Picture Entered At State Fair

A 16 by 20 picture of little 16-month-old Jane Elizabeth Tippet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Tippet, will charm the persons who attended the photographic exhibits at N. C. State Fair this week. Jane's picture has been entered in the photographic exhibit by Burnie Batchelor, Raleigh photographer who made the picture in April.

Every photographer in North Carolina is invited to submit photographic entries for display, and Mr. Batchelor decided upon little Jane's picture because of the human interest and photogenic qualities.

Jane, blonde and blue-eyed, is smiling bewitchingly as she cuddles her kitten in the picture.

United Fund Money Aids Home for Unwed Mother

There's A Refuge For Girls Like Lisa — Thanks to Florence Crittenton Homes, supported by your contributions to the United Fund.

Lisa, of course, wasn't her real name.

None of the other girls knew where the attractive brunette came from or shared the details of her 20 years of life.

What they shared was protection from the prying eyes of the curious and the condemnation of relatives and neighbors — the additional tragedies of unwed motherhood.

Lisa, with girls of varied ages and educational backgrounds, was awaiting the arrival of her child away from her home and the people connected with her young life.

But she wasn't really alone. There were people in the Florence Crittenton Home who cared what happened to her when she had almost ceased caring herself.

Through caseworker service and religious counseling she was being helped to understand herself, to face her problems and recognize her limitations.

Most important, she was getting help in planning the future. Special teachers in the Crittenton Home here were assisting her to continue her school subjects. Typing classes, craft classes, recreation programs with the other girls helped her make constructive use of her waiting time. She shared household chores with the other girls and cared for her own room and possessions.

Family ties were strengthened as Lisa talked over her childhood and home environment with the caseworker. She offered a guiding hand to help the unwed mother resume her place in the community.

There were decisions to be made about Lisa's unborn child. In the (Continued on Page 4)

Wakelon Bulldogs Take First Victory

Evangelist

Dr. J. Carroll Trotter, Jr.

Dr. J. Carroll Trotter, Jr. of the Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary at Wake Forest will be the visiting minister in the Zebulon Baptist Church Revival which began Sunday night, October 21, and will continue each night at 7:30 through Friday, October 26.

The church is fortunate in having Dr. Trotter for this series of services because he is an outstanding minister, teacher, and evangelist. Dr. Trotter was born and reared in Alabama. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree from Howard University, Birmingham; his Master of Theology degree at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky; and his Doctor of Theology degree from the same institution.

Dr. Trotter taught in the Department of Speech at the Southern Baptist Seminary for three years, and has served as pastor of four large churches in Kentucky and Alabama since that time.

Dr. Trotter is in the Department of New Testament Preaching, and is outstanding in the field of evangelism.

The church extends an urgent invitation to everyone to participate in this revival.

Many home fires are due to overload or short circuits, often between the walls of the home.

Wakelon's Bulldog's, denied a football victory for the past two years, got rolling against a strong Methodist Orphanage eleven last Friday and eked out a 14-13 victory.

The Red Raiders scored in the first quarter, after turning back a Bulldog drive in the early moments of the game. Alvin Lancaster made an end run — the only time the Wakelon ends were turned all night — good for 41 yards and a touchdown. Henry Spence made the extra point through the line.

Wakelon came back in the second quarter to tie the Red Raiders on a 20-yard run by W. G. Griswold, set up by a pass play. Griswold ran the extra point over, and the score was tied at the half.

Throughout the third quarter the two teams swapped yardage without scoring, as they did through most of the fourth period.

With four minutes left in the game, the Methodists undertook a sustained drive that put them ahead again when Murphy Taylor took a hand-off, went through the line, and out toward the sidelines to score. The Raiders' fullback failed to make the extra point through the line, which they appeared not to need at the time.

With less than two minutes left in the game, Wakelon scored on the first play after the kick-off. Griswold passed to Wilson from the Bulldog 40 for an apparent 15-yard gain, but Wilson tossed a lateral to Kenny Moore who went the rest of the way for the tying touchdown. Griswold ran the extra point.

The Methodists lacked only inches of making a first down following the last kick-off, and the Bulldogs successfully ran the clock out.

Coach Charles Hester, who described the victory as "the best I ever had," had the Wakelon boys running from a single wing as well as the T. The visitors from Raleigh also used a multiple offense.

Wakelon plays Millbrook there Friday night, October 19.

Wet Sand Good For Livestock Bedding

Wet sand used as bedding in a livestock truck will give hogs a cool, comfortable ride to market, according to State College livestock experts.

Ginning Report

Census report shows that 412 bales of cotton were ginned in Wake County from the crop of 1956 prior to Oct. 1, 1956, as compared with 113 bales ginned for the crop of 1955, according to Joseph R. Norwood, district supervisor.

Tobacco Lost

Part of the tobacco crop has been lost in the field in some of the eastern counties where burning space was insufficient to take care of current primings, say officials of the North Carolina Crop Reporting Service.

Methodist Minister Is Elected Inter-Conference Commission

The Rev. Troy Barrett

The Rev. Troy J. Barrett, Zebulon Methodist Church minister, has been elected to the Inter-Conference Commission on Student Religious Work in North Carolina and Western North Carolina Conferences by the Board of Education of the North Carolina Conference.

Together with three other ministers and four laymen of the N. C. Conference and a similar number from the Western Conference, this group will be responsible for planning and carrying out the program among Methodist students in all the colleges over the state.

The Rev. Robert R. Regan, Jr. is state director of the Methodist Student Movement in North Carolina, a post which Mr. Barrett held from 1946 to 1949.

SKY-WATCHING and looking after the children have been combined in this Ground Observer Corps post at Mechanic Falls, Me., by installing a children's playground. This innovation solves the problem of mothers who complain that they cannot do their part in Operation Skywatch because there is no one to look after their children while on duty.
