odist Church, Rotary Club, American Legion, and various professional organizations associated with his vocation.

He was a lieutenant in World War I but did not see overseas duty.

He has also been active in Boy Scouting and loves working with Scouts.

After many years of being a bachelor, Wolfe married the former Margaret Hodges in August of 1946. She, too, is a native of North, S. C., and has been a member of the Middlesex elementary faculty for 15 years. She is also retiring with her husband. They are childless.

Wolfe lists his hobbies as listening to semi-classical music, nature study ("anything connected with plant or animal life") boating, fishing, gardening ("both kinds").

"I can't name my favorite flower. I've never seen an ugly one."

Wolfe considers himself "methodical, a planner, one who likes to think things through" before acting.

What has his philosophy been during his teaching career?

"To provide facilities, opportunities, training, and encouragement in order that each boy and girl can fully develop according to his abilities and ambitions," he said.

Wolfe was honored Tuesday night, April 16, by the Middlesex School P.T.A., faculty and students.

"It was a complete surprise," he said, genuine sincerity for the honor coming from his voice.

He was presented a silver bowl. The presentation was made by the president of the P.T.A. organization, Mrs. W. S. Williams, Jr.

Following the presentation an informal reception was held. Approximately 175 persons attended the event.

And as one townsman said: "We hate to see him go. Fred Wolfe, since he has been in our midst, has inspired, has bestowed upon our children his limitless intelligence and love, has made our community a better and more worthwhile place to live. We shall miss him, and it will be a long time before we get the likes of him again."

And you can be assured that Fred Wolfe will not forget the school and Middlesex community.

The Job's Not Done . . .

In 1935, ninety-seven out of every hundred farm families in North Carolina HAD to draw and carry water from the well. Thanks to REA — and the member-owned rural electric cooperatives—ninety-eight out of a hundred now have electricity available to do the job.

BUT, only six out of ten farm homes actually have running water systems—a convenience that most of us consider a necessity.

As the price of electric service falls, more rural people can afford to add electric pumps. And if our rural electric cooperatives are allowed to survive, that price WILL continue to fall.

In eight years, rural electric cooperative rates in North Carolina dropped almost 34 percent. Despite this, we still have a long way to go. Our cooperatives get only $453 in revenue per mile of line in North Carolina. Compare this to the $3,879 per mile received by our state's private power companies.

As our cooperatives add consumers, and revenue per mile increases, each member bears a smaller part of his system's costs. That's why it's important that cooperatives be allowed to serve new loads and enjoy the benefits of their investments within their territories.

If they are allowed to do this, it will mean that more and more rural people will come to know the conveniences that city people have had for years.
