, Wake County Agent, and Robert Ed Horton, chairman of the Fire Truck project.

Air Force Major Talks At Zebulon Rotary Club

Major Albert Karnell, chaplain at Stallings Air Force Base, Kinston, spoke to the Zebulon Rotary Club last Friday night on the subject of Asian problems, and the probable future of this nation if America does not awaken to its present perilous situation.

Chaplain Karnell, introduced by Aaron Lowery and brought to Zebulon by Ted Davis, Stallings public relations director, captured his audience completely, and held their attention while he pointed out specific things being done the wrong way by this country, and suggested specific remedies.

The world traveler, a Presbyterian minister in civil life, told the Rotarians that even stringent corrective measures would avail our country nothing, if they were not accompanied by a simultaneous spiritual effort.

During the business session the Rotarians voted to entertain their wives and the Wake County teachers at a dinner meeting next month.
