SAT Scores

WHS Guidance Counselor Reports

For the past three years the Educational Testing Service at Princeton, N. J., has been reporting to the high schools the students' scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test of the College Entrance Examination Board.

"We have recently received this year's scores of the seniors who took SAT in December," Miss Blanche Gay, Wakelon guidance counselor, has revealed.

Miss Gay said the test includes two parts, verbal and mathematical. The scores range from 200 to 800 on the verbal and 200 to 800 on the mathematics. A total combined score may range from 400 to 1600 points.

"Colleges use the total scores to derive their so-called 'cut-off' point," Miss Gay said.

No general statement can be made about "cut-off" points due to the diversity among the country's 1,200 or more 4 year colleges and universities concerning admission procedures.

"In 1959-60, eleven out of 41 seniors took the SAT of the CEEB. The average score for these eleven students on the verbal was 393 and on the Mathematics, 423.7. The average for the total score was 816.7," she said.

In 1960-61, 18 out of 48 seniors took the SAT. The average Verbal score for these 18 students was 356.6 and the average Mathematics score was 381.11. The average total score was 737.17.

Twenty-seven out of 56 seniors took the SAT this school year, Miss Gay continued. Twenty-five scores have been reported for these students who took the test on December 2. The average Verbal score was 355.10 and the average Mathematical score was 399.9. The average for the total score was 754.19.

"The SAT score is only one factor in admitting a student to college," the guidance counselor said. "The three combined factors are high school rank, SAT scores, and recommendations."

The purpose of the SAT is to appraise a student's ability to do college work. Thus many colleges differ in their minimum "cut-off" points since many of their standards differ. Many of the larger schools require at least a total score of 750 or above, depending upon the standards of the college.

White Birth

Mr. and Mrs. James Fasser, Jr., of Route 1, Wendell, announce the birth of a son January 20 at Wendell-Zebulon Hospital. Mrs. Fasser is the former Hazel Hollifield of Wendell.

Charm School Plans Underway For Town, Community Women

A charm school is being planned for women of Zebulon and surrounding communities who are interested, Miss Mary L. Palmer, Wakelon home economics instructor, has announced.

Miss Palmer said the five-week course will begin the first Tuesday night in February if enough women register for the course. A minimum of 20 women is needed.

The course will include make-up, hairstyling, grooming, posture, walking, sitting, speech, diction, and other aspects which make a woman more attractive and charming.

Classes will be held each Tuesday night for two hours. Mrs. Billie Cooke, who is associated with a Raleigh charm school, will teach.

Interested women are asked to contact Miss Palmer immediately.

Attends Meet

Mrs. Sarah T. Massey, accountant, attended the Internal Revenue School of Automatic Data Processing in Atlanta December 19.

Mrs. Massey reported that the Atlanta region will be one of the first to put this processing into use out of the nine in the United States.

The young accountant works part time with Wakelon Grain Company and has offices at her home.

Corinth Congregation Calls Youngsville Native Pastor

A Youngsville native has accepted the pastorate of Corinth Baptist Church. Corinth Church is six miles south of Zebulon on Highway 96.

The Rev. C. W. Driver delivered his first sermon for the Corinth congregation December 3. Prior to serving the Corinth Church he was pastor of Darlington and Tillery Baptist Churches in the North Roanoke Association for two years.

The Rev. Mr. Driver is Corinth's first full-time pastor. Formerly the church was served half time.

The new minister succeeds the late Rev. A. D. Parrish. H. C. Bowers, principal of Corinth-Holders School supplied the church until Driver came.

Driver has a bachelor of arts degree from Atlantic Christian College. He also attended Campbell College. He presently plans to attend Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Wake Forest.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Driver of Route 1, Youngsville. Twenty-seven, he is married to the former Gaynelle Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Lloyd of Route 1, Louisburg. The couple has two daughters, Waverly, 5; and Teresa, 2.

Corinth Church plant is rather new, and is valued at more than $75,000. It is presently completing a parsonage for the minister and his family.

One of Town's Most Promising Young Men Made Chairman of Jaycee Organization

One of Zebulon's promising young men has been elected temporary chairman of the new Junior Chamber of Commerce. Jimmy Medlin, of Peoples Bank and Trust Company, was named the temporary chairman of the organization when a group met last Thursday night to form a Jaycee unit here.

Medlin has announced another meeting for tonight (Thursday) for making additional progress toward organizing. The meeting will be in the Zebulon Methodist Church. A special guest will be Rose York, Miss Rocky Mount, who will perform for the group.

At the initial meeting, officials of the Rocky Mount Jaycees were present to advise and discuss organizational plans. Dudley Harper, president of the Rocky Mount Junior Chamber of Commerce, presided at the session. John Coffey, Jr., of Raleigh, State secretary of the Jaycee organization, told the group something of the history of Jaycees.

Other speakers on the program were Marvin Koonce of Raleigh, Norman Lee of Rocky Mount, who is State International Relations Chairman, and Zebulon Mayor Ed Hales, a former Jaycee, who urged the group to organize a unit here. Mayor Hales said he knows the value of the organization and that a Jaycee group can accomplish worthwhile things.

Among those present at Thursday night's meeting were Medlin, Mayor Hales, the Rev. David Daniel, Zebulon Baptist Church pastor; the Rev. William K. Quick, Zebulon Methodist Church pastor; Jack Potter, Bill Kirby, Bruce Creekmore, Billy Hinton, Hal C. Perry, Ralph Lewis, Wayne Davis.

Wendell Native Has $500,000 Bakery Business in Tennessee

Cedric "Kink" Knott Owner

From the family kitchen to a large industrial building, from the back seat of the family car to a fleet of trucks, the story of a Wendell native's success in the bakery business has been one of continuous growth.

Begun 14 years ago as a small sandwich-making venture by a husband and wife team, the Knott Wholesale Foods Company now is a half-million dollar operation.

In May, 1947, Cedric Knott, a

Wendell native who had married Mildred McClain of Paris, Tenn., moved to Tennessee and opened a sandwich-making business in a small building across from the city auditorium. Soon afterward, the "company" moved to the kitchen of the Knott home.

An original partner of the Knotts, James Wilson, was bought out only two weeks after the business was founded for $50. Now, Knott estimates the business is worth about $500,000.

The Knotts operated in their own home for eight years before moving to another building. Business expanded so that another move was necessary.

The company makes sandwiches, doughnuts and fried pies and distributes cakes, pies and cookies of many other name brands. It distributes 92 items within a 60-mile radius of Paris to 25 towns and cities. The firm originally serviced Paris and the neighborhood.

How Do You Visit The Ill? Nursing Director Offers Ideas

Visitors are often the bane and worry of hospital personnel and patients.

There is the visitor who comes early in the morning and spends the day; the one who talks incessantly, telling the patient all about the other ills and worries of everybody in the community; the one who makes a feast of the patient's fruit and goodies; the one who tells loud jokes and laughs as if the patient's room were a bar; the one . . . and on ad infinitum.

Mrs. Mary Temple, Wendell-Zebulon Hospital director of nurses, said: "We welcome visitors. But we want them to observe the hospital rules and regulations."

She said a person who comes to the hospital comes for treatment and medication. "They are here because they have an illness."

"I have seen patients far sicker at the end of the day after many visitors," she said. "They can't get to sleep, they are nervous. Extra pills and shots must be given them to calm them down and make them rest."

Mrs. Temple said she is not against patients having company, not at all. But she has seen the damage done to patients when they have had too much company and visitors have disregarded visiting regulations.

"We have to think about the patient's welfare," she said. "Persons with acute illnesses need quick and immediate medications and attention. Good results some times cannot be accomplished when the patient is tired and worn out with company."

Long-term illnesses are different, she continued. These persons may have more company and visitors may spend a longer time with the patient.

"Socializing is one of the worst things we have to cope with," Mrs. Temple said. "Some people are somewhat thoughtless on this point. They come just to socialize with the patients, going from one room to another, gossiping, laughing, joking, talking. We definitely do not want this type of visitor. However, if a visitor feels he can help by a visit or cheerful word of deed, that is different."

Power Off Sunday

Carolina Power & Light Company crews will be up before dawn Sunday, January 28, working on a high-voltage transmission line from the company's Milburnie substation near Raleigh to Zebulon.

F. T. Scarborough, manager for CP&L in Zebulon, said the early morning hours, from 3 to 7 a.m., will give workmen time to complete one phase of a six-month project to boost the power reserve in the region.

Ralph Guy Lewis Sr. Funeral Rites Sunday; WW1 Veteran

Ralph G. Lewis, Sr.

Funeral rites for Ralph Guy Lewis, Sr., were held Sunday, January 13, at 3 p.m. at Zebulon Baptist Church. Lewis, 70, died Friday in Veteran's Hospital in Fayetteville after a lingering illness. He had been confined to the hospital for the past three years.

Lewis was a veteran of World War I. He served with the 124th Infantry, 81st Division.

He is the son of the late W. N. and Sue Frazier Lewis of Nash County.

A retired farmer, he belonged to the old Wendell-Zebulon American Legion Post.

Officiating at the rites were the Rev. David Daniel, pastor of Zebulon Baptist Church, and the Rev. Garland Foushee, pastor of Pearce Baptist Church. The choir sang "My Faith Looks Up to Thee," and Mrs. L. M. Massey

Junior Women Have Three Members Present

At the January meeting of the Junior Woman's Club only three members were present. These were Mrs. Bobby Sherron, president; Mrs. Bill Bowling, program chairman; and Mrs. Woodrow Pippin.

The program was on the ravages of cancer. Miss Emma Carr Bivens, executive secretary of the Wake County Cancer Society, was the guest speaker.

After an informal discussion of the topic refreshments of lemon tarts, cheese straws and coffee were served.
