Yugoslav Manners, Customs

Community Ambassador Tells of Trip Abroad

Miss Carolyn Covington, Raleigh's community ambassador to Yugoslavia this past summer, spoke to the Junior Women of Zebulon at their October meeting Tuesday night.

Miss Covington, blonde, blue-eyed, gracious and graceful in a navy faille princess-line dress, charmed her audience with her soft Southern accent as she told of her experiences, the manner and customs in the semi-iron curtain country ruled by Tito.

She stated that she selected Yugoslavia because she wanted to learn more about the Moslem religion. She knew this country's peoples were predominantly Moslem in faith, and she said she wished to learn more about it.

She was fortunate, for when she arrived at the station in Sarajevo the family who met her was of the Moslem faith. Little Sarajevo, she said, is considered by some historians to be where the spark was set off that caused World War I.

The family she lived with were of the upper class. The father was a lawyer and the mother was a talented pianist. Two of the four children were being educated for a doctor and in music.

The speaker said their home was covered with some of the most gorgeous Persian rugs imaginable. Every floor in the home, down to the kitchen had these exquisite oriental tapestries on them.

"Mommitza — that's what we called the mother — was a cook par excellence," Miss Covington said. "During the six weeks I lived with them I gained 10 pounds. Oh, such rich pastries, sauces and exotic meats."

The meat was mainly lamb, she said, fixed in every conceivable way and at every meal.

For breakfast the family enjoyed boiled milk and brown bread. Sometimes there was honey or jam. At lunch there was usually a creamed soup, and, of course, lamb.

"Every shopkeeper closes his business on the dot at 12, and stays closed until 4 o'clock," Miss Covington said. "Almost everybody takes an afternoon siesta."

Around 5 o'clock it is tea time, and from 6 to 9 o'clock the main

110-Foot-Long Walk Finished At Armory

Members of Battery A, 113th Field Artillery Battalion, this week completed several hundred dollars in improvements at Davis Armory when they poured a 110-foot-long concrete walk in front of the building.

The improvements, which include spotlights in front of the armory and floodlights for the parking areas, are being made to increase the value of the building for community use.

The new walk and lights would not be possible were it not for contributions by the community, Capt. Jack Potter reports. Bryan Rock and Sand Company gave the gravel and delivered it to the armory free of charge and Wilbur Bullock gave the sand.

Talented Pair At Baptist Church Sunday

The Rev. John W. Lambert of Chadburn will use "A Knock at the Door" as the topic of his message when he preaches at the Zebulon Baptist Church Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock worship hour.

The Rev. Mr. Lambert is a graduate of Wake Forest College with a bachelor of arts degree. He took his bachelor of divinity degree from Crozer Theological Seminary in Chester, Pa.

Upon graduating from the seminary, he was called to Mount Olive Baptist Church, Mount Olive, and did an outstanding job. In 1952 he took a position as minister of the Chadburn Baptist Church, and has carried through a successful building program.

Mr. Lambert has been a member of the General Board, North Carolina Baptist State Convention; Secretary of the Missions Committee; and a member of the Execu-

Zebulon Lass Leads Harness Race At Fair

Eight Meredith College girls have been chosen to marshal the harness race horses into the arena at the State Fair on Thursday and Friday afternoons, and a Zebulon girl is one of them.

Miss Mona Fay Horton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl O. Horton of Route 4, has been selected to ride a horse from the Meredith stables and lead the racing horses into the arena at the beginning of the race.

Also, on Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, Miss Horton, with seven other girls, will lead the parade into the arena. She is a junior at the school.

Avon Privette provided a concrete mixer and wheelbarrow and gave screenings.

The last of the money given Battery A by contributing members of the Guard was used on the project, said CWO Johnsey P. Arnold.

Plans are being made for Battery A to cooperate with a civic club in sponsoring dances in the armory. The armory floor has been specially treated and now has a smooth surface ideal for dancing.

Visitors are invited to visit the National Guard armory to see the improvements at any time. The artillery battery drills each Monday night, and visitors are welcome to observe the training.

Art Classes

Douglas Reynolds, head of the Meredith College art department, is again conducting art classes at the Wendell Woman's Club. The classes meet each Wednesday night at 7 o'clock and the fee is $5 monthly in advance.

Persons — adults and children — from Zebulon who are talented with the pencil or brush are invited to attend these classes.

Principal Tells PTA School's Enrollment Will Increase 120

The need for a bond issue and supplementary tax program for the school program of Wake County was the topic of the panel discussion when the Wakelton School PTA met Monday night.

Leading the discussion were Chairman of the School Board Garland Richardson, Principal Hicks and Barrie Davis, Editor of the Zebulon Record.

Principal Hicks told the audience that within three years the school stands to gain an additional 120 students. This, he said, will necessitate the addition of four more class rooms to house the increase of the student body.

"We are in urgent need of a music building," the educator stated. This building would be used for band, piano, dance, glee club and office facilities."

He estimated that approximately 750 students would have access to the use of this building.

The principal also feels that the school needs an athletic field house and stationary seating facilities for the athletic field.

Other needs listed for the im-

First City Fire Of The Fall

A stove flue which had become disassembled caused a fire which did negligible damage to a house owned by Avon Privette last Monday. The house is located on North Street.

The fire department was called to the scene of the fire about 8:30 o'clock that morning and later was called back about 10:30. On the last trip the fire had broken out in a gable end, and was quickly extinguished by the firemen.

Bud Denton occupies the house.

Church Selects Homecoming Date, Program

Friendship Free Will Baptist Church will hold its annual Homecoming Day October 28, it has been announced by the Rev. Daniel Rivers, pastor of the church.

The church is located in Johnston County, Route 1, Middlesex, near Emit.

Following the Sunday School and worship services at 11 o'clock, a picnic dinner will be spread on the grounds. The pastor will deliver the message.

All former pastors, members and friends are invited to attend this occasion. In the afternoon there will be group singing.

Local Citizen Honored by USN

Chief Commissaryman Wade William Perry, USN, (Ret.), now on the retired list, has received a letter of congratulations upon completing 30 years of service to his country.

The letter was signed by Vice Admiral J. L. Holloway, Jr., chief of the Navy's Bureau of Naval Personnel. It was forwarded to the retired petty officer by Rear Admiral George C. Crawford, Commandant of the Sixth Naval District, with headquarters in Charleston, S. C.

Perry completed 30 years of service, which includes both active duty and Fleet Reserve time. He is unmarried.

United Fund Meet Tonight; Leaders Named

A general meeting of the Zebulon United Fund will be held tonight at 7:30 in the Municipal Building for the purpose of discussing the Fund's budget and answering questions concerning how the Fund's figure was arrived at, President Ralph Talton has announced.

He urges all persons who are interested in the welfare of the Fund to be present, for the life or death of the project depends upon the public.

Group captains have been busy and will perfect their project, Talton said. These group captains will enlist additional workers in their areas to help them.

A full list of the workers will be printed in next week's issue of the Record with districts assigned.

The United Fund drive will get underway Oct. 29 and continue through Nov. 3, President Talton said.

"It is a means of giving through the United Fund and not to the United Fund," he said.

The response to the cards sent to the people of Zebulon and surrounding communities has not been favorable at all, Talton stated. He has received only 26 return cards out of a total of 683 mailed.

He said he hopes this is no indication of the sentiment of the people toward the United Fund.

The following are group captains and their territories:

Mrs. George Tucker, northwest quarter of Zebulon; Mrs. Garland Godwin, northeast quarter of Zebulon; Mrs. Ferd Davis, southwest quarter of Zebulon, Mrs. Gilford Bufkin, southeast quarter of Zebulon; John Hicks, Wakelton School; G. L. Crews, Shepard School; the Rev. Vernon Brooks, Wakefield community; Billy K. Hopkins, Hopkins Chapel community; Bob Massey, Zebulon business section; Harold Taylor, Zebulon colored sections; Frank Wall, Zebulon business section employees; and Robert Ed Horton, rural roads, other than Wakefield and Hopkins.

The funds collected will be placed in Peoples Bank and Trust Company.
