Russell O. Heater Starts Campaign After Illness

With assurances that he is not a permanent office seeker and regrets that illness has prevented activity on his part for the past weeks, County Commissioner Russell O. Heater got his campaign for reelection into gear this week, ably assisted by fellow citizens of Cary.

Heater, who served as chairman of the Wake County Board of Commissioners, called for a review of his record to see if he merits support. "During my term of office I have sought to the best of my ability to serve the best interests of all the people of Wake County," he said.

The incumbent commissioner is president of Heater Well Company, a director of the National Water Well Drillers Association, a member of the Exchange Club and Chamber of Commerce in Raleigh, past president of the North Carolina State Exchange Club, and a
