BAPTIST CHOIR TO PRESENT EASTER CANTATA

The choir of the Zebulon Baptist Church will present "Adoremus Te" (We Adore Thee), an Easter Cantata by Joseph Clokey, on Easter Sunday evening at 8 o'clock in the church sanctuary. Clokey is a contemporary American composer who has written much sacred music that is interesting and appealing. The organist-conductor for the cantata will be Paul Robinson. Everyone in the community is cordially invited to come share in this experience of joy in the risen Christ.

More Candidates Mean More Interest by Voters

Candidates for local elective offices became more numerous this week, producing a corresponding increase in township politics. Irby D. Gill and A. R. House both filed as candidates for judge of the Zebulon Recorder's Court on Monday, April 12, and James Richardson announced his candidacy for constable of Little River Township this week, bringing to four the number seeking the constable's post.

CANDIDATE

James Poyner

Mr. Poyner, a Raleigh attorney, is a candidate for the state senate from Wake County. At present he is unopposed.

Richardson brought the announced candidates for constable to four, Eddie Martin, Troy Watkins, and Raymond Perry having announced for the office earlier. Prospective candidates have through Saturday, April 17, to file.

Both House and Gill have had experience as recorders, Judge Gill having served for several years in the Zebulon court. Mr. House served for several years as judge of the Apex recorders court, resigning that office to become judge of the local court. He resigned as Zebulon recorder to run for the state legislature, and later served as solicitor of the local court until succeeded a year ago by Foster D. Finch.

Bob Emanuel, young Raleigh attorney who has served as an assistant in the attorney general's office, is known to have been considering filing for the local recorder's position, having been urged by some local people to file, but is believed to have decided not to engage in what is presently a strictly local race.

Mr. House issued a statement (See POLITICS, Page 6)

Wake County Juniors Participate In Career Guidance Day Programs

Approximately 600 Juniors from the ten Wake County High Schools attended the second annual Occupational Guidance Days. Juniors from Knightdale, Rolesville, Wake Forest, Wakelon and Wendell attended conferences at Rolesville, April 13 and Juniors from Apex, Cary, Fuquay Springs, Garner and Millbrook met at Fuquay Springs, April 14.

Leaders in 39 professions and vocations held conferences with students interested in their respective work as possible careers. In each group a student chairman and a counselor assisted the consultant.

Coffee hour was held at the Home Economics' Buildings for the speakers. Mothers of the Juniors were hostesses.

The program in each school began at 9:30 in the auditorium with the Rolesville Glee Club and Fuquay Springs Band and Glee Club presenting musical programs.

Mr. Gilbert Davis, principal of the Rolesville High School, and Mr. E. N. Farnell, principal of Fuquay Springs School, welcomed the Juniors and visitors.

Mr. Randolph Benton, Supt. of Wake County Schools gave the invocation and Mr. Fred A. Smith, Asst. School Supt., introduced the speakers.

Dr. J. Glenn Blackburn, Chaplain of Wake Forest College and pastor of the Baptist Church and Mr. Robert B. House, Chancellor of the University of North Carolina, were guest speakers.

At the close of the assembly period there followed well-planned (See JUNIORS, Page 6)

FOR JUDGE

Irby D. Gill
Incumbent

Judge Gill, the incumbent of the Zebulon recorders court, is a candidate to succeed himself, having announced his candidacy this week. Both he and A. R. House, his opponent, filed Monday.

A. R. House
Challenger

Mr. House, a Zebulon attorney, is a candidate for judge of the local recorders court. He has held this office previously, as well as having served as solicitor of the same court.

Talent Night Winners Announced at Theatre

Talent night winners this week at Wakelon Theatre in Zebulon were Leonard Lewis and Ike Strickland in first place; Jean Hall of Route 3, Spring Hope, in second; and the Little River Rambler of Wake Forest in third.

Miss Zebulon Contest to Be Staged Next Friday Night In National Guard Armory

Three Groups Join to Sponsor Contest, Dance for First Time Here; Seven Lovely Girls Already Entered in Pageant

The loveliest and most talented girls in the community will compete on Friday night, April 23, for the title of Miss Zebulon and the honor of representing the community in the Miss Wake County Pageant next month. The competition will begin at 8 o'clock in the evening in the National Guard armory here.

The contest is sponsored jointly by the Zebulon Junior Woman's Club, the Carmen Flowers Garden Club, and the local unit of the National Guard.

Contestants will be graded on both talent and beauty, with judges scoring them on separate score sheets. The two contestants awarded the largest number of points will be entered in the Miss Wake County Pageant.

The Miss Wake County Pageant is a stepping stone toward the Miss America Pageant held annually at Atlantic City.

According to Mrs. Wilmer Edkins, entrant chairman for the Junior Woman's Club, seven contestants already have agreed to enter the local contest.

These include Joanne Jones, Shirley Rogers, Joyce Hales, Tootie Oakley, Geraldine Phillips, Hazel (See COURT, Page 6)

RESIGNS

W. R. Whittenton

After four years as head of Wakelon School, Mr. Whittenton this week announced his resignation. He succeeded Fred Smith, now assistant superintendent of Wake County Schools.

Methodists Plan Revival Services

The Easter service at Zebulon Methodist Church at 8 p. m., next Sunday night will also serve as the beginning of the annual revival or preaching mission. Dr. C. D. Barclift, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church in Durham, will be the speaker for these services and will bring his first message on Sunday night. The services will continue at 8 p. m. each night through Friday night. It is expected that these services will mark the outstanding week of the year in the work of the local Methodist Church. A cordial invitation is extended to all who feel the need of hearing the gospel forcefully and earnestly presented.

Easter Service Is Set for Tonight

The annual union Good Friday service between the Baptist and Methodist Churches in Zebulon will be held on Friday night at 8 p. m., in the Methodist Church. Rev. Bev. A. Asbury will bring the message for this sacred observance and Rev. S. E. Mercer will lead the service. The service presents an excellent opportunity for community wide Christian fellowship as well as spiritual growth.

Judge Gill Takes Notice of Board's Suggestion He Clear Court Docket

An order was entered in every case outstanding in the Zebulon Recorders Court Wednesday, after Judge Irby D. Gill had taken official notice of a resolution passed by the Zebulon Board of Commissioners on April 5, calling for speedier dispensation of justice in the local court.

Judge Gill, apparently believing that the request was motivated by political considerations, made no statement from the bench concerning motives, but ordered that every case on which the state was ready to proceed be tried at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

When not sitting in his capacity as judge and jury, however, the judge was considerably more outspoken, declaring that he is and has always been ready to try cases whenever the solicitor calls them for trial. He indicated that he believed that the resolution, passed unananimously by the five commissioners who a year ago voted 3-2 to replace A. R. House as solicitor with Foster Finch, was aimed at promoting the candidacy of Mr. House, who opposes Judge Gill in the May primary.

Following Judge Gill's announcement of the request, Ferd Davis, substituting for Solicitor Finch who was in Raleigh in civil litigation, wheeled through the docket, issuing capias for every defendant not present and moving (See BEAUTY, Page 6)
