Mrs. H. L. Hinnant did what was thought to be impossible. She mailed a half pound cake of country butter to her son John in Warwick, Va., and it arrived as solid and firm as when she mailed it, so the son told her by phone. It was not sent by refrigeration either.

Seems our older people have a nack of doing or saying things that the younger folk can't believe possible. This was the case of Mrs. Dona Todd during the extreme cold weather in the past when she told her well of water was froze over. No one believed it until a number of spectators investigated and it was true. About an inch of ice covered the top of the water down in the well below the ground level.
