DIG THAT CRAZY CUTTER

DIG THAT CRAZY, GIANT CUTTER! — The man with tall grass and a dull lawn-mower may envy N. E. Everson this giant brush-cutter. It cuts a 64-inch swath through brush up to 3-inch saplings. It is one of many devices Carolina Power & Light Company uses to keep down the undergrowth along thousands of miles of power lines.

Carl Glover Is Killed In Friday Auto Wreck

Carl Glover, 54, of Zebulon, Route 1, in Wilder's Township was killed instantly in an automobile accident Friday afternoon around 2:15 o'clock, reported Coroner D. J. Underwood of Smithfield.

Glover, who was traveling east on Highway 231 in a 1952 Plymouth, had just left a filling station when he lost control of his car, about a mile northwest of Corinth-Holders School.

The automobile crossed the road to the left, hit an embankment and threw Glover out into the ditch, then turned upside down on the left side of the road about 10 feet away. Glover's neck was broken and he died instantly said Coroner Underwood.

There were no witnesses to the accident and no other occupants in the car. Someone whose name the coroner did not get came along immediately and reported the accident.

Sgt. G. A. Stewart and Patrolman N. H. Parrish and Underwood made the investigation and deemed no inquest necessary.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at 4 p.m. from the Corinth Baptist Church. Services were conducted by the Rev. A. D. Parrish. The body was taken to the church one hour prior to services. Burial was in the church cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, the former Christine O'Neal; a daughter, Mrs. Frank A. Brucia of San Francisco, Calif.; two grandchildren and three brothers, Walter and A. G. Glover, both of Middlesex, Route 1, and Payton Glover of Zebulon, Route 1.

Monthly, General Meetings of WSCS Held During Busy Week in Zebulon

Circle No. I of the Woman's Society of Christian Service had its monthly meeting in the sanctuary of the Zebulon Methodist Church Monday night. Mrs. H. C. Wade, program chairman, presented Miss Rebekah Talbert of the Wakelon Faculty, who was guest speaker.

Miss Talbert spoke on the origin and improvements of tenement housing which is promoted through the WSCS of the Methodist Churches. Mrs. Kitching, chairman of this group, presided. A large number attended.

General Meeting

The General Meeting of WSCS met Wednesday night. Mrs. Andy Jenkins gave an interesting program, "Let Your Light Shine," using the old lamp, the new lamp, the candle and the Bible as symbols. Mrs. M. J. Sexton, president and Spiritual, were outlined. Both of the WSCS, presided. Plans for the coming year, both financial circles attended this meeting. Mrs. Frank Wall is chairman of Circle II. Both Circles have shown much growth and untiring efforts to make this year the best ever.

Receive Degrees

Mrs. Estelle C. Terry and Mrs. Undine D. Wheelless were among the thirty-four seniors who received their Bachelor of Arts degree at Atlantic Christian College Friday night.

Mrs. Terry and Mrs. Wheelless are faculty members of Corinth-Holders and Middlesex schools.

Duke Conference Is Big Success For Methodists

The North Carolina Annual Methodist Youth Fellowship Conference, which was held August 14-19 at Duke University in Durham, was attended by 450 delegates, including Rev. Troy Barrett, pastor of the Zebulon Methodist Church, according to Vaughan Wade, W. Y. F. publicity chairman.

"It was a pleasure to attend the conference and represent the Zebulon MYF," Mr. Wade said after returning from the Durham conference.

"The purpose of the conference was to meet and work together with our state officers, adult directors and counselors in planning the work and programs for the coming year," Mr. Wade continued.

"It was also our duty to discuss and vote on the proposed amendment to the M. Y. F. constitution."

The M. Y. F. publicity chairman said that the 450 delegates attending the conference were composed of high school and college students.

"It was very interesting to work and play with these students from all parts of the state," Mr. Wade said.

"Two of the outstanding speakers for the week were the Rev. A. Parnell Bailey, who is widely known for his morning radio program, 'Daily Bread,' and Mr. Tart Bell of Greensboro," Mr. Wade explained.

"Our own pastor, Rev. Troy J. Barrett, played a big part in planning and organizing the program for the entire week," Mr. Wade (See CONFERENCE, Page 4)

Changes Reported In Tobacco Program

H. D. Godfrey, state administrative officer for Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation, today reminded Tar Heel tobacco growers that there have been several recent changes made in the tobacco allotment and quota program.

Public Law 21, passed by the Congress this year, made several changes in the method of operation of the adjustment program on tobacco for this year and next. One of the most welcome of these changes, Godfrey said, is the one that eliminates credit for overplanting. In previous years, under the Law, it was possible for a farmer to increase his planting history and consequently his tobacco allotment by consistent overplanting and payment of penalty. Public Law 21, he said, eliminates any credit for overplanting for this and future years. (See CHANGES, Page 4)

Masonic Session

There will be an Emergent Communication of Zebulon Masonic Lodge No. 609 tonight at 7:30 for work in the Second Degree.

BRIDE

Mrs. Odell Clinton Tant is the former Miss Alice Faye Faulkner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo Garland Faulkner of Zebulon. Her marriage to Airman Third Class Tant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Tant of Beaufort, took place Aug. 6 in the Zebulon Baptist Parsonage.

Second Polio Shots Are Forthcoming

Schedules are now being worked out to give the second anti-polio vaccine dose to school children whose parents signed a parental request and who received their first injection in April. A. C. Bulla, Wake County health officer, announced Friday.

In the Wake County schools, the schedule will be made beginning Monday, September 12, for all children whose parents have signed a parental request, Dr. Bulla said. The program will continue through that week until all children have received their second injection. Most of the children in this category are in the second and third grades.

Dr. Bulla also reminded parents who have signed parental requests that unless a written request is on file sent from parents to teacher, or a telephone call to Dr. Bulla's office in Raleigh, giving their name and the name of the child, and stating that they definitely do not wish the child to have the second injection, all children who received the first injection in the city and county schools will receive the second.

900 Students Are Expected To Fill Wakelon This Year

Wakelon School in Zebulon will open for the 1955-56 term on Thursday, September 1, with an expected enrollment of about 900 students, Franklin Jones, school principal, announced yesterday.

Returning students will assemble at 9 a.m. in the school auditorium. All students who are entering the first grade will meet in the cafeteria, Mr. Jones said.

Parents who are sending children into the first grade this year should bring a record of their child's immunization and a copy of his birth certificate, if these are not already in the hands of the school officials.

The school will operate on a half-day schedule for Thursday and Friday; Monday, September 5 will be the first complete day of classes, Mr. Jones announced. Lunch will not be served by the school until Monday.

Mr. Jones also said that all new students who will enter Wakelon School for the first time should come to the school office with their parents some time this week. The office will be open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Teachers will come in Wednesday, August 31, Mr. Jones said. At 2 p.m. the first general faculty meeting will be held, followed by division faculty meetings.

Mr. Jones also announced the new faculty appointments at Wakelon School for the coming year.

New appointments in the high school are Charles Hester of Goldsboro, Director of Athletics and Head Coach; Mrs. Raymond Pippin, Zebulon, B. S. in Library Science, four years experience in the Library of Congress Washington, D. C., and a graduate of Radford College, Radford, Virginia; Mr. Louis J. Castille of Opelousas, La., instructor in foreign languages, A. B. Loyola University, M. A. Stanford University and study at Harvard, Mr. Castille was an instructor at Georgia Tech for five years.

New appointments in the elementary school are Margaret Ann Stevenson, teacher of piano, Old Greenwich, Conn.; B. M. from Converse College, Spartanburg, South Carolina, student piano (See SCHOOL, Page 8)

English Countryside Proves to Be Scenic as Spans Tour Landmarks

By Mrs. Durrell Spann

In England any vacation time is spoken of as a holiday. Londoners consider it quite nice to spend a holiday at Dover, the beach, or on the continent.

Our recent trip to London, England was most enjoyable. We traveled from Metz, France, via Calais by train, boarded a steamer and cross the Channel. On approaching Dover, we saw the chalk cliffs made famous in the song "White Cliffs of Dover," a few years ago.

After leaving Dover by train we passed apple orchards, hop fields, sheep grazing in the meadows and large fields of shocked wheat. The countryside was very beautiful.

It was interesting to notice the speech of the British people on the steamer and the train. Many were returning from a trip to Switzerland and were carrying their mountain climbing equipment.

We found the English people to be most gracious. During our five days' stay in London people were so helpful, kind and hospitable. If we hesitated at a street corner or in an underground station some Londoner would step up and ask if they could be of help. Calvin had spent several years during World War II in the London area, and he made an excellent guide. (See ENGLAND, Page 8)
