SECOND ENCAMPMENT

Zebulon Nat'l Guard Unit Leaves for Bragg June 10

National Guardsmen of Battery A, 113th FA Battalion, will join nearly 10,000 other members of North Carolina's famed 30th Infantry Division at Ft. Bragg for 15 days of active duty training beginning June 10. This is the second summer encampment for the "Old Hickory" division since it became an all-Tar Heel division in October, 1954.

The entire division, which is commanded by Major General Claude T. Bowers of Warrenton, will be at Ft. Bragg, except for the armored and anti-aircraft elements which train at Camp Stewart, Ga., in August.

Training for Battery A has become more intense as time for summer camp draws nearer, according to Lt. James M. Potter, Jr., who said that the 15-day active duty period is the climax of the year's work for local Guardsmen.

Highlight of the first week of camp will be the divisional parade Saturday, June 16, when the entire division will pass in review. The division will form three combat teams for the move into the field on Monday of the second week.

During the five days in the field, Potter said, Aggressor units, simulating enemy forces, will harass the Guardsmen of Battery A, requiring them to be alert day and night.

The division will return to the R.T.C. area of Ft. Bragg on Friday, June 22. Saturday will be payday for the 10,000 Guardsmen, who draw regular Army pay for the 15 days of training.

At present nearly 12,000 citizen-soldiers are members of the North Carolina Army and Air National Guard.
