the Baptist Church, the Rev. Mr. Smith said. Cottage prayer meetings have been conducted throughout the community by members of the Junior Board of Deacons. Six such prayer services have been conducted each week for the past three weeks.

Some two hundred church members have been assigned a pew to fill each night during the revival. This is the "Pack-a-Pew" plan of the Southern Baptist Convention's Evangelistic Crusade. Visitors should not worry, however, because Chief Usher Robert E. Horton has guaranteed a seat for everyone who attends the services.

Mrs. Fred Chamblee New WETC Woman's Ed, Has Hour Program

Mrs. Frederick Chamblee becomes woman's editor of WETC, local radio station, Monday, September 5.

"My program, of course, will be slanted to the women," this personable young woman said. "I am interested in the type of thing that will interest women, no matter if she is tying tobacco in the strip room or under the barn shelter or shelling beans for the freezer or just relaxing.

"What I hope to do is present something each morning that will be of an uplifting nature. I hope to have the kind of music that will appeal to the housewife as she goes about her early morning tasks. Not the kind of music that will appeal to the teenager and not classical music.

"I hope to bring interviews of people who are in the news. Someone who has an interesting hobby, someone who has taken a civic position. Or maybe someone just to come on the show and bat an idea around.

"I plan to have recipes. I don't want to have recipes that I have taken out of some book some place. I want recipes that have been tried in a local kitchen, recipes that somebody can say 'This is my favorite recipe for chess pie, for example. I make it all the time, so I can vouch for it.'

"On my program I hope to have fashion notes. And I want something of interest. I don't know of any other way of phrasing it except that. Every day I want something interesting. It might be an inspirational anecdote or a book review or a movie review or ways been interested in anything literary. Nobody influenced me. I just wanted to do that.

"I went to the University of Vermont with every intention of pursuing my intended profession. I was a columnist for the "Cynic," the college newspaper. I did profiles and articles on the BMOC, big men on campus. I liked it for I got to meet all the big men on the campus.

"After two years at UV I had to quit because of family financial straits. My father was an architect. He always said one of the world's greatest. But even so the family's finances dwindled and I had to leave college.

"It was then that I enrolled in one of Boston's exclusive secretarial schools, Chandler School. After one year there I went to work with State Street Trust Co., one of the most famous banking firms in New England.

"Then World War II broke out. Everywhere you looked Uncle Sam was pointing his finger saying 'I need you.' The day after Pearl Harbor I went to Washington and became a member of the Secretary of War's personnel.

"I later gave up this job because of transportation. Transportation in Washington was intolerable during the war. I found another job with a newspaper syndicate headed by James H. R. Cromwell, then the husband of Doris Duke.

"I was married May 13, 1942. My husband was assistant administrative assistant to former U. S. Senator Robert R. Reynolds of Asheville and the late U. S. Sena- (Continued on Page 5)
