Raleigh City-Manager

Women to Hear Able Speaker

One of the most able and interesting speakers of North Carolina will address the Senior Woman's Club at its April meeting Tuesday afternoon, April 15, at 3:45 p.m.

William H. Carper, city manager of Raleigh, will lecture to the women on "Civic Responsibility."

Mrs. Elizabeth Ellett, program chairman for the month of April, secured Mr. Carper as guest speaker. She said Mr. Carper is a man with a varied background of experiences in public affairs.

Prior to his work with the State Personnel Department, Mr. Carper served three Virginia cities in the capacity of city manager; namely: Culpeper, Clifton Forge and Harrisburg.

In 1950, he vacated the position of city manager of Burlington to accept the city managerial duties of the capital city of North Carolina. Under his management, Raleigh has grown and prospered as perhaps never before.

Serving as hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. B. H. Johnson and Mrs. C. V. Whitley.

Teacher Breaks Her Arm On Monday Watching The Birds

Watching the birds instead of her feet resulted in Mrs. Wallace Chamblee having a broken arm.

Mrs. Chamblee told the story this way.

She was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Gill at their cottage on Pamlico for part of the Easter holidays. Before she started home Monday afternoon, Mrs. Chamblee decided to take a short walk along the water's edge and admire the winged creatures.

Then, suddenly, she was on clay, made slick by the April rains. Oops, her feet went out from under her! She went sailing through the air. When she landed, it was on her right arm.

Mrs. Chamblee's arm was broken above her wrist. Her physician informed her the break of the radius was clean, and will heal quickly and nicely.

Mrs. Chamblee, a sixth grade teacher at Wakelon, was back on the job Tuesday, with a lot of explanation of her "conversation piece," her broken arm.
