Telephone Talk

By R. U. Beck

Your Telephone Manager

DID YOU KNOW THAT there are 600,000 Bell System telephone booths in the United States? They're placed for your convenience everywhere from stores to railway stations! The supplier, Western Electric, put its first standard phone booth on the market in 1882, and now annually provides associated companies with 27,000 new booths of various types. The busiest phone booth in the world is probably the one in the main concourse of New York's Grand Central Station. In one 12-hour observation period it was never unoccupied longer than two minutes!

IF MEMBERS OF YOUR FAMILY ARE SCATTERED, you probably enjoy each other's company by Long Distance. Now, with the Speakerphone you can enjoy real "togetherness" on family get-togethers by Long Distance. The Speakerphone makes possible "no hands," two-way group conversation, enabling the family to listen and participate in the conversation together. Why not call our Business Office and ask for further information on the Speakerphone and how it can increase your enjoyment of family Long Distance calls.

THE NEWEST LOOK IN TELEPHONES is this compact hang-up style wall phone designed by Bell Telephone Laboratories. The new phone boasts several distinctive features and is now being tried out by customers in Providence, Rhode Island. Most unusual feature is the small, space-saving dial.

WITHOUT LOOKING FIRST, do you know which finger holes on your telephone dial have numerals but no letters, and which two letters of the alphabet are not shown on the dial?

THERE'S MORE THAN MEETS THE EYE IN YOUR TELEPHONE! About 60 different raw materials go into its manufacture. Among them, steel, aluminum, copper, tin, plastics, rayon, nylon, silk, rubber, wax, asphalt, coal granules, and even small quantities of gold and silver on electrical contact points. Your telephone is carefully built to provide you with dependable, trouble-free service.
