CORINTH HOLDERS SENIORS VISIT LURAY CAVERNS

Corinth Holders High School seniors of Zebulon, under the leadership of Principal Ottis C. Freeman, payed a visit to Luray Caverns, Virginia. At the close of school this was one point of interest on their six day trip that also included Washington, D. C., Mt. Vernon, Williamsburg, and Natural Bridge. Luray Caverns is world famous for variety and beauty of formation, the result of the action of water over a period estimated by scientists to exceed 10,000,000 years. This room 264 feet under the surface of the earth was once the scene of a roaring river. The tour is an annual event staged for each graduating class of Corinth Holders School.

85 to 33; Here's One Reason Why

A comparison of the June graduating classes at Wakelon and Shepherd High Schools reveals that the Negro school turned out 85 graduates while the white school gave diplomas to only 33 seniors.

One explanation for the excess of Negro graduates in the local area probably lies in the fact of the far greater area served by Shepherd High School. The Negro school draws students from Zebulon to the Raleigh city limits in a westward direction, according to a statement by Shepherd's principal, J. T. Locke. Mr. Locke also said that the school has students from the Rolesville and Knightdale area, plus enrollments from Hopkins, near the county line.

School buses also bring Negro students from Pilot and the surrounding area to Shepherd School. Mr. Locke said that Negroes from three counties, Johnson, Franklin, and Nash, attend classes at Shepherd School. The enrollment for the preceding year, was reported by Mr. Locke to be "over 800 students."

Wakelon School serves the Little River Township and parts of Marks Creek.
