4-H Vegetables Grow Into New Curb Market

Under the watchful eyes of three Cumberland County 4-H club members, projects in vegetable gardening blossomed into something more than quality vegetables. Negro County Agent B. T. McNeill says that Sylvia, Bernice, and Clarence Hodges, working with their father Jim Hodges, have been able to make a good start toward establishing a permanent curb market on their farm near Hope Mills.

About three years ago the 4-H'ers selected vegetable garden-

An oriental theme was carried out when the YWA met November 15 at the home of Mrs. Willard Gill.

Rice Reports Barley Seed Is In Good Supply

"Davie barley is superior to any other barley now being grown in the state," says John C. Rice, director of the North Carolina Crop Improvement Association. The seed supply is being built up by the certified growers of the state, he reports.

Almost three times as much certified Davie Barley seed will be available to small grain growers for planting this fall as compared to last year. This season, says Rice, over 3,000 bushels will be available for planting.

Smut free clean seed was re-released to the certified seed growers by the N. C. Foundation Seed Producers. Rice points out that through rigid inspection of the N. C. Crop Improvement Association, certified seed of smut free Davie variety will be available. Rice adds that extensive demonstrations have shown that smut free seed has yielded as much as 17 bushels more per acre over non-treated diseased seed.

The Davie variety is a cross of Sunrise and Bolivia. It is a beardless type similar to Colonial barley. Rice indicates that Davie is more mildew and rust resistant than Colonial 2, the latter grown in many parts of the state. Davie has good resistance to barley scald, a disease that kills the leaves; and in areas of the Piedmont where scald is becoming a problem. Davie outyields other varieties, according to Rice.

Both Colonial 2 and Davie are recommended and certified, says Rice. The yield record on Davie has been similar to that of Colonial 2, but Rice feels that the additional disease resistance makes it superior in those areas of the state where mildew and rust are problems. In winter hardiness, adds Rice, Davie is equal to the other recommended barleys.

Barbecue Sale Creating Interest

Commander W. M. Sutton and Scoutmaster James Debnam report that sales of barbecue by the scouts is continuing. Early reports on the sales indicate this community's interest in sending a local scout to the National Jamboree in Valley Forge next June. Both Sutton and Debnam express their gratitude at the response to this sale.

The local scout troop under the direction of Scoutmaster Debnam is selling orders for barbecue to be cooked and delivered on November 30 by the scouts. Loomis Carpenter, well known local cook, will prepare the big barbecue, which will sell for $1.50 per pound, delivered to your home.

The American Legion, through its Commander, W. M. Sutton, solicits your support in this worthy cause. Sutton suggests that people who have not been solicited call either he or James Debnam. Let's make this project a successful one and show the youth of our community that we are behind them. Won't you help?

Senior, Junior Women View Painter's Works

Those members of the Senior and Junior Woman's Clubs who did not attend the Rembrandt showing at the North Carolina State Art Museum Sunday missed the thrill of their lives.

That is the consensus of opinion by the members of the Senior and Junior women who did attend. This was the monthly meeting of the Junior Club, and the Senior Club women were guests. The Senior club also counted this as their regular meeting.

Mrs. Elwood Perry, program chairman for the Junior Club for the month of November, initiated the idea of having the local Woman's Clubs take a tour of the State Art Museum for the purpose of acquainting them with the prize art treasures owned by our State. As an extra added attraction during the month of November and December, the Museum has a traveling show of the Rembrandt oils and etchings.

Mrs. Perry said that too often we visit other museums of art in distant cities and are not even acquainted with the works of art which our own State has.

The North Carolina State Art Museum is considered by art officials to be one of the most outstanding in the South.

Attending the showing were Mrs. Ralph Bunn, Mrs. Charles Creech, Mrs. Elwood Perry, Mrs. Armstrong Cannady, Mrs. Ted Milam, Mrs. Ed Ellington and Miss Ruby Dawson, all of the Junior Club; Mrs. F. E. Bunn, Mrs. E. H. Moser, Mrs. Foster Finch, Mrs. Fred Page, Mrs. W. O. Glover, Mrs. Exum Chamblee, Mrs. C. G. Weathersby and Mrs. Irby Gill, all of the Senior Club.
