

Construction Superintendent Reports Work Is Demanding

The superintendent of a construction job is sort of like an army general," Paul D. Chamblee Jr. said. "The general gives his men hell and they think he is an s.o.b."

Chamblee is general superintendent of Weaver Construction Co. The Greensboro firm is building low cost federal housing projects in Zebulon, Wake Forest, Wendell and Apex.

He will be supervising the construction work. He said his job entails estimating costs, amounts, items, expediting materials, coordinating workings between subcontractors, etc.

"It keeps me pretty busy," Chamblee said, excusing himself and dashing off to confer with some men on the project.

Chamblee said no two subcontractors can be on the job at the same time. He tries to see that the work progresses so that when it is time for one subcontractor is due for the job he will not be delayed.

"I try to see that the work doesn't drag," he said. "If one subcontractor drags out a job he can hold up the progress of a project."

Chamblee said the work is done in stages. There will be masons, tilemen, electricians, and many others. Each of these groups will do their work when it is necessary.

He said that work on the white project here is progressing very well. The unfavorable weather conditions, however, have caused much delay and that it is always a concern of his.

"We have a deadline to meet," Chamblee said, "and I try to make it."

That's when he gets more like a general, with demands being made on the workers. And that's when he is sure he is called all sorts of things.

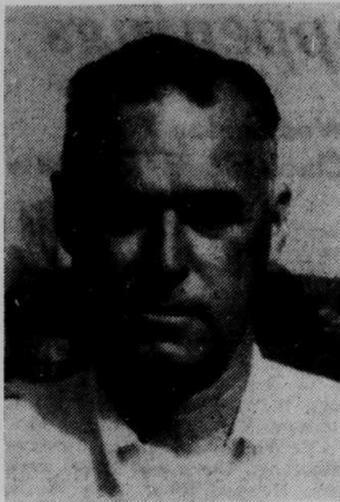

General grading and compact pads have been made for the buildings. The batter boards and excavation footings have been made for one of the units.

"I'll say there is a great amount of paper work I have to do," he said. At the time he said this he was showing a young man he hired for the local project how to work time keeping schedules.

"Yes, I was born in Middlesex. My father is still living but my mother has passed on," he said.

Chamblee, 43, has been with the Greensboro construction firm for five years. He has, however, spent his adult life in this type of work. His father was a carpenter for many, many years.

He is married to the former Rebecca Winstead of Wilson County. They are the parents of four children, Freddie, 23, who is a graduate of the University of North Carolina School of Pharmacy and holds a position with a drug firm in Durham, Jacqueline,

Paul D. Chamblee

19, and Dail and Gail, 12-year-old twin daughters.

Chamblee commutes for his work here. He and his family reside in Chapel Hill.

Methodist Church in Wilmington. He has served on several boards and agencies of the conference and currently is secretary of the Board of Ministerial Training and Qualifications for the entire conference.

Prayer groups have been meeting each week at the church on Wednesday evenings in preparation for the revival series.

On the opening night of the revival, members of the Zebulon Baptist Church will participate. Evening services for the night are canceled and on opening night of the Baptist revival, Methodists will join in the service.

All persons in the community are invited to participate and nursery facilities will be provided each evening for babies and small children.

Should you have trouble with rice or cereals sticking when cooking, drop a small lump of butter or margarine in the boiling water before putting in the cereals.

Schedule of Charges Given For Use of School Facilities

All Wake County school principals were informed this week of a schedule of charges for the use of school buildings by organizations not connected with school functions.

Wakelon and Shepard Schools are affected by this ultimatum for the use of the gymnasiums and auditoriums. There has been no official ruling on the rental of the cafeterias.

Wakelon Principal James Hawkins said he could find no records that charges have previously been made for organizations using the gymnasium or auditorium.

Non-school organizations desiring the use of school facilities are to make a request to the principals.

The schedule of costs are: heat, $5 for the first hour and $3 for each additional hour; lights, $1 per hour; and water $1 per hour. Months when heat is not required only lights and water charges will be made. Janitorial service will be provided by the school.

1963-64 Jaycee Officers Elected

New officers for the Zebulon Jaycees for 1963-64 have been elected, according to an announcement from retiring president, Jimmy Medlin.

Bob L. Pugh was chosen by his fellow Jaycees as president to succeed Medlin. Pugh emerged victorious in a field of four candidates. A young executive associated with Westinghouse in Raleigh, Pugh came to Zebulon in the summer of 1961. He served last year as State Director for the local Jaycees and directed the first Miss Zebulon pageant. He is a member of the Zebulon Methodist Church and serves on the church's Official Board and Finance Committee.

Re-elected as first vice-president was the Rev. Bill Quick, pastor of the Zebulon Methodist Church. Bruce Creekmore was elected second vice-president and Robert Earl Pearce secretary. Creekmore is associated with radio station WETC and Pearce is employed by W. B. Bunn Company.

Floyd Edwards was elected treasurer and Lawrence Liles the State Director. Directors chosen were Billy Green and Jack Potter.

Creekmore succeeds Potter as second vice-president and Pearce succeeds Robert Jones, the retiring secretary. Edwards replaces Wayne Davis as treasurer and Liles succeeds Pugh.

The local Jaycees are the newest civic group in Zebulon and was chartered in special ceremonies at the Lions Club Building on February 21, 1962.

The local club has been outstanding in several projects on behalf of the community since their organization. In the N. C. Jaycees "Parade of Cities" the Zebulon unit ranks 13th among more than 180 Jaycee clubs in the State.

Membership in the club is confined to young men between the ages of 21-35. The present membership of the club is 33.

CP&L Distributes 14-Page Booklet

The impact of investor-owned electric power on North Carolina's economy is outlined in a 14-page booklet distributed this week by Carolina Power & Light Company, Duke Power Company, Virginia Electric and Power Company, Nantahala Power and Light Company and Pamlico Power and Light Company.

Use of electricity by these companies' residential customers has nearly doubled in the past 10 years, according to F. T. Scarborough, CP&L manager; yet the price to the customer has dropped from 2.25 cents to 1.94 cents per kilowatt-hour.

The booklet reveals that the five companies have more than a billion dollars invested within the state . . . paid nearly $60 million in taxes last year on North Carolina operations . . . released over $40 million to the state's economy in the form of payrolls in 1962 . . . and expect to invest $474 million for new facilities in the state over the next five years.

The booklet outlines a 61,809-mile network of lines operated by the companies to supply electricity on a scale which has more than doubled since 1952.

Hopkins Chapel

By Mary Virginia Averette

Youth Week was observed at Hopkins Chapel Church last week. Activities included visiting, choir practice, prayer meeting, G. A. meetings and a worship service followed by a fellowship hour. On Sunday morning the young people took charge of both the Sunday School and the worship service. Jesse Horton, Jr., brought the morning message. We are proud of the work being done by our youth in this community.

The Junior G. A.'s met April 4 at 7:30 in the home of Jackie Gay. After a most interesting program concerning the Philippine Islands, the people and their customs, plans were discussed about going to camp. Refreshments of lime ice, potato chips and cookies were enjoyed by the following: Jackie Gay, Deborah Baker, Vickie Baker, Lucille King, Phyllis Mitchell, Deborah Duke, Valeria Wood, Mary Dan Martin, Barbara Ann Fathera, Mrs. Ruby Walker, Mrs. Helen Fathera and Mrs. Kathleen Gay.

The intermediate G. A.'s met last Thursday night with Shirley Baker. Miss Sandra Perry presided at the meeting.

Miss Sandra Perry and Miss Carolyn Finch went to the Beta Club convention which was held in Asheville last weekend.

Mrs. Harold Richards from Riley's Cross Roads and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hobbs of Melbourne, Florida, visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Perry Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs plan to move their trailer to the home of her sister, Mrs. Perry.

Mrs. Roxie Bunn and Mr. Leonard Gay have returned to their homes after spending sometime in the hospital.

Mrs. Woodrow Stallings is slowly improving after a long illness.

Rev. and Mrs. Claude Walker and Terry and Mr. and Mrs. Burbon Richards went to Williamsboro, about ten miles north of Henderson, Sunday afternoon and visited St. John's Episcopal Church which was built in 1756.

Mr. Hubert Baker is at Mary Elizabeth Hospital and Mr. E. V. Rhodes, Sr., is at Wake Memorial. Mr. Rhodes is the father of Drexel Rhodes.

Mrs. Mary Vic Finch spent several days last week in Whiteville with Mrs. Betty Horton.

Carol Denton has been sick several days with mumps.

New Members

Thirteen new members were received on Sunday night in special baptismal and communion services at the Zebulon Methodist Church. The baptism and confirmation of new members concluded a series of membership training classes for adults, youth and children.

Adults received by transfer of membership were Bruce Creekmore, Mrs. Joseph Temple and Mrs. Steve Stallings. Mrs. Bruce Creekmore was received by baptism and confirmation.

Children and youth received included Frank Thomas Massey, Henry Wyatt Whitaker, Angela Vinson, William Floyd Ihrie, Maurice H. Chapman, Jr., Cheryl M. Chapman, Warren B. Carroll, Jr., and Barry Lane Carroll.

Following their reception into membership, the new members received their first Holy Communion.

Library

If the special tax referendum carries, Raleigh residents will not be adversely affected, since the money now paid in city taxes for library support would be added to their county tax bill.

Raleigh citizens state that, based on property valuation, 65 percent of the money paid to Olivia Rainey Library by the county is rightly the city's, and thus if the special tax fails to gain approval, Raleigh should receive more than $53,000 of the county money now appropriated. This would leave about $29,000 to be used for libraries outside the City of Raleigh.

Commissioner Holding said that defeat of the tax could be considered by the Board of Commissioners as a mandate to withdraw all support from the Olivia Rainey Library and reduce the County tax rate of two cents.

One of a series of reports by this newspaper and the Print Advertising Association on the advantages of print media.

Don't you read before you buy?

Most people generally do.

Not only do they read; they cut out and show ads to their family and friends; they clip coupons for information and samples.

When people see an advertisement in print, they can compare designs . . . features . . . and prices of nationally known products and services. (And people do compare before they buy.)

Advertising in print is a handy thing. You can always check back; the message is still there even if your attention is distracted.

When you add it up, print advertising—the kind you read in this newspaper—makes sense. And because it measures up to the buying habits of most consumers, print makes sales.
