

Wakefield News

Mrs. Vera B. Rhodes

Revival services are scheduled at Wakefield Baptist Church April 1 through 7 at 7:30 each night. The evangelist is the Rev. James B. Mitchell, pastor of First Baptist Church in Joanna, S. C. The song leader will be Fred Senter of Southeastern Seminary, Wake Forest. The nursery will be open each night. You will get a blessing by attending.

Our church attendance is picking up now that Spring is here.

Harold Pippin is deacon of the week.

Friday night the deacons meet at 7:30.

All three choirs will sit in a body to sing together next Sunday a.m.

The Brotherhood Breakfast will be at 8 sharp. Every man of our church is invited to be at the church by 8 next Sunday morning. Just bring yourself. Everything else is already there. Be prepared to eat and enjoy yourself.

We were glad to have several visitors at church Sunday, including Mr. Marvin Winstead and family who were visiting the Aaron Lowerys and friends in Zebulon.

Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Liles and Susan of Baltimore were here with his mother, Mrs. Clellie Liles, for four days last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Buster Simpson and boys visited their parents, the W. L. Simpsons and Mrs. Bessie Gordon, during the weekend.

Mrs. Gordon is back home in her little house back of the church and is glad to be able to get home.

Lt. (jg) H. A. Hodge III is now on an overseas tour for six months. He is in Italy the last we heard.

The Mannings, Greens, and Ed-dins all went to Betsy and Billy Green's cabin on Little River last Sunday and gave Billy and Ben Manning a birthday dinner. They all had an eating good time and enjoyed the get-together.

Mrs. Carrie Broughton is back home from Wake Memorial Hospital where she was a patient for several days. Mr. Broughton is also home from his daughter's.

Mrs. Annie P. Jones has been nursing her at night. Mamie Perry spends the day and looks after them. I visited them Saturday night. It's nice to see them back home.

The Billy Greens visited them Saturday a.m. The Greens are here from Africa for several weeks with his parents, the Lester Greens.

The Horace Hamms had several visit them Wednesday night after prayer meeting.

Mr. Domie Boykin is getting his cotton picked so he can plant some more soon.

Mrs. Helen P. Jones had the largest quilting party last Wednesday at our club house. We had 14 women present. Mrs. Frances Breslaw came from Raleigh and helped her mother serve lunch at Mrs. Jones' house to us all. We enjoyed it. We quilted two out and put in another one and did some on that.

Mrs. Lonnie Poole continues ill at home.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Carlyle are living with his father, Mr. W. E. Carlyle, on Hood Road.

Mrs. W. H. Winstead is visiting the Aaron Lowerys. She now lives in Chapel Hill.

Mrs. David Elks spent the weekend with her parents, the E. A. Rhodes.

Mrs. Dolly Debnam is home and improving slowly after a stay in Rex Hospital.

Mrs. Alice Pittman of Raleigh, mother of Mrs. Ben Allen Rhodes, was a visitor.

Mr. E. A. Rhodes is improving nicely.

Visitors to see Mr. Rhodes Sunday were Mrs. Ivon Weathers and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Britt and Mrs. Page Allen of Wendell.

Others visiting Mr. Rhodes included Mrs. Bealie Rhodes and Mrs. McDay of Raleigh. Mr. and

The three-course dinner was served by candlelight.

Dr. Massey is a member of the board.

Who Benefits From This Waste?

You see above an actual example of the waste which is hurting all electric consumers in North Carolina.

The transformer in the picture is not going UP, it's coming DOWN . . . after 15 years!

Here's the story:

In 1947, the original owner of this home in the Piedmont section of North Carolina applied for service from an electric membership corporation—simply because he was unable to obtain electric service from any other source. The home was connected that year and served continuously until early last year.

Then a nearby town extended its corporate limits to encompass this farm home. Shortly afterward the original owner sold the home, and the power company serving the town immediately notified the electric cooperative that it would serve the new occupant.

The cooperative had a choice. It could leave its poles and lines to rot or take them down. You see them coming down here.

Who benefits from this waste? The cooperative had an investment of some $1,000—from which it could get no further income. What's more, the new power company extension was an added expense to the company's ratepayers.

In the end, all consumers lost.

This example is one reason why rural electric cooperatives believe they should be allowed to continue serving their present territories.

Nobody really benefits from this unnecessary waste—unless it is the private power company, which earns a guaranteed return of at least six percent on the new extension.
