Marie Scarborough Crowned Miss Zebulon Friday Evening

A petite and charming hazel-eyed brunette was crowned Miss Zebulon, 1964 last Friday night in the second annual Jaycee-sponsored Miss Zebulon pageant.

Miss Marie Scarborough, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Scarborough, emerged the winner among the five finalists that were selected from the eleven candidates for the coveted title.

For the talent division of the pageant, she modeled five clothing ensembles which she had sewn. A basic turquoise sheath dress was the first of the five designs she modeled. To this dress she added a jacket to make a suit, then removing the jacket she added a full chiffon skirt to make a cocktail dress. She then removed the chiffon skirt and replaced it with a full-length evening skirt. Her final outfit was a strapless bathing suit.

Bercik, Walters are Runners-Up
As the chairman of judging, Bobby McGee handed the judges decision to MC David Daniel, he commented, "The judges said it was mighty close." For the second consecutive year, Miss Priscilla Bercik was named the first runner-up. Miss Bercik, daughter ter of Mrs. Vivian Trevathan and a freshman at Pfeiffer College, presented a dramatic reading, "Speak To Me Of Love" from Kahlil Gibran's The Prophet. She also designed the gown she wore in the evening gown competition. Miss Pat Walters was the second runner-up. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Walters of Wakefield, Pat did a song and dance in the talent division.

Other finalists were Misses Gene Perry and Jo Anne Denton. Freddie Clark, "Miss Congeniality"

Prior to the pageant, the eleven contestants voted for the girl, who in their opinion, was the most congenial and helpful during the rehearsals, etc. Winner of the coveted Miss Congeniality trophy was Freddie Clark, daughter of Mrs. Lois Clark and the late Fred Clark.

Other contestants besides the five finalists and Miss Clark, were Sue Gainey, Ann Dora Whitley, Judith Creech, Jean Clark and Janie Green.

Miss Scarborough will represent Zebulon in the Miss North Carolina pageant in Greensboro in July. Her height is 5'5" and her 105 pounds are distributed 34½-22-35. She received, as winner, a $100 scholarship presented by (Continued on Page 6)

Captain Jack Tippet Guard Commander; Potter Transferred

The second change of command since organization for Zebulon's National Guard unit was made Friday, May 17, when Capt. Jack M. Tippet replaced Capt. Jack Potter as commanding officer of Battery A, 5th Missile Battalion, 113th Artillery. The change in commanders came when Capt. Potter was transferred to 5th Missile Battalion headquarters in Louisiana to be Operations & Training Officer.

For Capt. Potter, the change ended a long association with the local Guard battery. He was a charter member of the unit, having been one of the first to enlist when Battery A was organized by Barrie Davis in 1949.

Capt. Tippet is returning to the unit he first joined in 1949. For several years he has been a member of the battalion staff in Louisiana.

Capt. Potter's military service began nearly 18 years ago when he enlisted as a private in the Army June 21, 1945. Released from active duty April 1, 1947, he remained in the Army Reserve until June 22, 1949, when he joined the Army National Guard with Battery A in Zebulon as a private.

At that time regulations permitted Guardsmen to be Advanced ROTC students, and Potter was promoted to Sergeant with Battery A while he also participated in the Advanced ROTC program at N. C. State College.

Designated a Distinguished Military Student, Potter was offered a Regular Air Force commission, but refused it to accept a commission as Second Lieutenant, Artillery, in the Army National Guard June 9, 1950.

He served Battery A as platoon leader and executive officer, and was promoted to First Lieutenant in June 1952.

When Capt. Barrie Davis was transferred to 30th Division Headquarters in April 1955, Potter succeeded him as commanding officer of Battery A.

Under Capt. Potter's leadership, the artillery Battery has undergone two successful major reorganizations. In 1958 it turned in (Continued on Page 6)

Three Scholarships Awarded To Wakelon Band Members

Three Wakelon band students were awarded scholarships to East Carolina Music Camp during the annual Spring Concert of the Wakelon Bands on May 10. A full auditorium was present to hear the concert by the Beginning Band, Junior Band, and Senior Band.

Linda Green was given a scholarship by First Federal Savings & Loan Association. The award was presented by Hal Perry.

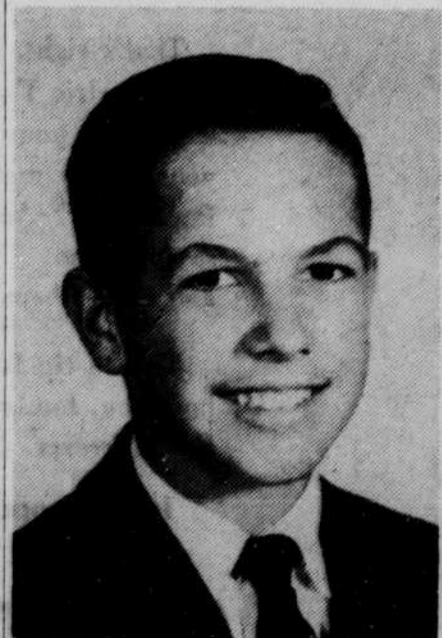

Mrs. Armstrong Cannady presented the scholarship provided by the Zebulon Woman's Club to Ben David Thomas.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce Scholarship was presented to Robert Johnson by Dick Turlington.

An ovation was accorded Director Jimmy Burns and the bands at the end of the concert. Large groups remained after the concert (Continued on Page 6)
