CROP Observance Is Set for Sunday

CROP, the Christian Rural Overseas Program, will be observed in the Baptist and Methodist churches and possibly other church as well, Sunday, November 13.

CROP is an appeal of the Protestant Churches of America, originating in the grateful hearts of people in a land of abundance. Through the merging of individual efforts into a pattern of effective service, CROP becomes a means of dealing with mass poverty and persistent hunger.

Need today reveals itself as a dweller in a makeshift home on a hillside in Hongkong, to refugees in Greece and Germany, to orphans in India, widows in Korea, the aged in Italy, the infirm in Pakistan, and children in the Near East. It is this, and much more, multiplied a million times. CROP will mean much more to Zebulon now that we know the foods and money will go right into the countries of some of the international students who visited us this past weekend. Then too, the clothes collected by our young people on October 30 will go to Church World Service, New Windsor, Maryland, the same organization through which CROP is channeled.
